

Land Squeeze Nips Military

By BILL JONES

The land war in Orange County pits subdivider against the armed forces and involves vital defense security and millions of dollars in property.

The military charges that the urban growth is slowly strangling the existence of three Navy and Marine air installations valued at more than $100 million.

It contends that future communities on the edges of the installations will put the armed forces in full retreat because of the nuisance of aircraft noise and the dangers of a crash.

The land developer retorts that (1) A man can do what he pleases with his land, (2) and, if the soldier is so worried, why doesn't he move out or (3) buy out the surrounding land as a "buffer zone."

Involved in the war are the nearly 7,000 acres of rich lands at:

Naval Air Station, Los Alamitos—Largest of the Navy's 18 air reserve activity locations in the United States.

Marine Air Station, El Toro — One of the Marine's four major training airdromes in the nation, and second largest employer in Orange County.

Marine Air Facility, Santa Ana—Largest Marine helicopter training installation in the continental limits.

The trio commands 17,650 active servicemen, reservists and government civilians. Their annual payrolls: $90.6 million.

Two of the chief battles in this war will be fought this week in the chambers of city and county officials.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, the Los Alamitos City Council will consider a zoning change that would permit the construction of an apartment development near the major landing strip of the Naval Air Station.

On Wednesday, the Orange County Planning Commission will tackle the future zoning of the farming land to the south of the main runway at the Marine Air Station.

The Navy claims scientific studies show that the proposed apartments "would receive so much noise that residents would be continually agitating to close the air station."

At El Toro, one developer has already filed a $1.5-million lawsuit against Orange County for "freezing" the usage of the land south of the Leathernecks' airfield. The case is due in court Sept. 9.

What prompts the military to take this strange role in the land fight is the shutdown or curtailment of military bases in urban areas because of public clamor.

More Aid Needed in Boy Hunt

A call for more volunteer searchers was issued late Saturday to help in the continuing search of the High Sierra northeast of Fresno for a missing 4-year-old Buena Park boy.

Meantime, Fresno County sheriff's officers said they were considering the possibility that Donald Roger Griffin was kidnapped.

The boy disappeared early Thursday from Deer Creek campground at Huntington Lake, 72 miles from Fresno. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Griffin of 8664 Chestnut Circle.

"WE'LL keep looking," said A. L. Collins, sheriff's deputy in charge of search operations. "We're trying everything in the book."

"As close as we've covered the entire area—land and water—I can't see how we've missed him. But we'll double check and double check again," Collins said.

Coins Are Scarce, Uncle Is Scarcer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Rare old American coins, said to be worth $10,000 to $15,000, were reported missing Saturday, along with the man who was guarding them at the All-American Coin Co. here.

The store owner, Ronald Winget, 25, told police he left the store in charge of his uncle, Royal Hewitt, 48, for about two hours and returned to find him and the coins missing.

Yarborough in Jab at 'Texas Politician'

FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI)—U. S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., bitter over not getting on the Appropriations Committee, lashed out Saturday night at those who blocked him—including, it was believed, Vice President Lyndon Johnson. Yarborough delivered the stinging attack at a reception honoring past presidents of the International Operating Engineers union. "It happened in each instance after the lackeys and henchmen of a powerful Texas politician had lobbied with other senators against me,"

U. S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., got the Appropriations Committee job.

"I did not go to the United States Senate with a ring in my nose," Yarborough said, "and nobody has one in it now. None will be placed there."

Yarborough said members of the Senatorial Steering Committee "are fine gentlemen, but it is very difficult to achieve a committee when support from your home state is divided, and interests from your own state fight your advancement in Washington."

Washington Readies for Big March

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Preparations to handle the greatest mass demonstration in this city's history are nearly complete, with up to 200,000 whites and Negroes expected for the big anti-discrimination march Wednesday.

Federal and local authorities worked on last-minute details of an elaborate, military-like logistical plan to provide needed food, shelter, medical care and police protection for the marchers and also to halt mob violence should it occur.

The White House announced Saturday it will stay open an extra two hours Wednesday to accommodate any additional visitors. And President Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will be at the White House at 5 p.m. EDT to receive the 10 leaders of the march, led by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

WITH HOTELS and motels sure to be packed, sleeping quarters were sought in area universities, church parish halls and private homes for demonstrators who may have to spend the night.

Among those trying to line up sleeping accommodations was Secretary of State Dean Rusk's son, David, a University of California student.

More than 10,000 policemen, federal troops, National Guardsmen, firemen and deputies will be on hand to keep the peace, although local officials and the march leaders say they do not expect any violence. The demonstration's organizers are providing 1,500 civilian parade marshals themselves, most of them recruited in New York City.

GEORGE Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi Party in nearby Arlington, Va., said Saturday he plans to bring at least 200 followers to Washington for a "counter-demonstration."

Police said the Rockwell adherents could join the march if they do not try to incite riot.

Although Congress will be debating emergency legislation to avert a nationwide railroad strike, leaders of both houses will meet civil rights leaders at 9:30 a.m. EDT. The mass demonstrators will begin a half-mile march from Washington Monument to Lincoln Memorial two hours later.

MARCH leaders in New York, who are moving their headquarters here on Monday, said at least 43 members of Congress would attend the Lincoln Memorial rally. They said 75 legislators had rejected invitations to attend, and 64 others said they would be there if business permits.

'I'LL NEVER RETIRE'

Fullerton Broker, 75, Returning From Catalina Paddling Kayak

By VINT MADER

A 75-year-old Fullerton real estate broker and former lawyer who says "I'll never retire," successfully completed his third lone kayak trip to Catalina Saturday, fighting choppy seas and strong winds all the way.

VINCENT Smith, of 226 W. Union Ave., hauled his kayak ashore at Avalon at 4:30 p.m., ten hours after he paddled out of Long Beach Marina.

"I've had a big steak dinner and I'm fit as a fiddle and ready to dance a jig," said Smith Saturday evening.

He said he would put out to sea on his return trip to the mainland at 5:30 this morning and "try to arrive when the first outrigger in the race arrives."

The outriggers are six-man canoes from Hawaii and California taking part in an annual race.

"I'm going to give myself a handicap because there are six men in those outriggers and only one of me," he said.

Smith is escorted by a power boat, but he said he had no trouble on the outward voyage except leg cramps that pained him during the latter part of the trip.

HE MADE previous canoe trips across the channel in 1950 and 1952. And "I expect to go canoeing on my 100th birthday."

"I did it because I wanted to show senior citizens that rocking chairs are not as healthy as they're cracked up to be."

Starlight Serenade Singer Mixes Domesticity, Art

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Red-haired, svelte soprano Marni Nixon, who will be guest artist for Long Beach's free Starlight Serenade pop concert Tuesday,

8 p.m., in Bixby Park, thinks women can mix careers and marriage successfully.

That is, if they arrange their lives properly.

She's been a successful spouse for 13 years, a dedicated mother for 12 and a career gal since age 10.

Says she: "A woman is a more complete person if she fulfills her own drives and ambitions."

"I've long since come to the conclusion that if I fulfill myself, I can give a more enriched life to my children, culturally and otherwise, and that they will benefit by that."

DOES HER husband concur?

"Ernest and I have never had any contentions about whether a woman should choose between a career and a home," says Marni.

"My husband is a composer, I am a singer. Neither of us ever thought of being anything else. It was only natural to continue our careers after marriage."

Her husband is Viennese musician Ernest Gold, Academy Award-winning composer of "Exodus" and nominee for another Oscar for his "Judgment in Nuremberg" musical score.

James Kirkwood, 80, Veteran Actor, Dies

WOODLAND HILLS (AP)—Veteran actor James Kirkwood, 80, died Saturday at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital.

Cause of death was not disclosed.

Kirkwood began his career in stock companies in 1900. He moved to Broadway where he played in David Belasco productions with such favorites of the day as Blanche Bates, Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin.

When filming of movies began on the East Coast, Kirkwood turned director for Jack Pickford in "Bill Apperson's Boy."

Kirkwood moved on to Hollywood where he played opposite Mary Pickford in the old Biograph Company.

Aid Teams Drilling on Into Mine

HAZLETON, Pa., Sunday (AP)—Work on enlarging the escape hole to David Fellin and Henry Throne resumed early today after a 13-hour delay that set back their rescue hour until sometime Monday.

Most of the delay was caused because a special 30-inch bit had to be flown here from Dallas, Tex. Also, the 65-ton drilling rig had to be raised by hydraulic jacks to a height of four feet from the ground to accommodate the larger bit.

With a mighty roar, the giant drilling rig, as tall as a 10-story building, began churning the 30-inch bit into the section it had enlarged to 26 inches before noon Saturday.

THE AIM was to smooth out this portion so steel casing could be fitted down to the 38-foot depth to prevent cave-ins.

Throne and Fellin have been trapped 331 feet underground for 12 days—since 9 a.m. Aug. 13. Also trapped is Louis Bova, 42, who has not been heard from since Tuesday and is separated from the others by about 25 feet of debris.

A smaller rig is drilling a three-inch hole aimed in Bova's direction. Three previous tries failed.

After the 30-inch drill cuts to the 38-foot level, workmen will change to a 17½-inch bit while the casing is inserted in the hole. Then plans call for using the 17½-inch bit the remainder of the way.

Once this is completed, it is hoped that in the early morning hours Monday, Throne and Fellin will be pulled to the surface in a steel capsule that is almost as wide as the escape hole.

The escape capsule, which has been here for days, is made of rolled steel and is pointed at both ends, to cut down the possibility of becoming wedged in the shaft. It is about 15 inches in diameter.

WHEN ITS use first was suggested, rescue officials doubted a full-grown man could fit inside. But then a five-foot-eight miner, who weighs 285 pounds, showed he could. Neither Throne nor Fellin is that big. Throne being of average build, Fellin slight and wiry.

In addition to the timbers Throne and Fellin used to close the 12-inch opening and brace the walls, a giant "plug" also was sent down from the surface and sealed with concrete before enlarging began.

As the roar of the giant drilling rig pierced the dawn, Saturday, a state mining inspector, got in touch with Throne and Fellin over the six-inch lifeline hole—completed last Sunday when they had been given up for dead by all but close relatives.

Truck Crushes Norwalk Boy

A Norwalk boy Saturday was crushed to death near his home by a Good Humor truck, according to sheriff's deputies.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Studebaker Hospital was Terry Lee Smith, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Eugene Smith of 13918 Longworth Ave.

"HOW ARE you today?" asked the inspector, Art Joyce.

"I'm all right," answered Fellin.

"How's the plug, all right?"

"Yeh, fine."

Then Fellin had a question.

"How long's it going to be?"

"It won't be long now," said Joyce, not mentioning Monday.

ALBACORE RANCHES?

Sea Roundups Eyed as Sources of Food

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A population expert proposed Saturday that man domesticate dolphin and other sea animals to help feed the rapidly rising number of hungry people in the world.

The suggestion was made by Ritchie Calder, professor of international relations of the University of Edinburgh, at the 16th International Congress of Zoology. He foresaw sea farms the size of Texas.

"I can see us employing that highly intelligent and apparently innocuous creature, the dolphin," he said, "as the sheep dogs or even the farm managers of our submarine ranches."

Calder participated in a symposium on the world's population growth and its consequences. He said the population is bound to grow from three billion now to four billion or more by 1980.

THE FOOD supply, he said, must be doubled by then not merely to feed the new mouths but to improve currently inadequate diets. There are many ways in which food production might be increased, but "the greatest opportunities," he said, lie in the seven-eighths of the globe which is covered by water.

In Washington, Equality Depends on The View

WASHINGTON, D.C., is a dual symbol to the tens of thousands of Negroes who will descend on the city Wednesday in a mass demonstration for civil rights. As the nation's capital, it is a repository of that noble philosophy which is the breath and blood of the American republic. But as a municipality, it contains one of the nation's most dismal Negro ghettos (right), where the squalor produced by apathy and poverty combine explosively with the anger and anguish of the new generations of Negroes. This civic split personality has produced a surface picture which makes it seem that the issue of racial equality is being resolved. In Federal Washington, Negroes have equal employment rights under civil service. They are welcomed on guided tours through the White House (above, left), and they may now register at the best hotels—thanks in part to the influx of foreign delegations—and eat at the finest restaurants. Even the district-built swimming pools are integrated. But these Negroes who taste equality by day have an entirely different view when they return to their ghetto at night. And day by day, along with their brethren in almost every major American city, their resolution grows to hurl down the walls of residential segregation until not a stone remains upon a stone. To many observers, Wednesday's mass march seems a perilous affair, which may lead to violence and hurt the cause of civil rights by alienating the sympathies of moderates who feel the Negroes are "going too far." But in Washington, where the dome of the Capitol overlooks the Negro slums, "going too far" nearly means going the long way around—because it seems to be the shortest way there.

THESE NEGRO boys have only a short walk to visit the Capitol and view the statues of America's great men.

PUBLIC SWIMMING pool built by District of Columbia at Haines Point is fully integrated without problems.

CONDITIONS ARE worse than Harlem in Washington's Negro slums, where many have despaired in ignorance and poverty.

Vocalist Successful as Wife and Mother

Marni's words: "They're world," recounted Marni. "I different enough to comple- ment one another. Ernest en- joys being in the audience when I sing, even if it means a Mr. Marni Nixon, just as I enjoy being Mrs. Ernest Gold when listening to his musical accomplishments and sharing his successes."

The musical Golds live in a sprawling, modern-style home in Laurel Canyon, built four years ago, now being re- modeled to accommodate their expanding family.

They have three children—a son, 12, daughter, 10, and an 11-month-old baby.

Gold does his composing in a studio on another hill be- hind the house, where he is connected by an intercom system or can cut himself off from the world if his artistry calls for complete isolation.

FOR MARNI and Ernest, the living hasn't always been so easy.

Back in the days when they were getting started, often they collected Coke bottles "just to have enough money to eat on," she recalls.

And when their first baby was born: "We had to borrow money to get him out of the hospital. They wouldn't re- lease him until the hospital bill was paid."

But, according to Marni, that's just part of the game. "We weren't worried, we were having a gay old time. Now when I look back, those were really precious times."

"Sharing these problems only brought us closer to- gether."

MARNI was conversation- ally turning back the years musical comedy or in concert, between rehearsals for her leading role in "The Marriage of Figaro," which played on Friday and Saturday nights in Laguna Beach's Irvine Bowl.

The role was quite a con- trast to her first onstage venture when, at the age of 10, she played an angry child who, with a lasso around her neck, was yanked on stage by a mischievous neighbor boy.

She didn't have to hit any high notes THAT night, she just had to cross her eyes convincingly.

AT THE SAME age, she broke into the movies via the violin.

"My mother was the most un-Hollywood mother in the world," recounted Marni. "I insisted on a violin."

"Once I got it, mother in- sisted I practice. There was a bit part in the movies for a child playing the violin. I got that."

"Then came some brat parts I had bright red pig- tails and big red freckles and a role in the 'Lum and Abner' series."

The same year, quite by accident, she won the sweep- stakes prize at Pomona Fair.

"I didn't have my violin," she recalls, "so my sister (she has three) suggested I sing while she accompanied me on the piano."

Marni did "Blue Danube" and walked off with the hon- ors.

THEN CAME a succession of musical-acting pursuits.

She played with the Los Angeles Symphony for Chil- dren, sang with the original Roger Wagner Chorale, did light opera at Pasadena Play- house when in high school (Dorsey High, '47), studied at Los Angeles City College, at USC on a scholarship and at Stanford.

Then came marriage, child- ren, a move to New York, prize-winning performances on Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" and "Chance of a Lifetime," also a part in the Broadway musical, "The Girl in Pink Tights."

A MULTI-TALENTED singer, Marni Nixon this year has come into her own.

Her versatility makes her valuable whether heard on the operatic stage, on records, in films, or in television.

Says one critic: "Miss Nixon's seemingly artless deliv- ery of crystalline sound and her vibrant personality make in Laguna Beach's Irvine Bowl."

Few singers can boast a voice of such unusual timbre. Often called the human flute, she has the voice behind everything from cartooned mice to a woman falling into a volcano.

She swells the family bank account, also, by dubbing musical notes for movie stars whose voices do not fit the part. Most recently she sang for Natalie Wood in "West Side Story." She was Deborah Kerr's singing voice in "The King and I" and in "An Affair to Remember." Once she even sang for Margaret O'Brien.

Her lilting high notes have

Big Seawater Plant Asked in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A large-scale seawater conver- sion plant that would serve San Diego County under a partnership plan has been proposed by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

Vice President W. A. Zit- lau proposed that local gov- ernment agencies build the plant at an estimated cost of $14 million.

The new facility would be operated by the gas company, which would supply it with excess steam from existing generating plants, he said.

"Based on the quantity and quality of steam available, we find that we could accommo- date a sea water conversion plant with a daily maximum output of 25 million gallons," Zitlau said. This amount, he said, was about 31 percent of San Diego's average daily re- quirement.

Zitlau said the cost of wa- ter from the plant would com- pare "favorably" with that of water from other sources.

Moslems Protest Giraffe's Name

AMSTERDAM (UPI)— "Mohammed," a giraffe born in the Amsterdam zoo, was renamed "Farhat" (joy) after the Institute For Islamic Studies in The Hague sent the zoo a "shocked protest" letter.

The Institute said the name Mohammed is holy for mil- lions of Moslems and it was "insulting" to them that the holy name was used for an animal.

Dr. Schweitzer Backs Nuclear-Test Ban

HYANNIS, Mass (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday threw new ammunition into his fight for Senate ratifica- tion of the nuclear-test-ban treaty by making public an emotional endorsement from Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the 1952 Nobel Peace Prize win- ner.

The President, spending a rainy weekend with his wife and children, also released a report from his science ad- visory committee which com- mended the treaty as "an im- portant step toward a safe and secure peace in the world."

Schweitzer, writing from his medical mission at Lam- barene, West Equatorial Africa, penned his brief letter in French. He congratulated the Chief Executive for "hav- ing had the foresight and the courage to inaugurate a world policy toward peace." The elderly scientist, physician and humanitarian commented on the treaty:

"Finally a ray of light ap- pears in the darkness in which humanity was seeking its way and gives us hope that the darkness will make way for light."

Schweitzer called the limit- ed test-ban treaty "one of the greatest events, perhaps the greatest, in the history of the world. "It gives us hope that war with atomic weapons between East and West can be avoid- ed," he said. "When hearing of the Mos- cow treaty I thought of my first step on the road leading to peace."

FORECAST FOR TODAY

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Ten- dency toward decision regarding il- lances. Those with "secret" may be revealing all. Listen, but take what you hear with skepticism. Attend church or concert.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Subtle influence can be exerted in your favor. Avoid "hard sell" tactics. Stress sincere approach. Day for entertainment and display of sparkling wit.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): What is said in jest may carry serious overtones. Listen with "thinner ear." Read between the lines. One who is associated with you at work may be jealous. Apply Golden Rule.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Good lunar position highlights beauty. Look for the best in others. View situations as they actually exist. Trust intuitive intellect. Fine for attending church.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Feature approach which considers every detail. Tendency toward emotionalism. Mean- ings it's up to you to find the truth. Others simply may not know.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Favor- able lunar aspect emphasizes social af- fairs, club activities. Be generous. For- giving. Surprises may bring water- heater happiness. Welcome relatives, friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21): Social matters demand attention. Places indi- vidual means well but is not optimistic. Excuses greater. Be intelligent. Be alive in making changes. Read and relax.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Results of recent efforts now materialize. You have more confidence. Show ability. Greater domestic harmony. Spread in- fluence. Smile, charm your way to "inner circle."

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): One who previously was hard to "net to," becomes available. Show consideration. Do something extra nice — such as purchase of flowers, candy, or other gift. Show initiative.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid trying to go too quickly. Steer clear of associates who urge expansion without solid base. Key is security, sure ground and awareness of what "opponent" is thinking.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): In generous effort to please, be sure you don't go overboard financially. Situational- ists are key. Others will appreciate your sincerity, thoughtfulness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Relaxation, recreation required. Means change of pace benefits you and loved ones. Get work finished early. Plan for future. Refreshing drive tonight good tonic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Express love, appreciation. Important for you to be alert to needs, feelings of one you love. Evening features "chance" in love. "vacation talk." Stick to resolutions.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21): Some previous doubts, fears can be erased. Security found in home, faith exhibited by family member. Don't invest in your own talents ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21): Exhibit flash of brilliance which comes from self-confidence, maturity. Others willing to listen. You attract attention of respon- sible individuals and can present ideas, suggestions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Trying to force associates to see your side now could be mistake. Instead, avoid making accusations. They may have prior commitments. Be polite, considerate. Use willpower.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get details straight in your own mind. Only then can you work with clarity, con- viction. Important to win allies. Do so by appearing confident, cooperative, cheerful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): One who recently came to you for advice now in position to grant aid. Be careful. Throw away false ideas. Accept in spirit of friendship. Day features new con- tacts, experiences.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Un- usual procedures may be necessary. Or- thodox methods prove "fired." Take a chance on new technique. Check invest- ment possibilities. Look to future. Avoid needless worry.

Veteran Units Hail Hosmer for Military Veteran Aid Work

Eleven plaques and scrolls were presented to Congressman Craig Hosmer at Mottell's Chapel Saturday afternoon in a military dedication ceremony staged by the Civic and Veteran Committee of Southern California.

The veteran's groups participating expressed appreciation to the Long Beach legislator, for his long-time work in behalf of the Veterans Hospital, Navy Shipyard, new Navy hospital and toward military men and their families.

Some 400 persons attended the dedication of "Adoration of the Shepherds," the huge new mosaic in Mottell's Chapel, then witnessed presentation of the plaques and scrolls to Hosmer at a ceremony in Mottell's Garden Room.

HOSMER delivered the dedication address, pointing out the mosaic was created "in memory of all the veterans who gave their lives for our country."

"The mosaic, depicting the adoration of the shepherds at the birth of Jesus Christ, is especially fitting," Hosmer said. "For God and country are particularly significant words in connection with our country. Perhaps never in history has this been so important to our nation as now in these crucial years."

Gang Stealing Explosives Blown to Bits

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Four and possibly five men were feared killed Saturday night when an estimated three tons of dynamite exploded on the east side of Butte, rocking an area 10 miles in diameter.

Sheriff's officers and police, acting on a tip, were in wait at the Pittsmt mine slag dump for men who allegedly were going to steal the dynamite which had been unloaded at the dump Friday.

Observers said the bodies were blown to bits.

Four or five cars were seen arriving at the scene shortly before the explosion. The men in those cars were believed involved in trying to take the explosives.

It was not immediately determined what set off the dynamite.

country, led off the ceremony. They were Maj. Sidney Goldstein of Westminster, state commander; Cmdr. D. Gary of Garden Grove, state senior vice-commander; and Lt. John Lang of Long Beach, state service officer.

THE PLAQUES and scrolls presented Congressman Hosmer were from: Capt. William Sullivan, American Legion Post No. 617 and Auxiliary, presented by John Miller. Fleet Reserve Association, Tom Davis. United Veterans Council, Rolland Bach.

Scrolls from Navy Wives of America, Club 123 of Long Beach, and Retired Officers and Wives Club of Long Beach, both presented by Mrs. Louis H. Murray.

Congressman Hosmer came to Long Beach for the ceremony. He was flown here in President Kennedy's jet plane and will leave early today on the plane, together with other government leaders, for Omaha, Neb., headquarters of the Strategic Air Command, for a conference on nuclear defense and weapons. Hosmer is the ranking member of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

Operation Is Interrupted by Surgery Room Fire

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Some 50 patients, some critically ill, had to be evacuated from the Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital Saturday.

"Everybody is crying from the smoke, but nobody was hurt," one fireman said.

The patients were moved back inside the hospital from the 90-degree heat outside after 15 fire units extinguished the flames within 45 minutes.

UC Scientists Favor A-Test Ban Treaty

BERKELEY (UPI) — Seventy-seven of 79 University of California scientists favor Senate ratification of the partial nuclear test ban treaty, according to the local chapter of the Federation of American Scientists.

The remaining two opposed the treaty in answering the questionnaire. The survey was conducted among UC chemists, physicists and biologists.

Dr. George Klefgen said he was just completing a major operation when he saw flames push through the ceiling of the operating room.

The patient was rushed to safety and "is doing fine," a hospital spokesman said.

"WE CAN'T use the surgery room now," the spokesman said, "until it's rebuilt." The sudden blaze disrupted scheduled operations for the day but resulted only in postponed surgeries.

Smoke fumed through one of the hospital wings housing four major wards — the recovery room, orthopedics, periatrics and the general medical ward.

Complaints of neighboring residents in New York led to the elimination of jets at the Mitchell Air Force Base and, later, to its demise.

In Long Beach, public complaints in 1960 led to the indecision on the part of the Fathers over negotiation of a long-term lease to the Air Force at Municipal Airport. In the end, the Air Force yanked all its flying activities and multi-million dollar payroll out of the city.

Fears of the city dweller near an air base can be justified in the fact that 10 plane crashes in the proposed building area south of El Toro have occurred in the past 10 years.

ONLY LAST week, a Sky-nite jet crashed short of the runway at El Toro, just 100 feet from the property on which one subdivider proposes to build homes.

A young lieutenant and his crew chief died May 20, 1959, when their helicopter suddenly plunged 300 feet to the ground at the Marine Air Facility near Santa Ana.

Nine Los Alamitos airmen died last year when the pilot chose death rather than crash his disabled bomber into heavily-populated Rossmore.

AN OFFICIAL investigation showed that Lt. Cmdr. Arthur W. Knighten purposely turned his plane in the direction of a flaming wing—contrary to safety procedures—to avoid the homes.

Forty-eight persons died in Norwalk when a military transport and a Los Alamitos Navy Patrol bomber crashed in 1959 over the city. One victim was a woman decapitated when falling debris struck her home.

In answer to the hazards,

Store Founder Left $3 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A Superior Court inventory disclosed Friday that Joe Shoenig, founder of the National Dollar Stores, left an estate of nearly $3 million.

Shoenig, who died last April, left $100,000 to a friend, May Yang, San Francisco; and $30,000 each to six employees as a mark of personal appreciation for faithful service.

The remainder was left in trust to his daughters, a son, and a grandson.

Shoenig began business with a small store in Vallejo in 1901. The chain had grown to a 54-store company by the time of his death.

L.B. Negro Leader to Join March

A Long Beach Negro leader who'll participate in Wednesday's big civil rights march on Washington feels confident that he'll be taking part in a history-making effort.

"It'll be a significant milestone in the Negro's struggle for equality, and I'm proud to be a part of it," declared Joseph S. McAllister, chairman of the city's United Civil Rights Committee.

McAllister, who'll represent his organization in the massive demonstration, said he's hopeful the march will have a positive effect on the nation's lawmakers, who've been asked by President Kennedy to pass a strong civil rights package this year.

The Negro mortician said he'll leave here Tuesday night and arrive in Washington at 6:30 Wednesday morning.

With the capital expected to be bursting at the seams with visitors, McAllister said he feels fortunate in having made hotel reservations four weeks ago.

He said he'll take advantage of his presence in Washington that day to present Sen. Thomas Kuchel and Rep. Craig Hosmer, who represents Long Beach in the House of Representatives, with a brochure outlining the work of the newly formed UCRC here.

McAllister said he doesn't agree with critics of the march who say Negro efforts could better be expended in demonstrations aimed at more specific objectives.

Reserve officers in the Long Beach-San Pedro-Orange County area this fall will be offered the most comprehensive program of instruction in the nine year history of the Naval Reserve Officer School 11-4 which maintains central offices at Long Beach State College.

A total of 23 classes taught by specialists from business, "fare" and "International Relations" are additional areas of instruction. The program will be offered to reservists from all branches of the armed services when the new school starts Sept. 12, according to Capt. Harry B. Frishman, USNR, command-ing officer.

Newest of the courses to be added to the reserve officer curriculum will be "National Strategy in the Cold War." This thorough examination of threats to American freedom will be studied in classes held at State College, the Santa Ana Naval Reserve Training Center and the San Pedro Naval Reserve Training Center.

Renew Attack on Child Killer Cystic Fibrosis

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A new research attack on the childhood killer cystic fibrosis will begin in Long Beach late this fall with the establishment of a drug-treatment, cystic fibrosis clinic in Memorial Hospital.

One of drugs to be evaluated is an exciting new compound reported on early this year to the American College of Physicians.

The clinic, first of its kind in this area, has just been given a $1,500 grant by the Long Beach Chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

The clinic will be open to all CF victims in the Southland. In charge will be three Long Beach physicians, Drs. Jack Lieberman, Harry W. Orme and Myrvin H. Ellestad.

CYSTIC fibrosis is a chronic children's disease of the glands of external secretion. Its complications involve the lungs, digestive system and sweat glands.

The ailment, which is inherited, occurs in about one of every 1,000 babies. It is usually fatal, but research findings are increasing life expectancy for victims. There is no cure.

The most serious complications are caused by the abnormal mucus produced in various organs. Normal mucus secreted by the lining membrane of the organs is thin, clear and slippery. But in CF, mucus is thick and sticky, and may obstruct the intes-up the air passages of the lungs.

DOCTORS at the new clinic will concentrate on evaluating drugs that can thin the gummy mucus that clogs the lungs. At present there is no compound that can do this adequately.

A promising new drug called mono-iodotyrosine, or MIT for short, will be one of the first to be evaluated. It is a chemical relative of another new drug — DIT or di-ready being used on six Long Beach CF victims.

DIT is being used currently because it is easier to produce in the laboratory, it was explained. The children will be switched to MIT when it becomes available. Both compounds are available for research only.

DR. LIEBERMAN calls the new drugs "exciting."

"DIT is clearing the lungs, enabling these children to breathe and sleep better at night," Dr. Lieberman said. "The exciting thing is that MIT has been shown to be twice as potent as DIT."

Both compounds, thyroid-like agents, are administered as a mist in a face mask.

MIT, he said, is set to get its first widespread trial in the Long Beach cystic fibrosis clinic.

Meanwhile, the Long Beach Chapter of the CF research foundation plans to hold its annual fund-raising drive

Sept. 8, 9 and 10. Volunteer workers will conduct a door-to-door canvass on those dates.

State Legion's Officers Call for Expulsion of Hill Post

established that the post was being used by at least some of its members as a front for the supersecret California Rangers, an armed underground guerrilla group.

George Joseph King, 30, of Long Beach, a member of the Rangers arrested earlier this month for selling automatic weapons to Federal agents, is a member of the Signal Hill Legion Post.

Col. William Gale, who as Constitution Party candidate for governor in 1958, received 2,301 votes of 5,255,777 cast, is head of the Legion membership from the Beverly Hills post to the Signal Hill post earlier this year.

AT A MEETING held in Signal Hill City Hall, across the street from the Legion post's modest quarters, post officers hastily got the regular order of Legion business out of the way, "ad-journed," then listened to a speech by Gale.

On the table in the rear of the meeting hall was literature, including some issued by the National Renaissance Party, a neo-Nazi organization based in New York.

Members of the Renaissance Party, headed by Vincent Madole, were arrested in New York recently when it was discovered they carried an arsenal with them while harassing an integrationist picket line.

OTHER literature made available from a contact within the post included the National States Rights Party "Thunderbolt," one of the more virulent hate sheets in the country, "Common Sense," considered by some as the worst of the nation's hate sheets, and a potpourri of other hate literature including some written by agents for foreign countries.

COL. WILLIAM GALE

The California Senate fact-finding subcommittee on un-American activities calls the NSRP "more potentially dangerous than any of the American Nazi groups."

THIS WRITER was told by one Signal Hill Post member—who was recruiting members—that the Post accepted only "White Christian Americans." The spokesman also was a member of the Rangers. He said each prospective member was investigated by the post to determine his religion.

At least some members of the post wear small gold crosses to specify they will deal only with "Christians."

The member who attempted to recruit this writer professed an admiration for the Rev. Wesley Swift, onetime lecturer for the Ku Klux Klan and more recently a factor in the California Rangers.

post meetings, many of the members could be unaware of the activities of the extremists in the post.

C. Eunice Monroe, who became the post's first woman commander and served two terms from 1956 to 1958, recently was re-elected. She replied angrily to the State Legion resolution.

"People have been heckling us for three years. If you ever find out what the charges are, would you let us know?" she asked.

"We want to be brought to trial. We want to know what the charges are before we go to court and who made them."

"I did hear by way of the grapevine," she said, "that we were too far to the right."

MRS. MONROE and Robert R. Collins were listed as commander and adjutant of the post respectively by Stockman. He said that, contrary to custom, names of other Signal Hill officers were not placed on file with state headquarters.

Mrs. Monroe refused to reveal their names when asked.

Stockman said under Legion procedure the post has 30 days to reply to the executive committee resolution.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, a prominent advocate of less spending for foreign aid, said Saturday the hefty cut voted by the House could badly damage free world security.

Clay joined forces with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk in denouncing Friday's surprise House decision to hold overseas aid this year to more than $3.5 billion.

REPUBLICAN Clay is the retired general who headed a presidential advisory committee which reported last March that it had found deficiencies in the administration of the aid program. The 10-man group recommended cuts in the scope of the program, saying that "We are indeed attempting too much for too many."

After the committee made its report, Kennedy reduced from $4.9 billion to $4.5 billion his request for money to run the program in the fiscal year which started July 1.

Honor Kefauver
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A special memorial service will be held here today for the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn. Eight speakers will review Kefauver's work.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

7 Demos Attack Rail-Peace Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seven Democrats on the Senate Commerce Committee Saturday attacked a key provision in an emergency arbitration bill designed to block a nationwide rail strike at midnight Wednesday.

They called for unlimited negotiations to settle secondary issues in the four-year-old work-rules dispute instead of arbitration if no agreement is reached on the so-called minor matters by a fixed deadline.

This represented the basic position taken by five rail unions on the legislation and appeared certain to touch off a Senate floor fight Monday when the bill comes up for passage. The House also hopes to pass the measure before the strike deadline.

K in Burying Mood Again

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev dusted off an old threat Saturday and pledged that communism would bury capitalism—with assembly-line production.

Pointing a finger at Western reporters covering his 15-day visit to Yugoslavia with President Tito, Khrushchev shouted, "I say we will beat you, and beat you with better-organized production. We will not bury you with a shovel, but the working class will bury you."

"Why the devil should I bury the capitalists?" the Soviet leader asked a group of more than 1,000 shipyard workers he addressed under a hot sun in this port of the Adriatic Sea. "Their own working class will do it."

Khrushchev's speech was a variation on a theme he played Wednesday in off-the-cuff remarks to assembly line workers at a tractor factory near Belgrade.

Viet Police Search U.S. Official Cars

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Vietnamese police, in a mounting wave of anti-Americanism, have begun searching official U.S. cars. They arrested three American newsmen and photographers Saturday with a shout of, "To Hell with Americans!"

Student unrest against the government mounted hourly and 1,000 of them, led by Buddhist ex-Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau, demonstrated against the government for the second consecutive day. Police did not interfere but the government closed the schools.

The U.S. Embassy protested to the government against the search of cars which was concentrated on those of the U.S. Aid Mission next door to the ransacked Xa Loi pagoda, stormed early Wednesday by police and soldiers at start of the Buddhist repression.

JFK Orders A-Tests Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy has ordered a sharp expansion in U.S. underground nuclear testing which is not banned by the tri-power treaty now awaiting Senate ratification, the Defense Department revealed Saturday.

Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric made the disclosure in a 10-page letter giving the Senate Armed Services Committee "extensive assurances" that every possible safeguard will be observed against risks which the treaty admittedly entails.

The pact—signed by the United States, Britain and Russia and more than 75 other nations—bans only tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space.

Venezuela Terrorists Kidnap Athlete

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Terrorists kidnaped an international soccer star from his hotel room Saturday—hours after snipers fired shots at police guards at a soccer game attended by President Romulo Betancourt's wife and daughter.

Argentine-born Alfredo di Stefano, center-forward on the Real Madrid soccer team of Spain, was said by a hotel concierge to have been taken from his room at 6 a.m. by men posing as narcotics agents.

Newspapers reported later they received anonymous telephone calls saying the seizure of Stefano was another publicity effort of the Armed Forces for National Liberation (FALN), which seeks to topple the Betancourt regime. FALN is a pro-Communist, pro-Castro organization which also has been carrying out sabotage against U.S. business interests in Venezuela.

Socialist Rule in Norway Ends

OSLO, Norway (UPI)—Eighteen years of uninterrupted Socialist rule in Norway ended Saturday when Premier Einar Gerhardsen presented his resignation to King Olav V in the wake of the Storting's (parliament) nonconfidence vote.

Olav promptly called on Conservative Party Leader John Lyng to form a new government and Lyng accepted. He is expected to present his new cabinet to the king next Tuesday.

New Office to Enforce Realty Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state real estate commission has established a four-man office here to administer new laws aimed at crooked—or overenthusiastic—subdivision promoters.

The office will go to work Sept. 20, when the laws take effect, checking applications and credentials of promoters who propose to sell land—located in or out of the state—to Californians.

The real estate commissioner, Milton G. Gordon, was given new powers by the 1963 legislature after an investigation by lawmakers into complaints of fraud.

ONE LAW allows the commissioner to determine whether an offer of subdivision land has been fairly represented to prospective buyers.

Another gives him power to check promises by promoters for additional developments, such as golf courses, at subdivisions to determine whether they could be carried out.

In either case, he could block the sale if fraud were detected, or the property misrepresented, or the promoter or seller could not live up to his promises.

PREVIOUSLY, the commissioner simply could give his opinion, which had no legal force.

"This will put no burden on the responsible subdivider," said Gordon's assistant, Jack Hempel. "But it will make sure he has made adequate arrangements."

"Unless the whole story is told, they could be considered misleading," he said.

Kennedy to Visit Las Vegas, Report

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—President Kennedy will visit Las Vegas late this September or early October, says the Las Vegas Review-Journal.

The Review-Journal reported that Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., has confirmed the Presidential visit. The White House had no comment.

Ocean Roundups Eyed for Feeding of Humans

"As far as the seas are concerned," Calder added, "we are still at the cave-man stage, hunting our food instead of husbanding it."

"SEA-RANCHES, sea-pastures, sea stud farms are not absurdities. We ought to be able to domesticate the sea creatures. At least in this generation of zoologists we ought to catch up with our neolithic ancestors (late Stone Age people) who provided us with every domesticated animal we have."

He recommended for domestication, in addition to dolphins or porpoises, the so-called sea-cows, the manatee and the dugong. These related mammals grow to giant size and constitute "a pretty substantial hunk of protein" food.

THEY ALSO feed on the water-hyacinth, a pestiferous plant which clogs the rivers and estuaries of Asia and Africa. Perhaps, Calder suggested, these sea animals could be trained to keep water-hyacinth under control while they are being fattened for the human food supply.

Calder noted that the sea bottom is rich in fertilizer. Even in so-called marine deserts, this sea-bottom compost could be stirred up by mechanical means to enrich the ocean levels where fish can thrive, he said.

"WE COULD fence off great arms of the sea and turn (each of) them into an oceanic Texas by putting mild electric shockwaves across the entrances to discourage fish from migrating, just as strands of electric wires restrain farm animals."

Adm. Smoot to Discuss Formosa

"Taiwan Today" will be the subject of a talk by Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot, USN (ret), at a dinner meeting of the Long Beach Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars Thursday at Allen Center, Terminal Island.

Taiwan, known as Formosa, is the only part of China now governed by the Chinese Nationalist faction.

Adm. Smoot was on duty in Taiwan for four years as senior Naval officer in the Far East and with the title of Commander Taiwan Defense Command. He also was military advisor to President Chiang Kai-shek.

Cmdr. Forrest P. Brown, chapter commander, will preside.

Exchange Students to Report

Four Long Beach high school graduates who spent approximately six weeks abroad under the Lions International Youth Exchange Program will describe their experiences at the Lions luncheon Sept. 3 in the Breakers International.

The four are: Jon Andrews, Jordan graduate, who visited in Italy; Gary Lapid, Poly, France; Joe Towner, Millikan, Argentina, and Miss Leslie Tucker, Wilson, Brazil.

The Downtown Lions Club is in the second year of its participation in the Exchange Program, according to Herbert M. Vaughn, chairman of the International Relations Committee. Under the program the Lions Club pays transportation costs to countries where the students are hosted by Lions families.

Ex-Teacher Marks 94th Birthday

Miss Adda Adams, who taught many Long Beach citizens in their first grade in school, is 94 years old today.

She will celebrate the anniversary in her apartment in the St. Regis, 1030 E. Ocean Blvd., where she has lived since 1926.

Her New England parents emigrated to Iowa and then Kansas as pioneers in the 1870s. She and her sister, Miss Elsie Adams came to Long Beach in 1919.

The sisters lived together. Elsie taught the second grades in Roosevelt and Whittier schools for 21 years. Adda taught first grades of Fremont, Burnett and Edison schools for 17 years.

Elsie Adams died last December.

BEACH COMING
With MALCOLM EPLEY
SHAVER LAKE, Fresno County—Have you ever longed for an electric blanket on a chilly night in a mountain outdoor camp? The thought, until now, has been ridiculous and futile, because there was nothing to hook the wires to in such places—unless one had an awfully long cord stretching to the next town or some distant wired building. But Southern California Edison has done it—it has brought electric outlets to every campsite (there are 100 of them) in a tree-studded public campground it opened Friday morning on the shores of jewel-like Shaver Lake.

IT'S BILLED as an "all-electric camp" and in addition to the outlets, set on trees or posts, there are electric cooking centers, lighted buildings with modern plumbing facilities, hot water showers, dressing rooms for men and women bathers, barbecue grills and a boat and swimming dock.

All of this is almost embarrassing to an old rough and ready camper like me, but for parties with women-folk, or anybody who likes his "roughing-it" not quite so rough, it would be great.

In fact, this is such a beautiful spot, and the campground so conveniently laid out with secluded separate camps, it wouldn't be too difficult to embarrass me with these modern facilities for a few nights and days.

SOME of us were up from L.B. and L.A. for the dedication ceremonies of Camp Edison, 50 miles north-east of Fresno on Hwy. 168.

That was on Thursday. The camp wasn't opened to the public—it's operated on a first come, first serve basis—until Friday at 8 a.m.

When we left camp Thursday about four, 15 camping parties were already lined up at the entrance. They were going to stay right there all night to be the first to use the camp. When we passed by again Friday morning, 50 or more trailer and car parties were in line.

It's obvious Camp Edison is going to be mighty popular with the camping public.

HOW COME So. Cal. Edison is doing all this?

Well, the company owns 20,000 acres or so around Shaver Lake, which is a part of its big complex of reservoirs and power houses scattered over one of the most beautiful sections of the Sierra.

It has decided to increase the development of the public recreation facilities in its Sierra realm as part of a general stewardship of the region compatible with good public policy.

So Camp Edison was projected for a 250-acre site on the lakeshore and Edison, being in the business, just made it an exemplary electricity-using project. At the same time, it decided to charge only a nominal fee for campers, with a two-week limit on any one party.

There are 100 campsites and 100 trailer sites, in addition to some public picnic grounds and day-camp setups.

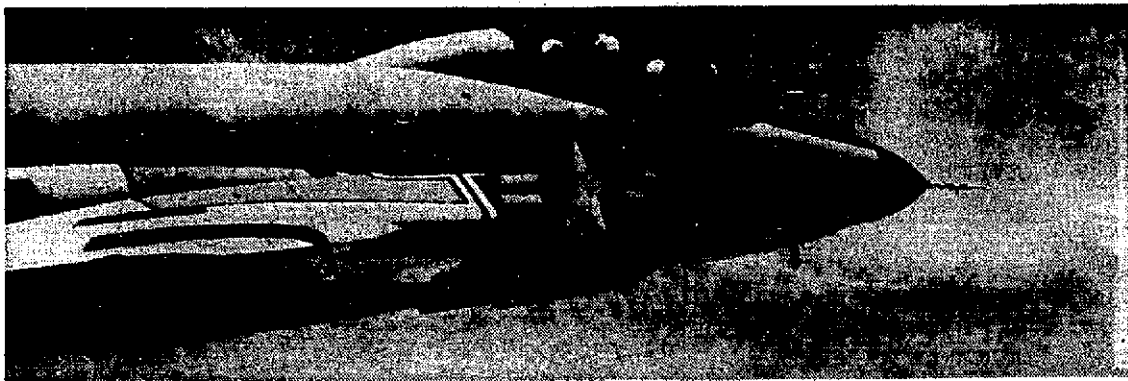

For any of my readers who may be interested in a trip up that way—remember, it's a first-come, first-served situation. No reservations are taken. But it's a big country, with a lot of forest camps, etc., and if you happen to find Camp Edison full, there'll no doubt be some other good spot close by.

But not one with power outlets at every campsite. That, for the time being, is an Edison exclusive.

IN ADDITION to the camp development, Edison is running a reforestation project on its land, growing seedlings in a nursery and planting ponderosa pine, sugar pine and Sequoia trees. It also has a fish hatchery and steadily plants the several big lakes which are a part of its operation. Running a power company involves a lot more than generating and distributing power and sending out bills.

THE NEXT MOVE for this pilot at Oxnard Air Force Base may be a "scramble in his F101 interceptor—130 seconds after alert.

There's a New Breed of Flying Tigers On Guard in California's Skies

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Independent, Press-Telegram Aerospace Editor Lee Craig recently spent two days living and flying with the fighter pilots of the 437th Fighter Squadron at Oxnard Air Force Base which is charged with the aerial defense of the Southland. The following is his first-hand account of their activities.)

A stocky, dark-haired United States Air Force captain, frowning in concentration, is playing checkers with a young, crew-cut first lieutenant. Their bright orange flight suits lend a flamboyant touch of color to the drably curtained second-floor quarters at Oxnard Air Force Base.

Two minutes later, they are in the air, and two minutes after that they are 40,000 feet, streaking faster than the speed of sound in their jet interceptor toward what could be a flight of enemy bombers heading for Southland targets.

They are members of the 437th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, whose emblem is a snarling tiger and whose mission is the defense of this area from air attack by any aggressor nation.

These second-generation "Flying Tigers" have aircraft and weapons far surpassing those of their famous namesakes.

They fly the F101 Voodoo, a two-seat, twin-engined, long-range interceptor, one of the fastest and most powerful aircraft in the world.

Capable of speeds greater than 1,200 miles an hour, the bullet-shaped fighter carries Falcon missiles and nuclear-tipped Genie air-to-air rockets.

Radar-equipped, the Voodoo can find its target at night and in any kind of weather.

Although top military officers realize the main menace to this country is the ballistic missile and space threat, they feel that manned bombers would play an integral role in an attack on the United States.

Probable order of assault, they believe, would be a sudden and devastating rain of nuclear bombs on coastal targets from offshore submarines, timed to coincide with intercontinental ballistic missiles thundering down on key defense centers throughout the nation.

Next would come wave upon wave of supersonic bombers, hoping to fight their way through defenses weakened by the first attacks.

To minimize this possibility, the North American Air Defense Command has carried through a program of dispersing counterforce aircraft to a variety of civilian and military airfields throughout the country to help insure their survival in case of a sudden, unannounced war.

One of these fields could be Long Beach Municipal Airport with its 10,000-foot runway, where this city's 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group would be standing by, ready to refuel and rearm the interceptors so they could return to the battle.

Eye of the Voodoos in their search for an unseen enemy is SAGE, for "semi-automatic ground environment," a lightning-quick command-control system.

SAGE equipment and its installation around the country is worth its $2 billion price tag, military strategists feel.

The system draws information from radar early warning aircraft and picket ships and other sources, considers the defense capability at the moment, then, if given the command, can select the proper manned or unmanned interceptors for the mission.

SAGE's computers digest mountainous quantities of data continuously, absorbing it within millionths of a second, and can direct interceptors unerringly to their targets.

In attempting to keep pace with the postwar threat, air defense has gone from piston-engine fighters and manual warning and control systems to supersonic interceptors and missiles carrying atomic weapons and controlled through fantastically complicated electronic systems.

And even after an effective method of dealing with the ballistic missile menace is found, the dedicated crews who man the 437th's interceptors still will play a vital role in this nation's balanced air defense.

SCREAMING over the California countryside, Voodoo of the 437th Fighter Squadron returns to base after practice alert.

SLEEPY TIGER, nestled in arms of Capt. Sam Melvin, is squadron mascot—and usually as alert as his masters.

A Day for Scrambled Eggheads

YOUNG DEMOCRATS from 13 western states ended a three-day convention in Berkeley, Calif., last week with the adoption of a group of 52 resolutions. We have searched hopefully for another word besides "radical" with which to describe certain of the resolutions.

We haven't found it.

POLITICAL PARTIES look to their younger members for progressive ideas—but this is ridiculous. Perhaps Berkeley had one of those hot August days which sometimes come along to scramble the eggheads in that locale.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRATS resolved, for example, that the United States should resume diplomatic relations with Cuba. Somehow they succeeded in ignoring the fact that Communist Castro had stolen millions of dollars worth of American property, given his country over as a Russian base, and announced his intentions of extending Communist influence to Cuba's neighbors.

The Young Democrats suggests that the United States withdraw its forces from South Viet Nam. The U.S. has dispatched more than 10,000 men and millions of dollars in supplies and equipment to South Viet Nam in a major commitment to see the Communist guerrillas defeated. Viet Nam is thus an important point of confrontation with communism. The Young Democrats want the U.S. to back down from that confrontation.

They want to abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities. They also want to repeal the Internal Security Act, which guards against the employment of subversives in American defense facilities.

WHAT THESE resolutions amount to is an abject policy of retreat, defeat, humiliation and stupidity.

If this is the sort of promise these young men give us for the future, frankly we look toward that future with more than a little concern.

Liberty's Torch or Nikita's Shoe?

I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Dr. Edward Teller, the famed nuclear physicist, is also a keen student of politics. A few weekends ago, he was cruising about New York harbor in a friend's boat. As they passed the Statue of Liberty, one of the passengers suggested in jest that perhaps the old lady should come down inasmuch as she is a Gaullist symbol. Warning to his subject, he also noted that since the United States seems more warmly disposed toward Russia than France at present, perhaps a statue of Khrushchev should replace it. But what, he asked, should Khrushchev hold aloft in his hand, as the statue now brandishes the torch of liberty. "That's easy," replied Dr. Teller, "he should be holding a shoe."

IT'S A BRAVE POLITICIAN who dares to publish a book on politics, or any subject for that matter, in an election year. But that's what Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is doing. His manuscript of "The Liberal Response to the Conservative Challenge" has gone to the publisher for appearance next fall. This places McCarthy in the company of another courageous profile. We refer to President Kennedy, who will have a book on the history of immigration in the United States, in the bookstalls this winter.

THE NEW FRONTIER is beginning to show the strain. A White House staffer, identified as Donald Rogers, recently placed a phone call to the Minnesota state capital in care of "Gov. Andersen's press secretary." Andersen of course was unseated last spring by Democrat Karl Rolvaag. A quick-witted operator switched the call to Tom Roser, the former governor's press aide. Roser informed the White House caller that Andersen no longer is in office. There was a whistle of surprise on the other end of the phone. "You mean they've got a Republican governor out there now?" the voice said incredulously.

WASHINGTON IS BRACING itself for the big civil rights march on the capital scheduled for this coming Wednesday. Washington police are being outfitted somewhat like paratroopers on D-day. Some legislators are making sure they'll be some other place. Mothers are warning children to stay away from the expected mob; others are urging their children to take part in the show. Not since the days of Coxey's Army or the Bonus Marchers has the city made such preparations for a demonstration. An aura of optimism now pervades the atmosphere. Whereas it had at first been feared that the demonstration could turn into an all-out riot, the general feeling now is that the whole affair will be peaceful enough. Nonetheless, the citizenry of Washington and the city's officials will breathe a sigh of relief when Wednesday, Aug. 28, is past history.

A Rough Stretch in the Road

DAVID LAWRENCE

Who'll Pay for the Losses Caused by Capital 'March'?

WASHINGTON—Millions of dollars will be lost to merchants of retail goods and to businesses of various kinds on Aug. 28 in this city because of the fear of area residents to come to downtown Washington on that day during the "demonstration" which will bring from 100,000 to 250,000 persons to the streets of the national capital. Who is to pay these losses? Why should innocent citizens be penalized?

LAWRENCE

The mayor of a city usually decides whether a permit to parade or demonstration will interfere with a city's normal operations, and a permit is granted or refused on the basis of what the impact will be on the commerce of the community. This city has no mayor because the residents are not permitted to vote for their local government. A commission of three is appointed by the President to manage the affairs of the District of Columbia. So, for all practical purposes, the President is virtually the mayor here. The responsibility, therefore, for the losses incurred by private citizens rests with the federal government.

but a tax credit for the entire loss incurred? Most corporations pay a 52 per cent tax rate, which means that the company itself bears 48 per cent of a loss. Why shouldn't the government take care of 100 per cent of the loss when the government is responsible entirely for the granting of an official permit which allows a "demonstration" to be held that frightens the populace and causes it to avoid the stores that day?

Many companies will find that their employees will be too scared to come to work. It will be argued that this "demonstration" is for a good cause. But the government provides that charitable contributions to worthy causes are deductible for income-tax purposes. No such provision, however, has been made to cover "contributions" to the demonstration made involuntarily by employees as well as employers. Since Congress is virtually the "board of aldermen" for the District of Columbia, it is contended that Congress should take care of the losses incurred by innocent bystanders.

Whether the "demonstration" will be peaceful is anybody's guess. There are church organizations of white people in different parts of the country which are sending so many of their members by buses and special trains to participate that it looks as if the "demonstration" will be only partly composed of Negroes. The odds would seem to be in favor of its being a peaceful affair. But, as the time for the "March" approaches, the fears of local residents have by no means been dispelled.

NO MATTER how peaceful it turns out to be, the "demonstration" will set a significant precedent. How can the District of Columbia government now refuse a permit to any organization, no matter how unpopular its cause may be, to carry on a "demonstration" involving 100,000 or more persons? The Constitution, of course, recognizes the "right of petition," but this can be exercised as effectively by 60,000 people seated in a football stadium, with a television broadcast of the speeches made there, as it can be by a street parade or gathering of mobs.

There is nothing in the Constitution which says that the "right of petition" includes the right to disturb somebody's business, even for one day. But there is a clause in the Constitution which says that no person "shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

JACK ANDERSON

JFK, Nikita Have Wary Mutual Respect

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson has gone abroad to interview world leaders and report on the prospects for peace. The Washington scene is covered by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON—After nearly three years of crisis and confrontation, a grudging admiration has grown up between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev.

No two adversaries could be less alike. One is young, handsome, born to wealth, who has become the elected leader of a free people. The other is old, ugly, a self-educated peasant, who rose from oblivion to become master of the Kremlin.

Yet intimates assert these two opposites have developed a respect, amounting to liking, for each other.

Khrushchev has joked to visitors that if Kennedy had been born under the hammer and sickle, he would have made a good Communist. Kennedy has remarked that if Khrushchev had been born in Iowa, he could have become an Iowa politician.

But the President constantly reminds his aides: "never forget Khrushchev's aim is to bury us."

And Khrushchev, talking to a White House man in Moscow, said of Kennedy: "He's no relative of mine. He is a big capitalist, I am a Communist. I have a very definite attitude toward capitalists."

From intimates who understand the unique relationship between Kennedy and Khrushchev, here is a thumbnail sketch of the great poker game for peace and the two principal players who face each other across the globe.

The dialogue between them began with an exchange of cables in January, 1961, over the release of two U.S. pilots from Soviet prison. When the men were freed, Kennedy was encouraged. He had established communication with Khrushchev, and it had paid off. With persuasion and reason, perhaps wider understandings might be possible.

The new President took pains not to disrupt this delicate dialogue. More than once, he toned down statements which he felt might needlessly offend Khrushchev.

Kennedy went so far as to sound out the Kremlin, indirectly and unofficially, about calling off the cold war for six months during his administration's shake-down.

Apparently Khrushchev regarded this as naive, decided to find out whether it might also be a sign of weakness. He started bearing down on the East-West pressure points to test the young President's mettle.

As the tension tightened, the opponents' curiosity about one another grew.

BY THE SPRING of 1961, each was impatient to look the other over. Khrushchev dropped the first hints that it might be a good idea to get together. For Kennedy's part, he felt a personal encounter might also reduce the risk of miscalculation. So a meeting was set for Vienna.

The weather was sparkling as champagne, and so was the opening mood. Khrushchev was at his jovial best, Kennedy at his most charming.

When the talks reached the subject of Berlin, however, the temperature plummeted to zero. Khrushchev repeated his determination

Lt. Gov. Anderson—a Man With Eye on Bigger Things

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Some past California governors reputedly have been reluctant to leave the state.

They feared that the lieutenant governor, who becomes acting governor when the governor is absent, might fire the governor's appointees and reshuffle the administration. Other possible monkey-wrenches a lieutenant governor could throw at an absent governor: signing into law the wrong bills and wholesale prison pardons.

Under California constitutional law that gives the state's No. 2 man the full power as California's top executive when the governor is away, a mutiny by a lieutenant governor could occur.

But such a remote possibility did not deter Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown from taking a six-week European trip. Brown left California a week before the special session of the legislature concluded.

That placed the state at that key time in the hands of Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson.

Anderson, though he has tangled with Brown about national political personalities, has been a loyal aide on state policy matters. Brown obviously felt he could rely on Anderson to carry out his policy on the special session bills.

There probably is less rivalry between Anderson and Brown than existed between the capitol's two top men in any administration in modern California history.

ANDERSON

The last Brown-Anderson clash was at the Democratic National Convention in 1960. Brown tried unsuccessfully to deliver the entire California delegation to John F. Kennedy. But Anderson plumped for Adlai Stevenson and delivered a seconding address for the Illinois governor.

However, Anderson's recent role as the loyal aide brings to mind to some capitol observers that Anderson is credited with being an astute politician.

The capitol woods are full of would-be gubernatorial candidates if Brown decides to vacate the governor's mansion. By becoming the loyal Brown aide, Anderson is likely to be in line for support from Brown admirers when the day comes for the governor to step aside.

TRADITIONALLY, a lieutenant governor is seldom heard and even less seen—though he shares the morbid distinction with the vice president of being a heartbeat away from a major office.

However, the lieutenant governor's office has been an often-used catapult to bigger things in the political whirl. Eight California governors served out an apprenticeship first as lieutenant governor.

And though Anderson isn't in a spot where he attracts the headlines of a Gov. Brown, he still is in a key position for making top-level political friends and wooing future political support.

ANDERSON IS presiding officer of the Senate. Also, he is one of three members on the powerful State Lands Commission, the state agency that is boss over the oil-rich tidelands.

Anderson was a political longshot when he topped Harold J. (Butch) Powers from the lieutenant governor's office in 1959. Anderson, former mayor of Hawthorne, generally is regarded as a man who has his sights on bigger political offices in the late 1960s.

NAACP Asks More Than Equal Rights

EDITOR:

Our government talks about law and order but it appears it is more for law than order. The leaders of the NAACP have taken things in their own hands and it is time the people of this country wake up to the fact that we are being intimidated by the leaders of the NAACP. They now say they not only want equal rights, but they want more than equal rights. They say they want the best school teachers, the best in housing, the best in everything. All this in the name of Christianity. They demonstrate loudly and disorderly in the streets and pray and claim this a Christian effort.

Yet their leaders are demanding injustice and widening the gap between the races and causing hatred that was never there before. They demand preferential treatment; not equal treatment. They demand better school teachers, better social treatment. Now they have presented their grievance, why don't they leave their problems to the law of the land?

Thanks God for Billy Graham

EDITOR:

I wish to reply to the letter from a person who walked out on the Billy Graham crusade.

I feel very sorry for anyone who can listen to a dedicated man of God like Billy Graham without knowing that he is spending his life trying to save souls from being eternally lost. I believe that our Lord has a job for every Christian whether it be to clothe and feed the body or to save the soul.

As a Christian, I thank the Lord for Billy Graham. Mr. Farrett also states that Billy Graham gets wide coverage from all the newspapers. This is not true. I feel lucky if I can find over six lines on the back page of the Press-Telegram.

Offers Information on European Negro

EDITOR:

I have been a subscriber to your paper for a good number of years and I have seen a lot of articles which I knew were chopped-up truths, but when I read the article on Europe's criticism of the Negroes I thought it was about time somebody straightened you out.

With regard to the Negroes in Britain, every one of them came of their own free will and accord. If they don't like it, nobody or nothing is stopping them from going back to where they came from. In the USA the Negroes were all brought forcibly to this country by your forefathers so that makes you directly responsible for them, which in my opinion, is why Europe has the right to criticize.

Britain, at one time, had a lot of colonies including quite a lot in Africa. Now just for the record would you like to inform your readers just how much it is costing the USA to take care of them since USA prodded Britain out of them to give these poor, unfortunate people their independence.

1897—With "wets" fretting over Long Beach's anti-liquor ordinance and some residents angry about taxes, disincorporation of Long Beach was voted. After a few months, and before the year expired, residents decided they'd missed city services long enough and reincorporated.

The Prohibition Party won but sale of liquor continued in the city, resulting in the arrest of the proprietors of a place called the "Social Club." They were fined $100 but jail sentences were suspended. Citizens and the press still continued sharp criticism of the presence of "blind pigs" in the little town.

Irvine Bowl 'Figaro' Said Magnificent

By RACHEL MORTON
Opera in English got a great boost in a magnificent performance of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" presented by the Festival of Opera in the Laguna Irvine Bowl Friday night.

The singers were carefully selected and the diction of each one was excellent, with the result of long and frequent applause from the audience.

From the sparkling overture to the beautifully sung finale by the entire cast, the performance moved with pace, lightheartedness and professional expertness.

THE MARRIAGE of Figaro, is a comedy and hearing it sung in understandable English, the audience got a great kick out of the laughable situations, points that are entirely lost when the opera is sung in a foreign language.

Maralin Niska was a regal Countess, gorgeously gowned. Her rich soprano voice filled the bowl in voluptuous sound, especially in the difficult aria, "Where are the Happy Moments?" (Dave Sono).

Marni Nixon, who will be heard next Tuesday in our Long Beach Pops Concert, was a splendid Susanna. Pert, pretty and petite, she held the stage. Her floating soprano topped well the ensemble's singing, but the aria "Why So Long Delay?" (De Vieni, non Tardar) was a bit too big for her light voice.

COMBINING great artistry, unusual acting ability and professional proficiency with a wonderful bass voice, John Macurdy was a superb "Figaro." "The Marching Song, "Play No More" (Non Piu Andrai) was rousing and received warm applause.

A very handsome Count Almaviva, gorgeously attired Alan Gilbert, gave a very fine performance and his warm baritone voice was good to hear.

A singer to watch is Margery Mackay, who sang the role of Cherubino. Her lovely soprano was expertly handled in the well known arias, "Ah What Feelings Possess Me" (Non so Più) and "You Who Know" (Voi che Sapete) and her acting was irresistible.

HIGHEST comedy was displayed by Mary Mackenzie and Charles Gonzales as Marcellina and Bartolo, and their singing was equally experts. Also intriguing was the stuttering Antonio as sung by Jack Vanderlaan, and Marilyn Interlandi made a charming Barbarino.

The sets were very fine and the costumes beautiful. The large orchestra played well under the really inspired direction of Eugene Ober.

Opening Bids on Drains

1. P.T. Los Angeles Bureau
Bids will be opened Friday for construction of the $500,000 Harbor City storm drain.

Four separate drainage lines are to be built. The Board of Supervisors is expected to award the contract about Sept. 10.

One of the lines will run from Bixby Slough west of Figueroa Street to Eudora Avenue, then to Lomita Boulevard, and finally to termination between Van Tress and Frigate Avenues.

A second line connects with a completed drain at 259th Place and runs southwesterly to Western Avenue near 262nd Street.

LINE THREE starts near the intersection of 263rd Street and Bell Porte Avenue and runs to Anaheim Street, then to Frampton Avenue, north about 500 feet, then east to Vermont Avenue.

The final line extends south in Frampton Avenue for about 250 feet from the line to be built under Anaheim Street.

Plans for the drain were prepared under direction of Lyall A. Pardee, Los Angeles city engineer. Construction, operation and maintenance will be supervised by the County Flood Control District.

The project, financed by the $225 million bond issue of 1958, is due for completion next May.

IN MEXICO

Bermuda Shorts Get Wolf Whistle

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dave Taylor, Independent, Press-Telegram staffer and his wife Carleta are honeymooning in Mexico—via motor scooter. Here is another of his letters from Mexico.)

By DAVE TAYLOR

GUADALAJARA, Mexico—I can't qualify as the "ugly American" here.

While I may be a natural for the title at home, I suspect that Presidente Adolfo Lopez Mateos, chief executive of the Mexican Republic, would be the first to testify that in his country I'll never pass the physical.

The Presidente and I haven't met, but it appears that my knobby knees peeping out of a pair of threadbare khaki Bermuda shorts leave him absolutely speechless.

If you're motor scootering through Mexico, your wardrobe consists of the lightest clothes you can find that will roll into the smallest possible space in a duffel bag. For wife Carleta, Capri pants seemed like a cinch and for me, Bermuda shorts, of course.

HOW WAS I to know that in Mexico men just do not wear short pants?

We were warned that women here don't wear pants either, but Carleta brought a light shift dress for big city life, and she's been able to get away with scootering through the country in her Capris.

But I believe I have been whistled at over every mile of road along the west coast of Mexico. I say, "believe" because it's gotten to the point where when we hear a whistle, both Carleta and I look back to be sure which one of us is getting the attention. When it comes to beauty, after all, there's no accounting for taste.

OUR FRIEND, David Octavio Martin, a law student at the University of Guadalajara, invited us to the graduation of cadets from the Mexican Air Force Academy at which Presidente Mateos was to officiate and deliver an address.

I was anxious enough to see the Presidente, but a little shy about showing up in my abbreviated pantaloons. David, however, assured me that I looked swingin'.

We were late and the Presidente was already in the midst of handing out diplomas to the grads as about a dozen cadets roared overhead in a jet air show that might well have the "Blue Angels" turning green.

THE WHOLE SHOW was to culminate with the Presidente's address, but as we approached the bleachers, the attention of 4,000 spectators was suddenly distracted. They were looking at my legs!

The graduates were forgotten. The air show was forgotten. The Presidente was forgotten!

In a single breath the crowd let loose a long, shrill whistle followed by a mighty cheer, and the Presidente looked displeased.

He seemed even more uncomfortable when we took up positions near his own box and the whistling continued, because, being too late to get seats, naturally we had to stand!

The presentation of diplomas got to moving along pretty fast after we arrived and, when the last grad had his sheepskin, Presidente Mateos hopped out of his box, waved to the crowd and made straight for his plane on the field without so much as a "Friends, Mexicans, Countrymen."

DAVID CLAIMS the Presidente didn't make that speech because the crowd was too small. I'll probably never know the truth of the matter, but I will always wonder whether it was the crowd or my pants that was too small.

Dave's comment on the mystery wasn't too reassuring. "Don't worry, Tokoya," he said, "at least you're not the 'ugly American.' You are the pretty legs American."

L.B. Pupils to Receive Route Maps for Safety

More than 45,900 safe route maps will be distributed to Long Beach children on their first day back in school, Clifford Boutin, president of the Long Beach Safety Council said Saturday.

He said the maps will go to children in the Long Beach Unified School District and in many of the parochial schools.

They are part of a "Back to School" safety program sponsored by the Allstate Foundation in cooperation with the school district, Parent-Teachers Association, parochial schools and the police department, Boutin said.

Mrs. Fern Travis, school safety chairman for the Safety Council, said parents and children should learn the safest routes. This is the 11th year the city Engineering Department has prepared the maps.

Artificial Respiration Demonstration Set

A demonstration of mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration will be staged Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Long Beach YMCA board room, 600 Long Beach Blvd.

Demonstration will be made by Jerry Carver, Long Beach Red Cross worker, who will use a mannikin as subject.

The public is invited. A film, "That They May Live," will be shown.

Quiet March

CALNE, England (UPI) — Jacir Henley, a conductor, sat down at the piano to play part of a band march as he led a 20-piece orchestra. He struck the keys, but there was no music. A piano tuner had taken the strings out of the piano to repair them.

CORE Pickets Don Wilson Housing Tract in Compton

Congress of Racial Equality pickets Saturday moved from builder Don Wilson's Southwood Riviera Royale housing tract at Torrance to another of his developments — the Centerview subdivision in Compton — where about 30 demonstrators were on hand to demand desegregation.

CORE spokesmen said the picket lines in the Torrance tract were called off in a show of good faith before bargaining sessions begin between the Torrance City Council and CORE concerning recent mass arrests at the project.

More than 200 CORE pickets have been charged, formally or still face charges for earlier demonstrations in Torrance.

Most of the complaints allege trespassing while others charge violation of the city's new curfew ordinance.

RIFLE CLUB FOR JUNIORS

The Long Beach Junior Rifle Club will resume shooting on Sept. 21, Jack M. De Alba of the sponsoring police department announced Saturday.

Formed in 1951, the club has seen 6,000 youths from 12 through 19 go through a complete training program.

Diver's Body Found; Belt Flaw Blamed

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The body of a skin diver who disappeared last Saturday was found Saturday floating in Mission Bay.

The coroner's office said William Ball, 27, of El Cajon, apparently drowned. They said the belt containing his weights was improperly fastened and he may have been unable to surface on encountering some difficulty under water.

U.S. Asked to Quit Messing Up Weather

By United Press International

The United States came under attack from European newspaper editors last week over the "chicken war" and messing around with British weather.

Paris MATCH said the pre-war "primitive isolationism" of Americans has been replaced by a "sentiment of irritation, frustration and anger which shows itself in the form of patriotic touchiness."

It named the "chicken war" over Common Market tariffs against U.S. chickens as one of the causes for this "new sentiment."

Writing in the Belgian newspaper DE STAND-AARD, Belgian farmers' union adviser C. Bonn said, "the U.S. threats to recuperate through increased customs duties about twice as much as they will lose in foreign exchange because of the slowdown of chicken exports makes a grotesque impression."

"Moreover their game becomes all too transparent when one goes through the list of products which would be hit by these measures," he said. "Nearly all of them are goods giving stiff competition to the American industry."

In London, the DAILY MAIL said Americans should stop messing around "with our weather" and making "cock-eyed" predictions.

It said the U.S. Weather Bureau, in its long-range forecasts, wrongly predicted the last half of July would be cold and wet in Britain when it was hot. "So, at the end of July, they gave us a 'hot August'—and at once it turned dull, wet and chilly," the Mail said.

Commenting on the partial test-ban treaty, the Austrian newspaper DIE PRESSE said West Germany's agreement to sign merely "glossed over, not removed, strains in U.S.-German relations."

The Stockholm newspaper AFONBLADET referred to U.S. Senators "still hesitating to ratify the treaty" and said, "to familiarize American opinion with a new climate in world politics is more difficult than signing" the treaty.

The West Berlin newspaper KURIER said, "the opinion expressed often that the United States tolerates dictatorial regimes if they support American policy has not been clearly refuted by the development in South Viet Nam."

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

JFK Pressing for Tax Cut

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Kennedy made another strong plea to Congress last week for early enactment of his $10.7 billion tax-cut bill. Next year may be too late, he said.

Once again he tied lower taxes to the national economy, saying he was concerned that the present business recovery cannot be prolonged through 1964 without such a pump-priming stimulus.

ANTI-SPENDING Republicans and conservative Democrats are demanding the bill be sidetracked until next year, an election year. But the President said this was no time to gamble with national welfare. He described the economy as "slightly better" than in January but warned of soft spots that bode ill for 1964.

In furtherance of his campaign, he wrote to chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, declaring the budget could be cut despite the proposed tax reduction. He pledged also that spending would be curtailed wherever possible.

In related developments, Congress sent the President a bill extending the $309-billion temporary national debt ceiling to Nov. 30 to give the administration time to study the overall fiscal situation. Secretary of the Treasury C. Douglas Dillon warned Congress that there was "a compelling need" for swift action on Kennedy's bill to tax sales of foreign securities in U. S. markets to help stem the critical drain of gold abroad.

THE PRESIDENT also made an urgent plea for his revised $4.1 billion foreign aid authorization bill, but it fell on deaf ears in the House where members resent the continued outpouring of taxpayer dollars. The House passed the bill after lopping off $585 million and writing in unwanted curbs. The chief executive called the action "short-sighted, irresponsible and dangerously partisan." He added that for the first time the program had been subjected to "a shocking and thoughtless attack" by Republicans.

Kennedy must now rely on the Senate to salvage the program. He challenged critics to show the country it could buy more world-wide defense for less money. He also stressed that 80 percent of the money would go to U. S. industry, not overseas.

THE PRESIDENT clashed headon with Dr. Edward Teller, so-called father of the H-bomb, in defense of his nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia and Britain.

Teller asserted to three Senate committees in pre-ratification hearings that the pact has dangerous loopholes, especially regarding missile defense, and that Kennedy had halted vital atmospheric tests pre-

Drop Obscenity Charge in Sale of Miller Book

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Obscenity charges against employees of a Syracuse book store have been dropped because of the difficulty in proving they realized the novel "Tropic Of Cancer" was obscene.

City court dismissed the charges of selling obscene literature on the recommendation of Assistant Dist. Atty. J. Richard Sardino. The State Court of Appeals had ordered the three, fined $150 each last year on the charges, retired on the question of their knowledge of the book's contents.

At the same time, the Appeals Court declared the Henry Miller novel to be obscene.

The chief executive took sharp issue with this and reiterated that this country already has the necessary atomic power to obliterate Russia. And once again he said the United States would not relax its guard—that its laboratories and weaponers would always be ready to protect national security should Moscow break the treaty. He added bluntly that Teller's charge "is not valid."

Kennedy said he had no plans for a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan when the three major powers jointly register the treaty with the United Nations. He did say he might address the General Assembly.

MOSCOW castigated Red China for not joining more than 75 other nations, including Nationalist China, in signing the pact. It also warned the Peking regime to abandon its plans for mass production of nuclear arms. This was regarded as a strong hint that Khrushchev might cease military cooperation with Peking which had charged him with "selling out" to the United States in the test-ban negotiations.

Khrushchev widened the ideological split further by visiting Yugoslav President Tito whom Peking has branded the number one traitor to world communism.

ON THE turbulent racial rights front, the President declared it would be a mistake to assign job quotas to Negroes or any other group of citizens on the basis of race, religion or nationality. "We are too mixed in this society of ours to begin to divide ourselves on the basis of race or color," he told newsmen.

AT BIRMINGHAM, Ala., police fired guns into the air to end an angry demonstration by 2,000 screaming Negroes who were angered by the bombing of an integration leader's home.

In Oakland, Calif., Negro leader Donald Warden, 27, chairman of the Afro-American Association, warned Negroes they will not get far in the battle for equal rights until they acquire racial pride. "Throw away your bleaching creams and your hair-straightener, quit dropping out of school, quit flunking out—and get off welfare," he told them. "If you won't accept the challenge then admit you are inferior."

In other news spheres, Kennedy said U.S. intelligence officials estimate that there has been a drop in the number of Soviet troops in Cuba in the past two months. He did not give any figures but said the primary emphasis of personnel still there is on

"training" rather than concentrated military units. But he said even their presence was cause for concern.

The Senate Commerce Committee approved a bill providing for arbitration of the crisis-ridden railroad work rules dispute by an independent seven-man board.

THE BILL and a companion House measure may be rushed to passage early next week to head off a nationwide strike set for 12:01 a.m. Thursday. The board would hand down its findings within 90 days, but no arbitration edicts would be issued until all disputed issues are resolved through arbitration or negotiation.

Kennedy disclosed that babies in Utah had been exposed to radioactive fallout from nuclear tests, but that the extent of the hazard must be studied. He doubted, however, the health of any had been impaired.

Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee named Herbert S. Walters, 71, a conservative Democrat, to fill the Senate vacancy caused by the death of Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Walters will serve until next year's election. Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., fell heir to Kefauver's chairmanship of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee which under Kefauver had given big business a bad time.

At Edwards AFB, Calif., X15 space plane pilot Joe Walker, 42, set a new altitude record of 66 miles.

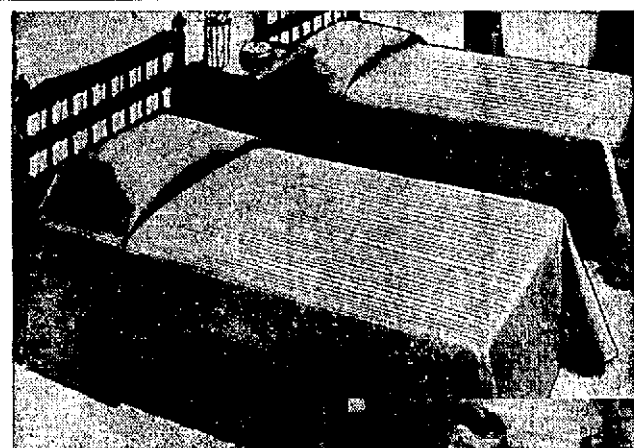

The President chatted by radio telephone through 44,000 miles of space with Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria via the Symcon II space satellite. It took only three-tenths of a second for their voices to cover the

3RD STRAIGHT LOSS, 2-1

Braves Defeat Dodgers

By GEORGE LEDERER
The Dodgers might be wise today to adopt a slogan, "end the waste or tighten the waist."
Saturday was another evening of wasted opportunities and performances by the league leaders, who dropped a 2-1 decision to Milwaukee.
The loss was the Dodgers' third in a row and enabled the Giants to move into a tie with St. Louis for second place, 5½ games back.

Down the drain went 5½ shutout relief innings by Bob Miller and three outstanding defensive plays by second baseman Jim Gilliam.
The Dodgers failed to score with two on, none out and the count 3-and-0 on Maury Wills in the seventh inning and muffed their final chance when Ron Fairly tapped into a game-ending double play on a first pitch by reliever Bob Shaw.

The Dodgers have scored only six times in their last 47 innings while leaving 35 runners on the bases.
Denny Lemaster (10-8) was the winner and the seventh lefthander to conquer the Dodgers in their last eight outings against southpaw pitching. It was Shaw, however, who turned back the Dodger threat in the seventh.

Doug Camilli opened the seventh by reaching base on a strikeout and Lemaster's wild pitch. Both runners were safe when first baseman Gene Oliver made a wild throw to second on Miller's sacrifice attempt and Lemaster left after running the count to 3-and-0 on Wills.

Shaw succeeded in retiring the side without damage as Wills fouled off two bunt attempts, then bounced into a double play and Gilliam fled out.
While this situation was serious for the Dodgers, there was some comedy relief for the ladies night audience of 41,918, including 36,479 paid.

Catcher Joe Torre and Braves first base coach Dixie Walker were ejected by plate umpire Stan Landes during a rhabarb in which Shaw and Torre claimed Landes made a strike-3 call on Gilliam.
Manager Bobby Bragan replaced Walker in the coaching box and, in turn, drew a warning from Landes when the Braves' bench kept up its heckling in the eighth. Bragan silenced his bench and drew laughs from the crowd with a "shhh" sign.
Dodger bats were silenced earlier by Lemaster, who allowed but five hits. Each came after two were out.
Miller helped himself with a single in the fifth inning and scored on Wills' double to left-center. Only one more Dodger reached third base.

Finals Today in Water Ski Spectacular

More Division Titles for Grabs
By JIM McCORMACK
The National Water Ski Championships wind up today, but it will take some doing to better Saturday's show.
Over 2,500 delighted spectators, sitting in the Marine Stadium bleachers, found out what it takes to be a member of the U.S. world team.
One team member captured her division crown and two others just about sewed up theirs in the most impressive day yet.
Dickie Ann Hoyt, a winsome 16-year-old from Fair Haven, N. J., carded a two jump series of 94-95 feet to capture the girls overall championship.
CHUCK STEARNS of Long Beach State and Bill Spencer of Sarasota, Fla., flashed impressive form to almost put the lock on their class titles.
Dickie stood third in overall standings when she began jumping, but her two efforts propelled her past Jeannette Brown of Cypress Gardens and Nancy Schnering of Sarasota into the top spot.
The 95 foot leap tied a pending world mark set by Miss Brown, also a member of the world team. Dickie's 95er was five feet better than she had ever done.
Stearns successfully defended his slalom crown, and then was one of only three overall contenders to make it through the trick event without falling. Stearns, Larry Pencho of San Diego and Mike Amsbry of Orange were the only title challengers to travel both 20-second legs without a spill.
Results of the tricks were not released Saturday, but Stearns stood head-and-shoulders above the field with only the jump to go today. Pencho, the world's best jumper, was the only serious threat to Stearns title defense.
SPENCER jumped 107 feet to capture the boy's jump. Spencer, who at 14 is the number one man on the U.S. world team, also won the boy's slalom, and has only his best event, the tricks, standing between him and his boys' crown.
Dr. Harry Price won a battle

Baker Goes All the Way, Rams Beat Dallas, 20-17

By JERRY WYNN
P-T Staff Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. — A day of drenching rain in Terry's town turned into a night of sunshine for the Rams.
Hometown hero Terry Baker sparked the Rams to a 20-17 victory over the Dallas Cowboys before a pro football record crowd of 29,349 at Multnomah Stadium Saturday night.

BAKER
It was the first win for the Rams in three pre-season games and the first for coach Harland Svare since assuming command of the club late last season. To add to the impact, Svare's parents watched the exciting contest as did Baker's mother.
Baker, the Heisman trophy winner from Oregon State, played all the way at quarterback, and passed his first major test as a pro splendidly. An adroit signal-caller, he completed 12 of 20 passes for 192 yards and his first touchdown pass as a Ram was the game winner. It was a 44-yard strike to Pervis Atkins in the final quarter.

The Rams had trailed 17-10 at halftime as Dallas' Don Meredith had picked apart the Ram defense with consummate ease. But it was a different story in the second half and the fired-up Rams limited the Cowboys to a net gain of 30 yards.
Rookie fullback Ben Wilson was another Ram hero. Playing in the same backfield as Jon Arnett, the Trojan twins gave the Rams ball control through most of the second half.

"Baker played a marvelous game, and called 99 percent of his own plays," said Svare, who was given the game ball in the dressing room.
How the game unfolded:

FIRST QUARTER
Cowboys 7, Rams, 0; Dallas drove 80 yards in nine plays to score the first time it had possession of the ball. So masterfully did quarterback Don Meredith mix his plays and so perfect was their execution, that the Cowboys never were faced with a third down.

There were passes from Meredith to Frank Clarke for 17 and Pettis Norman for 11 and runs by Amos Bullocks for 10 and Amos Marsh for 10. The touchdown came on a five yard pass from Meredith to Bullocks after Meredith had pulled two nifty fake hand-offs. Sam Baker kicked the extra point.

Cowboys 7, Rams 3: Dick Bass broke loose on a 45-yard run to give the Rams a first down on the Dallas 26. On third-and-eight, Terry Baker hit Bass for 12 on a flare pass and a first down on the 12. Bass ran for 2 and Art Perkins for 4, but on third down, Baker was spilled in the muddy infield for a 15-yard loss while attempting to pass.
Danny Villaneuva kicked a 28-yard field goal.
The Rams had another opportunity to score in the final seconds of the quarter when Al Hall recovered a fumble by Bullocks on the Cowboy 28. A 15-yard holding penalty against Frank Varrichione set the Rams back, and a long touchdown pass from Baker to Jim Phillips barely missed its mark.

SECOND QUARTER

Cowboys 10, Rams 3: A 52-yard pass from Meredith to Norman, in which the receiver outran defender Bobby Smith in a chase down the sideline, gave Wiswell and Jerry Flynn which proved so effective in getting Peterson to the nationals. Flynn still has a sore arm, however.

Somerville, Mass., the region 1 champion, provides Long Beach with its first opposition today at 11 a.m. (PDT). Radio station KFOX will broadcast at three-inning intervals, with the first airing between 11 and 11:30.

LONG BEACH, win or lose Sunday, will not play on Monday. It will play every day after Monday, or however long it remains in the double-elimination tourney.

The other six teams entered are Omaha, Roseburg (Ore.), Greensboro (N.C.), Memphis, Evansville (Ind.) and Washington, D.C.

Hurrying Pennel Crashes 17-Foot Barrier

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI)—John Pennel, hurrying to beat a thunderstorm, cracked the 17-foot pole vault barrier Saturday with a world record leap of 17 feet, ¾ of an inch.

"I've been looking forward to this. I felt relaxed and now I feel great," the former Coral Gables high school track man said after his feat in the Gold Coast AAU track and field meet at the University of Miami.

He broke his own world record of 16 feet, 10 and ¼ inches, set in London Aug. 5. Pennel helped lead the U.S. track team to victories over Russia, Poland and Great Britain in this summer's European tour.

An unknown before he began breaking world records as a vaulter for Northeastern Louisiana State, where he is a senior, Pennel soared easily over the bar at 15 feet and then 16 feet in working up to the record try.

His mother and father and dozens of hometown friends were watching him.

He cleared the bar the first time at 17 feet

¾ of an inch, hustling to make his try when he saw a thunderhead bearing down on the field and heard thunder rumbling.

"Let's get it over with before it rains," Pennel told officials. As it turned out, the storm passed over.

After authorities measured the bar and accepted the vault for formal submission as a world record, the 23-year-old Memphis, Tenn., native tried three times unsuccessfully to clear the bar at 17 feet, four inches.

"He had just cooled off while they were measuring the record," said University of Miami coach Robert Downes, a longtime friend and tutor of Pennel. "But I predict he's good for 17 feet, six inches."

Pennel used a fiber glass pole for his vault. In Seattle, former record holder Brian Sternberg exclaimed "great" when informed of Pennel's feat. "I knew he would do it."

Sternberg had held the record of 16-8 and had been Pennel's chief rival until an accident July 2 left him paralyzed.

By JERRY WYNN

"Now pitching for the Dodgers, Ron Perranoski," are the sweetest sounds to ripple through Dodger Stadium this season. For it summons into action the greatest relief specialist since the Red Cross, the most popular fireman since Fiorello LaGuardia and the coolest pitcher since Milwaukee began pouring beer.

Perranoski's left arm has been the right arm for the Dodgers all season. Only in his third year in the majors, the pleasant 26-year-old pride of Paterson, N.J., is the most effective pitcher in baseball with a 13-2 record and 1.79 earned run average.

There has been talk, Ron, that you are overworked. Are you getting tired from the long trips in from the bullpen?

"No, I'm not overworked and my arm feels great. I prefer to work three or four days in a row, and then have a day off. I had five days off on the last road trip, and that was too long. The important thing for a relief pitcher is pacing. You must not burn yourself out warming up in the bullpen."

What do you do in the bullpen to pass the time away?

"It is hard to feel the excitement of a game because I know I won't be called in for at least the first five or six innings. The fellows in the bullpen just gab about things from space to Mickey Mouse. We once played a touch football game in Milwaukee, but that was frowned upon quickly."

What do you think about when you come in to pitch?

"While I'm walking in, I'm thinking about who the hitter is going to be. When I'm ready to pitch, I try to concentrate on my control... whether to pitch to the inside or outside corner of the plate. It doesn't bother me to have men on bases. Only the hitter is important. My job is to make him hit my pitch."

Do you think it's tougher to be a relief pitcher than a starter?

"Yes, because normally you have to come into a game in the late innings when the score is close and the game depends on every pitch. One bad one and you lose. Starters have more leeway."

When you roomed with Dick Radatz at Michigan State, did either of you dream of having careers as relief pitchers?

"No, we were both strictly starters. Dick had great stuff then, and I knew he would be successful in the majors. We're still good friends."

As a boy, did you have any baseball idols?

"Yes, I was a Yankee fan and my heroes were Joe Page and Tommy Byrne, both lefties. Page was the greatest relief pitcher I ever saw."

Is there any hitter besides Henry Aaron who gives you the most trouble?

"I'd say that Stan Musial is the toughest, left-handed hitter for me. He waits for his pitch. And Aaron is getting easier. I got him out for the first time in my career on our last trip to Milwaukee. If nothing else that made it a successful season for me."

What has been the greatest thrill of your career?

"Striking out Cepeda and Mays to end a game against the Giants late last season. I came in about the fourth inning and shut them out until the ninth when Pagan hit a two-run homer to make the score, 5-4. Then I got Cepeda and Mays."

What do you like to do most outside of baseball?

"I love golf. I play about four or five times a week in the off-season. I shoot in the low 80s, but I bet I'm the only gofer who hits wood shots left handed and iron shots right handed."

If you could trade places with any other athlete, who would you choose?

"I wouldn't trade. It was always my ambition to pitch in the major leagues, and I'm happy right here with the Dodgers."

And so are the Dodgers happy to have Ron Perranoski.

Packers March On, 26-7

Rip Bears With Late Explosion

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers, down at halftime 7-6, exploded in the second half behind the passing of Bart Starr and a rock-ribbed defense for a 26-7 victory over the Chicago Bears in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

A record crowd of 44,592 watched the Packers win their fourth successive game from the Bears in this annual Midwest Shrine Classic.

It was the first exhibition loss of the year for the Bears and the defending champion Packers' third win against a single loss, to the College All-Stars.

Starr completed 15 of 22 passes and only penalties and a bit of lethargic playing kept Green Bay from taking the lead earlier than they did—midway through the third period.

The Bears scored first on a three-yard pass from Bill Wade to Mike Ditka with just seconds to play in the first quarter. The play climaxed a 57-yard drive and a penalty for offside against the Packers set up the touchdown.

GREEN BAY came back in the second quarter with Starr passing 19 yards to Ron Kramer for a touchdown. Jerry Kramer's extra point attempt was blocked by J. C. Caroline and the Bears took their one-point lead into the locker room at halftime.

Starr came back passing to Max McGee and Boyd Dowler to lead the Packers' second touchdown drive the first time they got the ball in the third period. McGee made the score on a six-yard pass from Starr.

Then came what could be considered the turning point. After the Bears had moved 86 yards to the Packers' two, the Green Bay line stiffened and took the ball on the one.

A 37-yard field goal by Jerry Kramer, a 34-yarder by Gary Kroner and an intercepted pass returned 24 yards by Rookie Dave Robinson finished the Green Bay scoring.

FIELD GOAL FELLS STEELERS

Colts Win in Last 6 Seconds

ATLANTA (UPI)—Place-kicking specialist Grady Wade kicked a 10-yard field goal with only six seconds left Saturday night to give the Baltimore Colts a 17-14 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

An overflow crowd of more than 18,000 packed a converted baseball park to watch the exhibition between the two National Football League teams. It was a closely fought battle right down to Wade's field goal. The Steelers almost tied it up at the final gun but Lou Michaels' desperate 50-yard field goal attempt fell short.

The Steelers scored first midway through the first period on a 61-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ed Brown to halfback Buddy Dial. The Colts tied it up early in the second period on a four-yard pass from veteran quarterback Lamar McHan to end Raymond Berry.

The Colts took the lead for the first time late in the third period on a 32-yard run by halfback Tom Matte, but the Steelers tied it up again midway in the fourth period on a four-yard plunge by Tom Tracey.

Wade converted after both Baltimore touchdowns and Michaels after the two Steeler touchdowns.

Dallas a first down on the Ram 41. Sam Baker soon came in to kick a field goal from the 45.

The Rams threatened momentarily when Terry Baker connected with Phillips for 33 yards to the Dallas 43. Baker was spilled on three successive attempts to pass. Villanueva punted to Nat Whitmyer, who fumbled and rookie Gary Henson recovered for the Rams on the Dallas 20.

Rams 10, Cowboys 10: 11 took the Rams four plays to score, the big one a 17-yard pass interference penalty against Mike Gachter on an end zone loss from Baker to John Adams. On second down from the one, Art Perkins smashed over for the touchdown. Villanueva converted.

Cowboys 17, Rams 10: Dallas scored a touchdown with 56 seconds left in the first half on a three-yard pass from Meredith to Clarke. It was a third down play in which Meredith pulled in the Ram defense to look for a run, and flipped to the wide-open Clarke in the end zone.

The tally climaxed a 74-yard, 14-play drive by the Cowboys highlighted by passes from Meredith to Norman for 16 and 26 yards and the running of Don Perkins, the ace Dallas halfback seeing his first action of the season.

THIRD QUARTER

Cowboys 17, Rams 13: Danny Villanueva kicked a 23-yard field goal for the Rams with 11:55 elapsed in the quarter after the Rams had marched from their own 13 to a first down on the Cowboy 13.

FOURTH QUARTER

Rams 20, Cowboys 17: on the first play of the final quarter, Baker passed for his first Ram touchdown. It was a 44-yard beauty to Pervis Atkins, who out-legged Gachter for the ball, caught it in full stride on the 8 and then struggled the final few yards into the end zone. Villanueva converted.

The Rams had taken the ball on their own 44, and a pass from Baker to Arnett for 9 set up the touchdown pass.

Biggest Marlin Season in Years

This year has all the appearance of a record-breaking marlin season for all of Southern California, but particularly for that section of the Pacific ranging southward from Dana Point to the Coronado Islands.

A late check Friday with the Marlin Club of San Diego showed that 149 billfish had been weighed in there since the start of the run more than a month ago. The 209-fathom bank was one of the favorite places, and has been for several days. Also, the 43-fathom bank where the albacore were so prevalent for more than a week has been terrific for marlin.

Most of the billfish are being caught by private charters and by yachtsmen who specialize in that type of fishing. However, some fish have been caught from live-bait sportfishing boats and by owners of small outboard cruisers.

The largest fish weighed at San Diego was 270½ pounds, caught by Homer T. Main, San Diego, on medium tackle Aug. 15. The Marline Club weighed 11 fish Wednesday and eight on Thursday.

The Balboa Angling Club had weighed 107 fish through Wednesday, with most of the fish coming from waters off Dana Point, Laguna Beach, Oceanside and Catalina Island.

The Long Beach weighing station in the Marina has counted six fish. Lee Rainwater, Lakewood, got one weighing 144 pounds, and Jerry Chrisman, Long Beach, took another that weighed just four ounces more than Rainwater's fish.

THE TUNA CLUB OF AVALON had weighed in a total of 20 marlin through Thursday, with Milt Shedd getting the largest—264½ pounds—on heavy tackle. The heavy run of fish around Catalina seems to be just starting.

In all of 1962 only 12 fish were weighed in at the Tuna Club. This year's present figure remains a long way behind some of the Tuna Club's record years. Here are some of those figures: 1959—356 fish; 1960—160; 1961—33.

The Tuna Club's greatest year of all time was 1940 when 401 fish were weighed at the famous Avalon clubhouse. It is interesting to note that a 60-year total of the Tuna Club—1903 to 1963—shows 6,459 marlin and 146 broadbill.

Long Beach anglers who have been trolling between Dana Point and San Diego, sometimes as close as five miles to shore, report that the water seems to be filled with billfish. They even compare the sights of feeders, jumpers and tailers to those off the tip of Baja California.

On my trip aboard the Pacific Queen a week ago I saw two marlin fins. One angler tried baiting a fish with a bonito but never saw any action.

I'M ALMOST AFRAID TO MENTION albacore; they are so darned unpredictable. In an earlier column last week I said that the boats were taking from 100 to more than 200 fish each per day. The day that column appeared the longfins almost disappeared. Some boats even drew dry runs.

However, on Friday, Pierpoint Landing's Freedom reported 105 fish at midmorning. The boat was only eight miles off the east end of San Clemente Island. A sister-ship, the America, was fishing farther south and east, along with many boats of the San Diego fleet, and getting fewer fish.

Even with the albacore playing hide-and-seek, the large boats are filling with capacity passenger loads almost every day. The anglers seem to sense that time may be running out and they want all the fish they can get.

In answer to a request that I clarify my position on sportfishermen selling albacore, I hardly think that's necessary, inasmuch as I have always opposed such a practice. The suggestion was made in Andy Anderson's column, FISHIN' ALONG THE COAST, which appears every Tuesday.

I have a high regard for Andy, but on that particular subject we disagree. I believe in strict fish limits and feel that sportfishermen should never have the right to sell their catches.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Colorado fish and game officials inform us that the western Colorado season for deer hunting begins Oct. 19 for a two-week run and Oct. 28 in the eastern part of the state. In addition, there are special hunts ranging from mid-August to late December. If you wish full information, write Colorado Game and Fish Department, 6060 Broadway, Denver 16, Colo.

Hermosa Beach is going to match the Wildlife Conservation Board's $300,000 and start construction of a $600,000 public fishing pier. Three cheers for that city, and let's hope that Long Beach gets a start soon on its new Belmont Pier.

Calexico is going all-out to get its share of the dove-hunting crowd Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. That city is calling it a Dove Hunters' Fiesta and even Mexicali across the border is joining in the fun with a live pigeon shoot on Aug. 31.

There also will be trapshooting on the day before dove season opens, a dove hunters' dance, a dove hunters' breakfast, plus giving away an automobile.

Dove shooting should be terrific throughout the entire Imperial and Coachella Valleys. The population is estimated at a much higher figure than in 1962 and even that figure set an all-time record. Large numbers of Long Beach hunters will be taking part in Sept. 1 opener.

Quast Beats 16-Year-Old for Third Amateur Crown

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. — Steady-playing Anne Quast Welts, a Mt. Vernon, Wash. schoolteacher, won her third Women's National Amateur golf title Saturday, beating spunky little Peggy Conley of Spokane, Wash., 2 and 1.

Mrs. Welts won the first hole of the 36-hole match from her 16-year-old opponent on Taconic Golf Club's 6,195-yard layout, then had to battle through 26 more holes before taking the lead again—this time for keeps.

Two down after 16, she applied the pressure with a sparkling run of par golf midway through the afternoon round. She also won the crown in 1958 and 1961.

Turnabout--Yanks Picked in U.S. Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—The No. 1 world's ranking in amateur tennis will be the prize in the national championships starting here Wednesday, and for the first time in a decade a couple of Yanks—not the Aussies—are favored to grab it.

Chuck McKinley, the Wimbledon champion, and Dennis Ralston, the hottest commodity on the courts at the moment, are expected to sweep through their respective halves of the draw and set up the first all-American men's final since 1953. Tony Trabert was the last U. S. winner in 1955.

McKINLEY, the butterfly ball bomber from San Antonio, Texas, and Ralston, the rangy stylist from Bakersfield, Calif., have comparatively easy roads to the semifinals while dangers lurk for their chief rivals, Roy Emerson of Australia and Rafael Osuna of Mexico.

McKinley is seeded No. 1, followed in order by Emerson, the 1961 winner; Ralston and Osuna.

By an ironic twist, the pendulum in women's tennis has swung from the United States to Australia just as the men's division has taken the reverse turn. There appears no stopping Margaret Smith, the tall, muscular star from Sydney, seeded No. 1.

Top Tandems Vie in Nat'l Doubles Finals

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Defending champions Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox of Mexico and the U.S. Davis Cup pair of Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston swept into the men's final for the third straight year at the National Doubles Tennis Championships Saturday.

Although they're top seeded, Osuna and Palafox will be the underdogs in Sunday's title match.

The Mexicans outbattled seventh-seeded Ronnie Fisher and Cliff Buchholz Saturday, 5-7, 8-6, 8-6, 6-4 while Ralston and McKinley were extended to five sets by British Davis Cuppers Bobby Wilson and Roger Taylor.

THE AMERICANS finally prevailed 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2. Earlier, they had completed the last two games of a 7-5, 8-10, 6-4, 7-5 quarter-final triumph over Don Dell and Frank Froehling.

In the women's competition, Australians Margaret Smith and Robyn Ebbenn, easily turned back England's Deirdre Catt and Liz Starkie 6-3, 6-4 to join Darlene Hard and Maria Bueno in the Sunday final.

In the senior men's finals, 49-year-old Gardner Mulloy collected his 25th national championship but first while paired with longtime partner Bill Talbert, 45, in the senior section.

Olympiad King in Close Derby Win

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — Mrs. Connie M. Ring's Olympiad King, an even-money favorite, and the 7-1 outsider, Ralph Lowe's Big Raff, captured the split divisions of the 19th running of the Del Mar Derby before 19,100 fans here Saturday.

Olympiad King, carrying top weight of 126 pounds in the second half of the 3-year-old special, was all out to get home by a neck over Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Johnson's More Megaton. And closing fastest of all at the finish was a 30-1 outsider, Clement L. Hirsch's Mary Mel, light weight of the nine-horse field with 100 pounds. The latter filly was just a neck back in third place and four and a half lengths in front of another filly, Louis Rowan's Curious Clover.

Ridden by Johnny Longden, Olympiad King was sent after the lead early, battled with Broom II around the first turn and was carried out badly turning into the backstretch. Longden had to bear down on the pole from the half mile to home and the effort took its toll as Olympiad King was dead tired in the final sixteenth and barely lasted.

Olympiad King ran the mile and a furlong in 1:47 4/5 and paid $4, $3.60 and $3 across the board. More Megaton returned $8 and $5 and Mary Mel paid $7.60.

CRIMSON SATAN WINS

Carry Back, one of racing's leading money winners, stands in stall with groom Matt Ready after being withdrawn from Washington Park Handicap because of a chipped bone. Carry Back will return to stud.

Carry Back Hurt, Racing Days Over

CHICAGO (AP)—The return to glory campaign of Carry Back, 1961 Kentucky Derby winner, was abruptly terminated Saturday.

The fourth leading money winner of all time, owned by last in the 10-horse field, Mrs. Katherine Price, suffered a splashed through the a chip in the sesamoid bone in muddy stretch, survived a claim of foul, and won by two lengths.

Trainer Jack Price said the chip occurred while Carry Back galloped around the Ar preparatory to his second run the latter's jockey, Henry lington Park race track preparatory to his second run on his comeback trail later in the day in the $100,000-added Washington Park Handicap. Price withdrew the 5-year-old from the race and said the horse would be placed in stud at a still unselected farm.

WITH CARRY BACK out $3.80, Piper's Son returned of the race, Crimson Satan $18 and $11 and B. Major was made the favorite at 2-1 $3.80.

Carry Back Hurt, Racing Days Over

The fourth leading money winner of all time, owned by last in the 10-horse field, Mrs. Katherine Price, suffered a splashed through the a chip in the sesamoid bone in muddy stretch, survived a claim of foul, and won by two lengths.

Trainer Jack Price said the chip occurred while Carry Back galloped around the Ar preparatory to his second run the latter's jockey, Henry lington Park race track preparatory to his second run on his comeback trail later in the day in the $100,000-added Washington Park Handicap. Price withdrew the 5-year-old from the race and said the horse would be placed in stud at a still unselected farm.

WITH CARRY BACK out $3.80, Piper's Son returned of the race, Crimson Satan $18 and $11 and B. Major was made the favorite at 2-1 $3.80.

So He Can't Act!

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD, July 27 (AP)—In status-happy Hollywood, Gene Autry rates socially someplace between the Bowery Boys and Tarzan.

That's not because Gene wears cowboy boots and draws in a friendly, homespun Oklahoma way. Gene, you see, never has made a movie that cost more than $200,000.

No Gene Autry movie ever had a gala Hollywood premiere. Few ever played the town except on the bottom end of a double bill.

But at the bank Gene is a star.

He can buy and sell half the movie tycoons in Bel-Air and Beverly Hills.

Each performer got $500 extra pay.

MUSIC PUBLISHING
—Golden West Melodies and Western Stars Music Publishing Co.

TV PRODUCTION
Flying A Productions, sole owners of the Range Rider, Annie Oakley, Gene Autry, Champion and The Buffalo Billy Jr. series. There are 336 shows that will be shown for years because the kid audience turns over every few years.

HOTELS—Hotel Continental, Hollywood, and Ocotillo Lodge, Palm Springs. The Gene Autry Hotel Company plans to build or buy another dozen or two hotels, Autry says.

His holdings also include cattle ranches and "some scattered oil interests."

Actually, oil helped create the Autry fortune. Once two of his movie friends drilled for oil in Texas and got dry holes. Autry sank 17 wells within 10 miles of the dry holes. Each became a major producer.

Autry seems surprised when people express amazement at his business acumen.

"Actually, it's the thing I do best. What I do worse is sing, act and play a guitar."

BUT it was the guitar and country voice that hatched the golden eggs. From his movies and recordings came Gene Autry shirts, Gene Autry six-shooters and all the other paraphernalia from which western stars draw royalties.

Columbia records claims he is the only singer who ever made five records each with a sale of more than 5 million. One, "Rudolph the Red-Nose Reindeer," is nearing 8 million.

The others are "Here Comes Santa Claus," "South Of The Border," "Be Honest With Me," and "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine."

Gene looks more like perfect casting for a Texas tycoon nowadays than a romantic singing cowboy. He's added poundage but his personality has never changed. "I learned years ago I never would be a great actor," he says, "so I figured the best thing to do is to stay natural."

OF ALL the Autry interests, which gives him the greatest satisfaction? "The Angels," he answers with no hesitation. The onetime Oklahoma semi-pro ballplayer adds:

"I've loved baseball all my life. I'd have given up everything I've ever made to be a big leaguer."

'FIVE FINGER EXERCISE'

Solid Match of Play and Players

By SAMUEL A. BOYE

If you can stick out the first few minutes during which the play climbs out from under the pile of English blankets smothering the lives of its protagonists, Chapel Theater's production of Peter Shaffer's "Five Finger Exercise" will reward you with one of the finest community theater projects available this season.

Directed with fine control (and a sharp eye to giving the actors something to do at all times) by Ed Long, and set-designed by Phyllis Palmer to keep the limited action flowing cleverly, the Torrance production scored as a "solid match" of play and players (unlike the "dream" wedding of the play's mother, Louise Harrington).

British playwright Shaffer's play catches the Harrington family of four in an uneasy reunion in one of those country-houses so peculiarly suited to the "crosssex" British weekends which insist on inheriting them. The entrance of the fifth finger in the family—Walter, a rebellious son of a Nazi—sets up the fulcrum of the play's action. Engaging him as a tutor, the Harringtons end up by placing him under a sort of emotional occupation, each "finger" of the original family in its own delightfully fiendish way: Pamela (the daughter) in her own bouncy, teen-ager way, straying hands and all; Mother Louise at once dangle and devouring her superior "play-Emress" culture; son "Jou-Jou" Clive straddling the dying echo of latent homosexuality and the croak of emerging manhood; and Father Stanley charging with Colonel Blimp brusqueness in all directions and at all parties.

LIKE ALL good directors, Long paces his players through this maze with a cultivated "ear" to the playwright's intentions. And this is the only way to handle a Shaffer play. The writer hardly wastes a line, is delightfully stingy with physical action, the play gaining its slowly rising momentum from its interlocking intestines of character grinding "off-tackle" from the action implicit in the dialogue itself.

Fortunately available are the services of all-pro Margaret Middleton as Louise, an actress who knows how to remain on-stage and participate in the exit of a fellow-

As mother-doting son Clive, Dennis Rhodes, a handsome, blond boy promises fine things in the theater. He is the most "English" of the cast, speaking the language with a rare intelligence. Robert Baller as German tutor Walter "redeems" all the stage Germans we have recently been afflicted with, by playing the part with great subtlety and jet-black hair to boot. Papa Jack Daly (Stanley) and Daughter Melinda Plowman (Pamela) are game and adequate. They all slip into suburban American conduct at times—as when Mother Louise makes her daughter "put" on her coat with Sonny Liston finally—but it is to the cast's credit

Night Sights

ON THE UP AND UP

Construction workers on the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway enjoy a free ride up pine-topped Mt. San Jacinto. They commute daily from the desert floor, where summer temperatures often soar above 100, to the tram's mountain station, more than 8,000 feet above Palm Springs, where it is a pleasant 70 degrees. World's biggest and longest single-lift mountain skyway opens to the public Sept. 14.

Pay $1,000 for Inaugural Ride on Sky Tramway

By VERN ANTHONY

Anyone for a 15-minute ride, cost $1,000?

It won't be half-way around the globe. It will be for the official inaugural trip of the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway scheduled for Sept. 12.

Eighteen presidents and six vice presidents of top California companies are among those who have paid $1,000 each for the honor of making the first trip with Gov. Edmund Brown and other national and state dignitaries.

SHOW BUSINESS notables such as Bob Hope, honorary mayor of Palm Springs; Bing Crosby; Dinah Shore and Art Linkletter have been invited to take part in the dedication ceremonies.

Effective Sept. 14, the aptly named 'Golden Ride' will be much less expensive. Rates to the public will be at $3.50 weekdays and $4 on weekends. Fares for children will be $2.25, but 50 cents more on weekends.

THE TRAMWAY, two years in the building, is the largest and longest of its kind in the world.

From a canyon location six miles from downtown Palm Springs two Swiss-made cable cars will lift 400 passengers per hour to the 8,516-foot level of Mt.

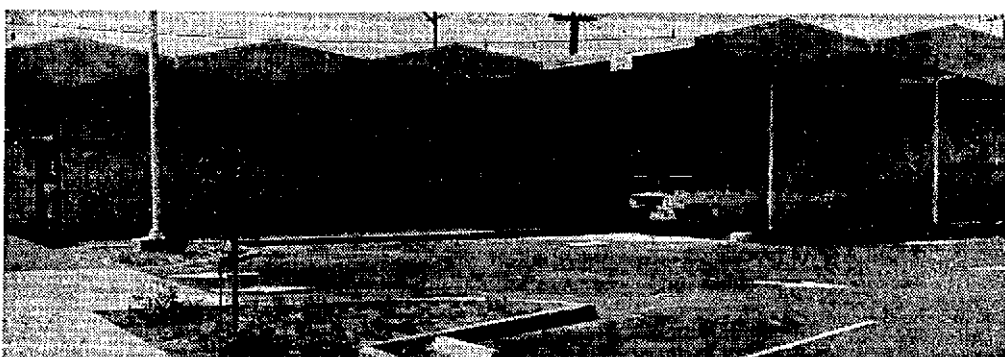

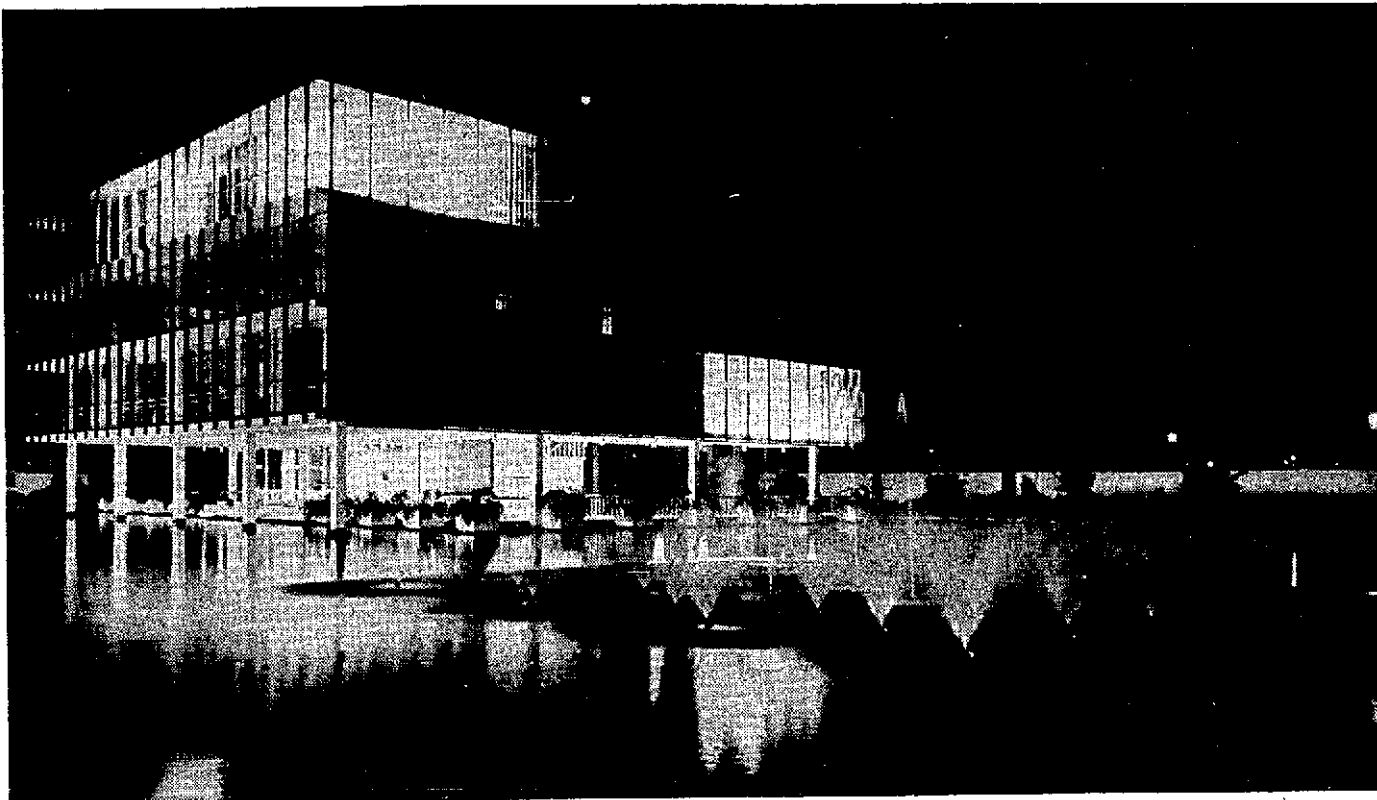

San Jacinto. Object — cool temperatures, dining, winter sports, hiking and spectacular sightseeing.

The tramway will open up previously inaccessible state park areas for year-round recreation.

THOSE MAKING THE $1,000 trip will include:

O. N. Miller, president of Standard Oil of California; Fred Oldendorf, president of California Electric Power Co.; Hulsey Lokey, president of Interstate Hotels, Inc.; Leland Kaiser, chairman of the board of Insurance Securities, Inc.; Sam Banowitz, president of National Properties in Chicago; Al Hart, president of City National Bank; John Chudacoff, partner in Davidson-Chudacoff Meats; Willard Keith, president of Marsh & McLennan-Cosgrove and Co.; Irwin Schuman, president of the Palm Springs Riviera Hotel; W. A. Knight, vice president of Tanner Gray Line; Herb Samson, vice president of Security-First National Bank; Dewey Metzendorf, vice president of Western Hotels; Walter Smith, vice president of Pioneer Aluminum Inc.; and Fred Ingram, vice president of the Bank of America.

A few spaces on the inaugural run still are available. Anyone want to be taken for a $1,000 ride?

SP Opens New Freight Depot, Razing Old One

Southern Pacific and its subsidiary, Pacific Electric Railway, have announced opening of their new air-conditioned Long Beach freight station and district office at Eighth Street and Pico Avenue.

The old freight station, several hundred feet away, has been vacated and will be razed shortly to make way for straightening a curve in the Long Beach Freeway.

RAILROAD officers on removal of the old freight hand to host civic and Chamber of Commerce officials at the ribbon-cutting ceremony. Opening of the new station, which will permit re-formation of improving auto routes into the harbor area. Razing of the old building, said, will speed plans to improve the freeway situation.

Superintendent Long was host to the group at a luncheon served in his private railroad car spotted near the station.

AMONG THOSE present were Mayor Edwin Wade; City Mgr. John Mansell; Councilmen Bert Bond and Emmet Sullivan; Harry Krusz, executive vice president of the Chamber; Henry Jordan, Bureau of Franchises and Public Utilities; Paul McKenzie and Glenn Irvin of the Chamber; and Diane Olson.

Escrow Association to Hold Conference

Long Beach area escrow company representatives will be among those present at the California Escrow Association's 1963 Educational Conference Wednesday at Los Angeles. Sessions will be held at the Billmore Hotel.

DRIVERS, HERE'S WHERE TO GO NOW

New Department of Motor Vehicles headquarters for Long Beach is now ready at Pacific Avenue and Willow Street. Motorists will be serviced from north side of building.

AT PACIFIC AND WILLOW

Motor Vehicles Dept. in New Location

Long Beach offices of the State Department of Motor Vehicles will open for business Monday morning in a new building at the northwest corner of Pacific Avenue and Willow Street, it has been announced by Howard R. Link, manager. This rings down 22 years of service in the offices at 700 E. Broadway.

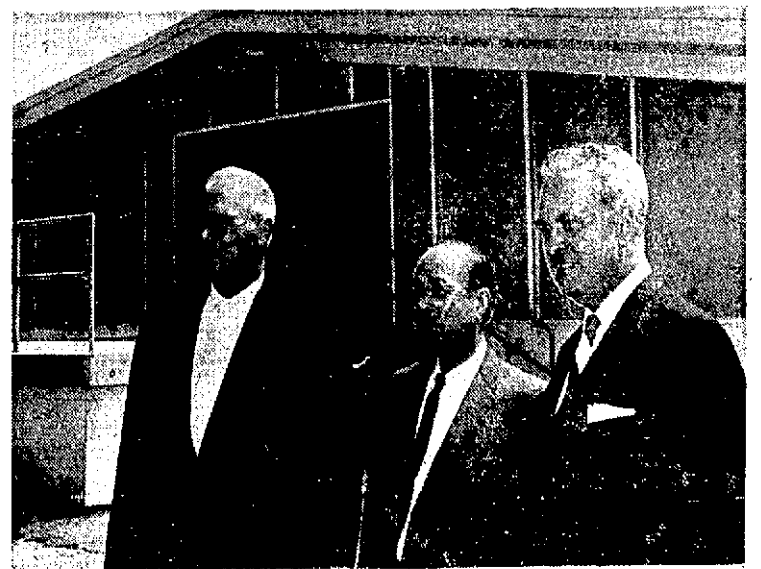

Equipment from the old office, Link said. The building was constructed on state-owned land by J. E. Burrell & Sons, Inc., the new headquarters will serve all of Long Beach, San Pedro, Compton, Hawthorne and Torrance. Sixteen additional personnel are being assigned to the new location.

THE NEW BUILDING and represents a $500,000 investment. In addition to normal driver licensing, registration and financial responsibility service, the office will house a new sub-headquarters for the department's driver improvement program.

THIS PORTION OF ANTELOPE VALLEY FREEWAY NOW IN USE

Heavy line shows section of Antelope Valley Freeway officially opened to the public Friday. Elaborate dedication ceremonies were held at the west end and a big motorcade made the "first ride" over strip.

Code Hails Increase in All-Electric Construction

The number of Gold Medalion (all-electric) homes and apartments built in the Southland during the first six months of this year is nearly double the number constructed during the comparable period last year, according to figures just released by Southern California Edison Co.

A significant increase of 192 per cent in total-electric residences completed and connected to Edison lines was reported by A. L. Code, district manager.

He added that the number of Bronze Medalion homes and apartments—those meeting high electrical standards but not completely electrified—built during the first six months of 1963 increased by 54 per cent.

TOTAL IMPACT of the Medalion program — both gold and bronze—has shown a 94

He pointed out, "is the fact that we've had comparable dramatic gains each year since the Medalion Program was launched in 1958."

"The electric industry's program to upgrade the electrical quality of residential construction is making a vivid impression on builders and homebuyers, particularly in Southern California."

Ellis-Schrader Continues July Business Gains

Ellis-Schrader, Inc., Realtors, did it again in July. Its salesmen sold 93 houses, an increase of 21 per cent over July in 1962 and 48 per cent above the July, 1961, total.

J. Tyson Ellis, president of the real estate firm, credited the increase to two factors: Southern California is a fertile field for the real estate industry. Secondly, the firm's special training school is giving the sales staff a more professional quality. The school is conducted for the company's licensed real estate salesmen.

Map Submitted for 16-Unit, Two-Story Condominium

A tentative map has been filed with the City of Long Beach for the construction of a two-story, 16-unit condominium apartment development at Las Lomas and Anaheim streets, according to Jack Spahn of E. L. Pearson and Co., civil engineers and condominium consultants.

The project, by Bernard Solomon, builder and developer, will have the units placed in a two-story, high rise configurations.

"This will have the effect," Spahn explained, "of dividing the high cost of land among a group of individuals, thereby reducing the overall cost per unit."

Spahn was chairman of a recent condominium conference attended by 1,100 of the Southland's leading builders and developers.

FEMININE SPEAKER WINS

BY BANKERS Management Education Emphasized

Educational factors in banking as vital to management progress were emphasized by three speakers at a managers' conference held Thursday night at the Edgewater Inn Marina Hotel.

More than 100 banks in the Harbor District Chapter, American Institute of Bankers, were represented at the dinner program. Presiding was one of the few women to hold such an office, Mrs. G. Bernadine Kepka, chapter president.

SPEAKERS were W. J. Breen, Bank of America; Robert B. Kemble, First Western Bank; and Thomas B. Perry, Security First National Bank, all vice presidents in personnel departments.

Training class plans were discussed in detail and stress was placed on self-development for advancement in management jobs. Banks help defray costs of training courses for their employees, it was explained.

A musical program by two singers and a pianist from the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Co. concluded the program.

Open $12 Million Industrial Tract

SANTA FE SPRINGS—Development of a $12 million industrial tract is under way on a 100-acre site in Santa Fe Springs.

The land, valued at more than $4.5 million, is located near Slauson Avenue, one-half mile east of the new San Gabriel River Freeway, and five minutes from the Santa Ana Freeway. The tract is being developed by the John B. Kilroy Co.

New Barker Store Will Open Monday

LA MIRADA—Barker Bros. will open a new 40,000 square foot store here Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the La Mirada Shopping Center. This will be the 13th branch unit operated by the 83-year-old home furnishings concern.

A preview showing was held Thursday, with Richard Gold, president, and William R. Williams, store manager, as hosts.

Counseling Firm Opened by Shaheen-Hodges Co.

Another step in the age of commercial, industrial, business real estate specialization took place the past week with opening of the new Shaheen-Hodges Co. offices in Long Beach at 210 E. First St.

This occasion marked a new trend in professionalization by syndicating the talents of leaders from many areas as a consultant team for client counseling in the commercial, industrial and investment fields.

The newly formed corporation is headed by Edmund F. Shaheen, president of the Thomas Shaheen Co. of Compton, and Robert C. Westmyer, president of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co.

Both Shaheen and Westmyer said they have long recognized a growing need in Long Beach for a highly specialized commercial, industrial and investment firm.

INITIAL EMPHASIS will be on the downtown area of Long Beach. A complete study of land occupancy and use already is under way.

Both Westmyer and Shaheen have been active in the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, the California Real Estate Association, the Brokers Institute and the National Association of Real Estate Board.

IN ADDITION to Westmyer and Shaheen, the Shaheen-Hodges Co. will be surrounded by an advisory staff for client counseling. The staff includes a tax attorney, a market analyst, an architect, a CPA and other real estate counselors.

The firm will handle only

Realty Education Authority to Talk

Facts about the Long Beach City College fall classes pertaining to real estate will be told to members of the North Long Beach Realty Club at their breakfast meeting Thursday.

Speaker at the 8 a.m. session at the Midnight Sun, 5925 Cherry Ave., will be Richard 'Dick' Jones, of the college's Business and Technology Division. The school's educational program in real estate matters is reputed to be one of the outstanding of its kind in the nation.

Development Slated at Manhattan Beach

MANHATTAN BEACH—The city's last available large vacant plot for commercial use, a 20-acre parcel on the northeast corner of Sepulveda and Manhattan Beach boulevards, is to be developed this fall.

Plans have been disclosed by the architectural firm of Stiles and Robert Clements. A discount store will occupy half of the site. Other tenants will include a bank, loan association, etc.

VIRGINIA MAY
Department Manager

Woman Gets Escrow Post

E. Tennyson Moore, president of Moore Realty, has announced appointment of Virginia May as escrow manager of the firm's Escrow Department, located in the Administrative Office at 4151 East Carson St., Lakewood.

The department is the center for closing of sales for Moore Realty's nine offices in Long Beach, Lakewood and Orange County.

Mrs. May is well known to Southlanders. She has served as president of both the California Escrow Association and the Long Beach Escrow Association. She received her training with the Bank of America, and until coming with Moore Realty, was vice president and Long Beach manager for Western Mutual Escrow Corporation.

Moore Realty's future expansion plans call for a separate Escrow Division under Mrs. May's supervision in that area and the expanding Orange County area with the opening of two new offices in coverage in Long Beach.

CPAs Will Hear Bradley Tuesday

"Accounting Credit" for the Investment Credit will be discussed by Louie M. Bradley Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Long Beach-Orange County Chapter of the California Society of Certified Public Accountants.

There will be a 6:30 social hour, followed by the dinner program at the Jolly Roger restaurant in Anaheim, according to Roger Sturgis, chapter president.

Bradley is a partner in the firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery.

Solomon Emcees at Exchange Club Event

ANAHEIM — A quadri-in-stallation of officers for Orange County Exchange Clubs was held here last week in the Magnolia Room of the Disneyland Hotel.

Al Solomon, governor of District 16, was the master of ceremonies. Solomon is president of Alco-Pacific Construction Co. and a civic leader in Orange County.

California State President Paul Marsh presided, and installed the officers.

Cal Meekins, newly elected president of Garden Grove's Exchange Club, Jean Solomon, new head of the Exchange-ettes from that city, Chuck Reynolds, Laguna Beach's new president, and Bill Finley of the Central Orange County group, led the installation list.

OTHER OFFICERS installed were Ray Michener, first vice president; Les McDaniels, second vice president; Chuck Eras, secretary; and Shelly Solomon, treasurer, of the Garden Grove club.

During the coming year, Mrs. Solomon will be assisted by Dona Michener, vice president; Mary Ameden, secretary, and Eileen Fricke, treasurer, Board of control members are Joan Olds, past president; Camille Drey, Adele Needle, and Beth Carlson.

Laguna Beach's new officers are Charles R. Reynolds,

Dr. Wilbur Wagner and John Sheehan.

Central Orange County and Finley's fellow officers are Dewey Shultz, first vice president; Gene Montgomery, second vice president; Carl Pellers, secretary; and Ralph Carmen, treasurer.

CONTRIBUTING to the convention atmosphere at this unusual event was Dennis Jackson, grand sweepstakes winner of the state's Search for Talent Contest.

Jackson, a talented drummer, is an art major at Pasadena State College.

The first meeting of California's State Board of Control members was another highlight of the installation.

Grove Building Nears $22.5 Million Mark

A 59-bed convalescent home valued at $156,000 pushed new construction in Garden Grove this year toward the $22.5 million mark.

The permit was issued during the week to Dr. Raymond W. Conn, Beverly Hills, with co-owners listed as Ida Conn, Harold and Dorothy Shrier.

The 13,630-square-foot facility will be erected at 13392 Taft Ave.

New construction thus far this month has totaled $1.7 million. The year's total as of August 1 stood at $20.7 million.

Flying Low

NEW YORK (UPI)—The travel agency industry estimates 30 per cent of all air travelers to Europe this year will fly under low-price charters or group fares, more than double the number last year.

CONGRATULATIONS IN ORDER

Data Processing Speeds L.A. Airport Hotel Construction

"Computerized" construction of the International Hotel at the entrance to Los Angeles International Airport is 21 days ahead of schedule, and is setting a building speed record, Robert Carre, general manager of the hotel and vice president of International Airport Hotel System, Inc., has announced.

The electronic brain that is programming the construction now predicts that the 14-story hotel will be completed in January, 1964.

The speedy construction job has been scheduled by the Critical Path Method first developed for the federal government in the Nautilus submarine and Polaris missile programming, he explained.

SINCE WORK BEGAN in February, the 8.5 acre site has been excavated, 70,000 cubic yards of earth were removed, 1,256 pilings were driven, 5,200,000 pounds of steel were erected and 28,000 yards of concrete placed.

The 630-room structure is the largest and one of the first non-defense "computerized" buildings in the world.

An IBM 1401 data processing machine has been fed data and has scheduled the work. The programming was done by Robert Little, project manager and vice president of Fred Howland Co., general contractor. Jerry Doyle of Adams Associates, Anaheim, has served as consulting engineer.

"ANY MAJOR JOB consists of an accumulation of small pieces of work, and the scheduling of one piece of work hinges upon the completion of another," Carre explained. "Initially, the contractor analyzed the entire job and broke down all pieces of work under 6,000 item headings. Data on each item was fed into the electronic brain—how long it would take to complete, and what work goes before and after. The machine then programmed each job."

"After the initial draft, the contractor analyzed the critical items, those that may impede the work, and reviewed more advantageous ways of doing the critical jobs."

Interior Design Contract Awarded

Contract for interior design, decoration and food service installation of the Gourmet dining room, cocktail lounge and coffee shop of Pacific Holiday Towers in Long Beach has been awarded to the commercial interiors division of Barker Bros.

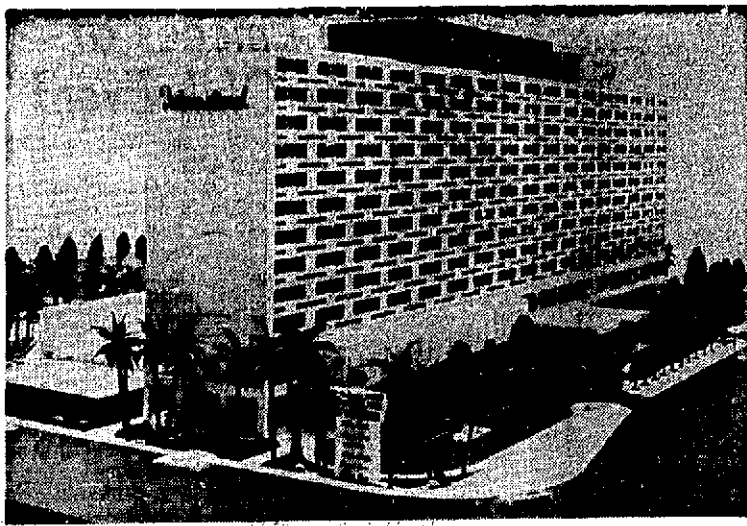

Robert W. Craig, head of the division, said that the new high rise apartment project at 1900 Ocean Blvd. is expected to be completed by year-end. Barker Bros. is working in cooperation with the Walter Minskoff Construction Co.

$6,200 Fire Damage Repair Permit OK'd

STANTON — Eight building permits for construction totaling $20,455 were issued during the past week by the Stanton Building Department.

Jack Seal, 7712 Daymor St., took out a $6,200 permit to repair fire damage. Monroe Realty, 8431 Monroe St., took out permit for a $6,500 air-conditioning and remodeling project.

Other permits were issued to: Ivan Black, 8061 Catherine St., garage, $2,400; V. L. N. Construction Co., Inc., 8401 Alhambra, office partitions, $200; John Gilmore, 1556 Cov. St., patio, $1,130; George Farris, 1640 Dale St., room divider, $15; John Warrick, 719 Beck St., swimming pool, $3,000; and H. E. Marshall, 10653 Ashbury St., patio, $650.

HOTEL MODEL ON DISPLAY

This Los Angeles "hotel" was built in six weeks by two men. It is a model of the 14-story International Hotel at the entrance to Los Angeles International Airport, and has just been installed in offices at the site of construction of the real hotel, at the corner of Century and Sepulveda Boulevards. Construction of the real hotel is setting a speed record. The building will be completed in January, 1964. It will be the largest airport hotel in the world, and first major hotel to be built at Los Angeles in more than eight years.

Most Electronics Groups Optimistic Over 'Outlook'

Electronics manufacturing bookings over the comparable period a year ago, while only optimistic about the outlook for business in the third quarter of this year, a survey conducted by the Western Electronic Manufacturers Association (WEMA) indicates.

Despite more cautious forecasts earlier in the year, 72 per cent of the companies surveyed now predict third quarter increases in order

Firm Names New Sales Director

George C. Otto, long-time real estate sales executive, has been named sales director for Douglass Construction Co. of California.

San Clemente, John C. Douglass, president of the firm, announced Saturday.

GEORGE OTTO

Prior to joining Douglass Otto was divisional sales manager for a large Southern California home building firm and directed sales in the communities of Hacienda Heights, Palm City, La Habra and North Tustin.

As sales director for Douglass, he will be in charge of marketing and sales for the firm's subdivision developments of Bay Cliff Village, Colony Cove (San Clemente) and Pacific Island Village within the Laguna Niguel area of South Laguna.

Plant Maintenance Costs Rise in U.S.

Increases in labor costs and the price of materials in the United States, combined to boost the cost of plant maintenance in June. The climb is expected to continue in July.

The June index, as compiled by Factory, McGraw-Hill publication, hit 188.3, compared with 187.5 in May (1947-100). The estimate for July is 188.5.

The equipment component of the index rose 1.1 points, while costs in the building and facilities section edged ahead 0.2 of one point.

Petrolane's Revenues Up

Revenues of Petrolane Gas Service, Inc., for the 12 months ended June 30, 1963, were $28,558,000 compared to $24,242,000 in the 1962 period. Net income was $2,162,000 against $2,049,000 in the prior year.

Based on average number of shares outstanding, earnings were $1.30 per share in the 12 months of 1963 as compared to $1.28 on a fewer number of shares in the prior year.

R. J. Munzer, president, also announced from his offices at 1600 E. Hill St. the establishment of company-operated I.P.-gas marketing outlets at Fairbanks and Juneau, Alaska.

"These moves assure the continued favorable marketing position of Petrolane in this region of excellent long-term I.P.-gas potential," he added.

$10 Million Paid for Land Bought at $3.2 Million

SAN RAFAEL (UPI) — Hawaii fancier Chinn Ho has announced sale of the Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club and surrounding lands to the Draper Companies of San Francisco for $10 million. Ho's firm had bought the entire acreage in 1956 for $3.2 million.

Ho, president of the Capital Investment Co. of Honolulu, and Jerome G. Draper, Jr., president of the Draper Companies, described last week's transaction as one of the largest of its kind in Northern California.

The overall development, known as Marin Bay and located in Marin County on the northwest shores of San Francisco Bay, was a project of Latipac, Inc., and Latipac Perini Co.

Latipac is a subsidiary of Capital Investment Co. and Latipac-Perini was a joint venture. Latipac bought out the Perini interests on March 31 this year.

The Draper Companies bought the golf course and clubhouse, perimeter lands and the China Camp along the bay shore, a total of approximately 1,000 acres, for $10 million.

In addition the Draper Companies have a two-year option to purchase adjoining North Valley, also approximately 1,000 acres, for $3.4 million.

Carloadings Drop

Total carloadings moved over Santa Fe System lines for the week ending Aug. 17 were 30,479 compared with 31,721 for the same week a year ago.

On-line loadings were 19,990 compared with 20,982 for the corresponding week last year.

Buena Park to Get New Apartments

BUENA PARK—Two apartment developments totaling $273,127 boosted construction in Buena Park to $302,369 during the week, according to records in the office of H. A. Chamberlain, building superintendent.

Permit for construction of a 21-unit apartment development with cabana and carports, at 6851 Dale St., was issued to Dale Terroce Inc., 6420 Dale St. The valuation was listed at $187,660.

Permit for a 10-unit apartment and carport costing $85,467 was issued to G and K Co., Anaheim. The structure will be erected at 8252 California St.

R. Costa, 8505 Waverly Pl., took out permit for construction of a $22,835 single family dwelling.

Rigoli Joins New American Building Center

Gus Rigoli, former general sales manager of Build 'n Save Stores, has resigned his position there to join with Bob Marks in the new American Building Center, 3626 E. Cerritos Ave., Los Alamitos.

For the past four years Rigoli was one of the pioneers of the mass merchandising concept in Southern California. He is a graduate of Woodbury College and was associated for several years with Fuld, Johnson & Co., Certified Public Accountants, in San Pedro.

As the American Building Center plans unfold, he will be in line for the second store. Recognizing that lightness is not always best, Rigoli helped formulate the plans for American Building Center, which will turn back toward service and high ticket consumer selling.

Katella Realty Opens Office in Elsinore

ANAHEIM — Melvin R. Schantz, president of Katella Realty, Inc., has announced opening of a fifth office at 17975 Grand Ave., Elsinore.

Mike Pawlick, a captain in the Marine Corps and retiring after 20 years, will manage the new office.

As part of Katella Realty's expansion program, the Garden Grove Boulevard office last week moved into a larger building at 8470 Garden Grove Blvd.

BIG HOMES PRICED FROM $20,950

The second unit of Lark Village offers large homes such as this priced from $20,950 to $25,900 and may be purchased for as little as $395 down. The homes are in the new community of Fountain Valley.

Lark Village's Second Unit Appeals to Buyers

The second unit of Lark Village is proving to be just as popular as the first, states Charles W. Hester, developer of the Fountain Valley community. According to Hester, the first unit sold out in less than 30 days and if present sales continue the second unit will be sold out in about three weeks. Lark Village offers one and two-story homes of three, four and five bedrooms, family rooms and two full baths. The homes are priced from $20,950 and can be purchased for as little as $395 down, plus costs. * * * * *

AMONG THE interesting innovations in Lark Village is a "Future" room in the two-story models. This 19'x26' room can be used as a rumpus room now and as the family grows it can be converted into two bedrooms, or two smaller bedrooms and a playroom. This area has a bath plumbed for future use. Lark Village lists among its outstanding features block models.

Ethics Ban Realtor Use of Stamps and Premiums

BELLFLOWER — Use of trading stamps and premiums to attract business, while regarded as ethical and acceptable in many fields, is considered unprofessional in real estate and damaging to the dignity of the calling, according to Bob Prigmore, president of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors. Realtors are charged also "to present a true picture and avoid exaggeration," in their advertising. Prigmore said, referring to interpretations of the Code of Ethics recently issued by the National Association of Real Estate Boards of which he and the local board are members.

This book presents practical applications of the association's Code of Ethics by the Realtor to his client, the public and his colleagues. IN ONE CASE CITED, the book points out that the offering of a "free" refrigerator, television set, automobile, or trading stamps as an inducement to the public to contact a Realtor is unprofessional and in violation of Article 3 of the NAREB Code of Ethics to which all Realtors subscribe. This Article reads as follows: "It is the duty of the Realtor to protect the public against fraud, misrepresentation, or unethical practices in the real estate field. "He should endeavor to eliminate in his community any practices which could be damaging to the public or to the dignity and integrity of the real estate profession. The Realtor should assist the board or commission charged with regulating the practices of brokers and salesmen in his state." * * * * *

HOUSEWIVES' DREAMS COME TRUE

Record Adoptions

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Child Welfare Department placed 367 children for adoption during the last fiscal year, a record for the agency.

Abundance of Storage Space Provided in Troy Hills Home

"It's not easy to keep ahead of feminine requirements for closets and storage, but the Troy Hills '700 Plan' comes pretty close," maintains Jim McCarthy, vice president of The McCarthy Co., co-builders with Sant Construction of the popular Fullerton community, offering homes for immediate occupancy.

"Women are delighted by this plan's big walk-in closet, with built-in drawers, double shelves, and cedar-lined blanket storage—just one part of the luxurious, full-wing master bedroom suite," he added.

THE "700 PLAN" master suite has a dressing room and private bath, with built-in double basin pullman. Its bedroom "view corner" has a big garden window facing a recessed outdoor planter court, and right-angled to the window are sliding glass doors which open to the rear terrace.

On the opposite side of the house, separated from the master suite wing by living room, dining room, entry hall and kitchen, is another bedroom wing, with hallway, two bedrooms and family bath. Bedrooms have large wardrobe closets; there's a linen closet in the hall; and a guest closet is located in the front entry foyer.

More storage is provided in the attached double garage, just outside the kitchen-garage door, by an extended storage-utility area, with an outside door to the side yard.

OTHER FEATURES popular with homemakers, according to McCarthy, include the

Enderle Gardens Introducing New Concept in Development's

Sunday, Aug. 26, 1963—R-7

Enderle Gardens, the first each one entirely separate completed, so arranged in a garden center of homes of its kind in Orange County, will sign and styling—all located in a 20-acre park with common greens, flowering trees and plantings with year-around maintenance.

This newest concept of home ownership, Enderle Gardens, is a community of exclusive individual homes—

Three years in the planning stage, Enderle Gardens will consist of 62 homes when noted throughout Tustin and Orange County for building fine custom homes.

"We built Enderle Gardens," the Nelsons said, "to fill a long wanted need of small but expensive homes for those adults and adults with older children who no longer wanted the expense of large homes with heavy upkeep."

In keeping with the desire of those clients interested in smaller but fine homes, the builders rearranged the floor plans to eliminate unneeded bedrooms and family rooms but emphasized the large living rooms with fireplaces, large master bedrooms, formal dining rooms, and large covered patios of fine architectural design.

"WE ALSO insisted that every standard of high quality in building design and appliances be put into these homes that ordinarily we build into $75,000 homes," the Nelsons stated in announcing the pre-view.

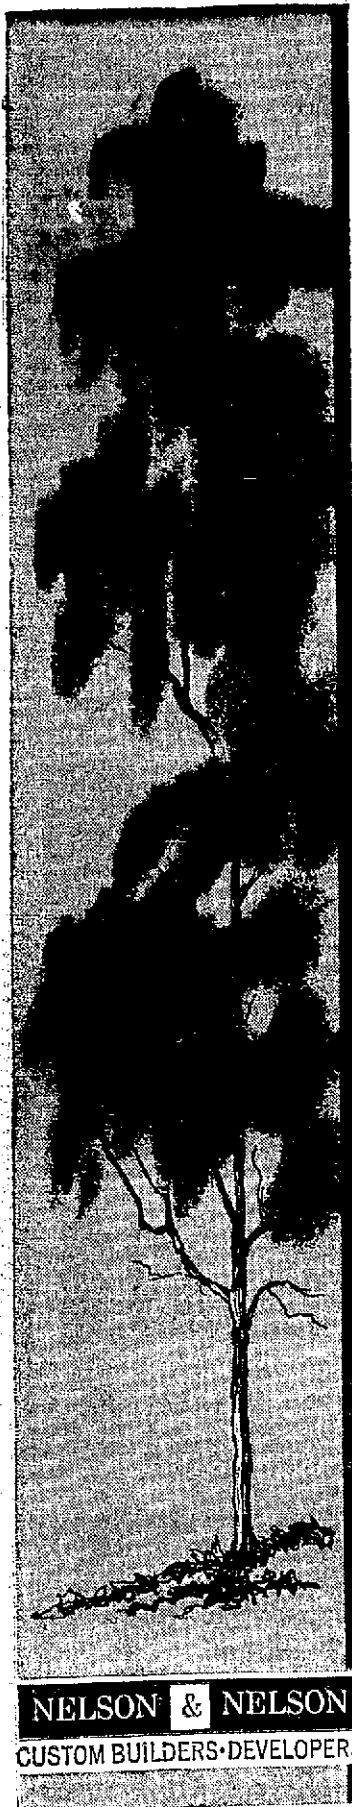

Every home has its own styling and every home has its own individual floor plan—and every home is located so the extensive glass areas and glass sliding doors look out on long vistas of cultivated landscaped beauty.

FHA Selling More Homes to Negroes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) is selling more homes to Negroes under a policy which it feels is not only consistent with the dictates of human dignity but with good business practice.

The homes have been dumped in the lap of the government because the owners were unable to make the payments. As the insuring agent, the FHA had to make the mortgage good.

The FHA is passing the word around that these homes—many of them in all-white neighborhoods—are available to all buyers, regardless of race.

IT IS GETTING the point across by using a little muscle and then seeing that its action gets as much attention as possible.

The FHA recently called in an area broker in Ohio to answer charges that he was reluctant to show these government-owned homes to representatives of Negro real estate firms.

The government acted after receiving several complaints from Negro prospects.

The broker vigorously denied any discrimination, but he resigned rather than face a showdown with FHA over the issue.

AREA BROKERS are en-

Sales Exec Named by Zinc Corp.

The Howard Zinc Corporation has appointed Gil Gusland sales manager for its Home and Recreation Products Division.

Howard Zinc, with plants in Long Beach and Fremont, Ohio, is the world's largest manufacturer of auto seat covers and convertible tops.

The nationwide Sure-Fit auto top and seat cover retail stores also are a franchised division of the company.

According to N. G. Zink, vice president and general manager, Western Division, Gusland will be sales manager for hassocks, clothes hampers, decorator pillows, cushions, patio furniture pads and related items which the new Home and Recreation Products Division now is marketing.

Gusland was formerly merchandise manager of the Electric Spray and Wright Saw Division of Thomas Industries and had been with Montgomery Ward.

gaged by the FHA to maintain the foreclosed homes and also to show them to homebuyers or local real estate firms who might be interested in listing them. They are supposed to be available to all realtors.

For more than a year now each of the broker-managers has been required to sign a pledge that he will not discriminate in showing the homes.

The recent action by the FHA is the first crack-down on one of its managers. Agency officials are hoping it will help emphasize the agency's desire to make the homes available to all comers.

At present the FHA has 47,000 homes, most of which were picked up because of mortgage defaults. The majority are in the lower price ranges, many around $10,000.

There are large concentrations of such homes in Texas, Louisiana and Florida.

Amusement Park Deal Announced

John M. Morehart, president and chairman of the board of Pacific Ocean Park, Inc., and Harold L. Valentine, chairman of the board of Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., jointly announced last week that agreement had been reached for the acquisition of P.O.P. by the Virginia Corporation in return for a substantial interest in the Virginia Corporation by Morehart.

The transaction has been approved by the boards of directors of both companies, but remains subject to the approval of the stockholders of Virginia, whose shares are listed on the American Stock exchange, and to certain other conditions.

One of the terms of the agreement is that the management and operation of the Santa Monica amusement park remain unchanged under Morehart, who four years ago acquired it from Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., and the Los Angeles Turf Club, Inc.

35 Courses for Bankers

Bankers throughout the harbor area will again be going to school this fall under the AIB program.

The Harbor Chapter of the American Institute of Banking will conduct 35 classes in banking and business subjects in 19 locations throughout this area. This was announced by Forest Emard of the First Western Bank who is second vice president of the harbor group of bankers.

The harbor area extends from Hawthorne to the Orange County Line and north to include Compton and Norwalk.

Expensive Vandals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Replacing school windows smashed by unruly students will cost the American taxpayer $40 million this year, according to a survey by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

Choosy Thief

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—A used car was stolen during the night from an automobile dealer's lot. The following night the auto was returned and a newer model was taken.

OLD WORLD CHARM

Combining the new with the old in charm of decor is illustrated here in this picture of one of the four major courts at the new Meredith Manor townhouse apartments in Fullerton. This scene illustrates the beautiful surroundings beneath 60-year-old Mission olive trees and winding walks around the sculptured pools that the residents enjoy looking out upon from their private patios and balconies.

Townhouse Apartments Now Leasing

Elegance, quiet classical beauty and the best of the modern design are the keynotes to the $3.5 million luxury Meredith Manor Townhouse Apartments built by Eddy Meredith, well-known Orange County builder.

The expensive apartments, three years in the planning stage, are located between Harbor and Lemon on Orange-fair Ave. and consist of 160 units of one, two and three-bedroom, all-electric, air-conditioned apartment homes for adults. The new apartments were opened in July and are now leasing.

MEREDITH MANOR is planned around four major courtyards complete with 60 year old Mission olive trees, courts and screened for winding paths for strolling and four sculptured pools olive trees.

amid a park setting lush with plantings of flowering shrubs and plants.

The apartments are said to be the finest apartments in Southern California. Features of Meredith Manor include private entry halls, gold wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes throughout, living rooms with fireplaces, large master bedrooms each with its own stall shower and bath; formal dining rooms, GE kitchens, complete soundproofing of all walls, ceilings and floors and completely air-conditioned.

Meredith Manor apartments are all planned with private patios and balconies with facades of lacey ornamental wrought iron overlooking the year old Mission olive trees, privacy by the giant Mission olive trees.

Two Fashion Home Units Selling Fast

FEW REMAIN TO SELL

Only a few homes remain to be purchased in both Fashion Homes communities in Huntington Beach and Westminster. A choice extra bonus and immediate occupancy are incentives to inspect the big three and four-bedroom, family room homes.

Immediate occupancy is being offered by the Fashion Homes developments in Westminster and Huntington Beach. Both are very near the sold-out stage with home buyers receiving their choice of an extra bonus at no additional cost at both communities.

Models remain open daily from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. during this closing out period, according to the builder, Marvin B. Johnson.

THE BIG three and four-bedroom, family room homes have received the Bronze Medallion award for their all-electric kitchens featuring Hotpoint built-in range, oven and dishwasher. Hardwood floors on raised foundations are a feature at the Westminster development; while block fencing is included at Fashion Homes—Huntington Beach.

VA and FHA financing are available with full prices from $21,950 at Westminster and from $19,250 at Huntington Beach.

Huntington Continental Has 17 Town Houses Available Now

Following an initial sellout of 760 homes in 5 weeks, 17 "extra" new homes are now available at Huntington Continental Town Houses, according to Jack Scougall, sales and marketing manager for the new community. Scougall said that unexpected business transfers have made the additional homes available for immediate purchase.

Huntington Continental, originator of "Town House Living" in Southern California, is located at Brookhurst and Adams, near Pacific Coast Hwy. in Huntington Beach. One of the most successful forms of living ever to be introduced in this area, it combines the benefits of ordinary ownership with the carefree aspects of renting.

AN OUTSTANDING advantage at Huntington Continental is its exterior maintenance feature that relieves purchasers from the burdensome aspects of home ownership. This feature includes full care and upkeep of building exteriors, as well as management and maintenance of landscaping, lawns, parking areas, walk areas and recreational facilities.

Prices at Huntington Continental range from $9,990 total price for a one-bedroom Town House to $14,990 total price for a four-bedroom. Two and three-bedroom models are available, some including custom-designed fireplaces.

LOW FHA terms are available at Huntington Continental, with down payments from $334 including all closing costs. Monthly payments start at $74 for the one-bedroom model, covering principal, interest, taxes and insurance. Monthly maintenance is an added $8 per month.

Among the luxury features included are underground utilities, built-in counter-top range with hood, oven, refrigerator, washer, dryer, disposal, private fenced-in patio, covered carport, forced-air heating, "Wife-Saver" kitchens, copper plumbing, color-coordinated interiors and cultured marble tops on bathroom pullmans.

Huntington Continental Town Houses are a development of Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., one of the nation's largest and builders.

Furnished model homes are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily. To visit Huntington Continental: Drive south on Pacific Coast Hwy. to Brookhurst, left on Brookhurst to furnished models.

Here is an interior view in a Huntington Continental Town House showing the charm built into the homes. Under the buying plan, the owner is relieved of care and upkeep of building exteriors.

Much Insurance Money Invested in California

California ran far ahead of every other state as a mortgage borrower from American life insurance companies in 1962, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

About $6,169,396,000 of policyholders' funds was invested in mortgages throughout California at the end of the year.

This was greater than the combined total of life insurance mortgages in 25 other states and was equal to nearly 13½ cents out of every dollar of the overall $46,009,083,000 in life insurance mortgages throughout the United States.

This money, which comes from funds set aside to meet life companies' future obligations to policyholders, plays a big role in helping Californians keep pace with their state's booming population, the institute said. Life insurance funds have financed hundreds of thousands of California homes and apartments, as well as new commercial and industrial facilities. Earnings from such investments help to keep down the cost of insurance to policyholders.

NEW LIFE insurance funds are being invested heavily in the areas of California's fastest population growth, including Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties in Southern California, and San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties in the Bay area.

Texas, with a total of $4,687,301,000 in life insurance mortgages, ranked second to California. New York, with $2,827,396,000, ranked third. Illinois, with $2,354,239,000, was fourth. Ohio, with $2,091,759,000 was fifth. No other state had as much as $2,000,000,000.

Year-Around Vacation by Sea Provided in Influential Home

AN INFLUENTIAL HOME

Here is one model of the Influential Homes in Fountain Valley which are priced from $19,600 and offered on various financial arrangements.

Year 'round vacation by the sea — has been an important factor in attracting homebuyers to Influential Homes—Fountain Valley, according to Mrs. Gene Harding of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents.

Built by the award-winning team of Butler-Harbour, these residences are located just minutes away from white, sandy beaches. Close by are most of Orange County's industry and commercial centers, schools of all grade levels and major shopping centers.

Offering a variety of exteriors incorporated in three spacious floor plans, the homes include three and four bedrooms, two baths and family room.

ALL RESIDENCES are keyed to convenience and feature center hall entry, decorative screen divider, over-size garages with bonus storage space, custom fireplace with gas log lighter and wall paneling over fireplace. A 5-ft. block wall surrounds backyard. Balanced power kitchens are equipped with built-in range and oven with rotisserie. There is also a breakfast bar and secluded dining area.

Huntington Harbour Sales Are Soaring

Two million dollars in sales of homes and homesites at Huntington Harbour during the month of July, was reported by Huntington Harbour Corp., president, Lewis W. Douglas, Jr.

The first subdivision offering at the luxurious residential marina was made one year ago and this anniversary period showed 190 units had been manufactured and sold.

Huntington Harbour is one of the rare-fee-simple properties that is water-oriented in the Southern California area. It comprises 860 acres of choice homesites surrounded by fully bulkheaded saltwater channels and waterways.

Purchasers are offered a house-and-lot combination arrangement or they may buy the homesite alone and submit house plans for architectural review by the Huntington Harbour board.

Buyers Guide to Medallion Homes

The only electrically modern homes... in every price range

The Medallion Home Award is a cornerstone for modern living—a solid basis for a home's lasting value, today and in the future. Compare the detailed electrical construction requirements for the Medallion Home Award with those for any other type of new home symbol.

You'll discover the Medallion Home Award is the one award that requires a new home to conform to specific and rigid standards, giving important value to the buyer. Here are just some of the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen equipped with major appliances, including range and oven.
2. Full "Housepower" Wiring provides capacity for at least twenty circuits, considered a minimum for modern living; large enough wires; 240 volt service for the electrical capacity every home needs.
3. Abundant lighting planned for comfort, convenience and beauty. A total-electric Gold Medallion Home gives you all these benefits plus:
4. Flameless electric home and water heating.

Fountainhead Is 'Family Ready'

Thanks to Fountainhead's new family-ready concept, the old saying, "It takes a heap 'o livin' to make a house a home" is as out of date as the Gibson Girl, according to a spokesman for Mesa Realty, director of sales.

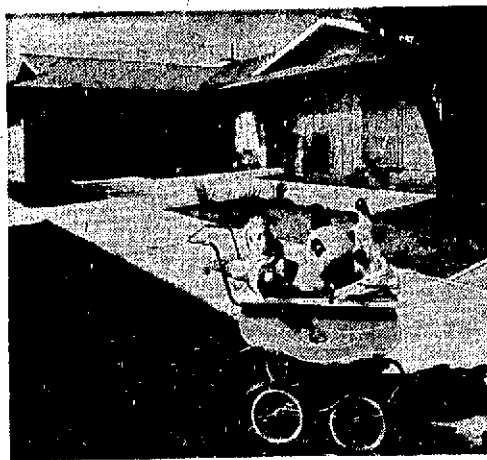

Built as a family community, Fountainhead was conceived and built for the family that likes the idea of a brand new house, but shies away from the work, worry and additional expenses normally associated with the purchase of a new home.

"THE JOY of a new house can wear mighty thin when after the hard work of moving the new homeowner still has to face months of work and additional expense before his new house becomes a home," said Lowell Evans, president of Evans Building Company, builders of the Fountainhead community.

Fountainhead's family-ready concept is based on the fact that the new homeowner and his family can move into their new home and relax and enjoy it right from the start. The yard is ready for outdoor living; fences up, lawn in and growing, shrubs and trees planted. Inside the house carpeting is installed and drapes are hung so that once furniture is placed it doesn't have to be moved.

In addition to the convenience, the builders have included all these family-ready extras in the low $495 move-in costs.

Located on the corner of Warner and Cannery in Fountain Valley, Fountainhead when completed will consist of 250 homes.

NO ADDED COSTS

"Immediate Livability" proving popular at Fountainhead. All Fountainhead homes are family-ready; lawns, shrubs, trees and fences in; carpeting and drapes installed; a built-in GE kitchen which includes a family sized dishwasher.

Elevated by Walker-Lee

Walker & Lee, Inc. announce the promotion of John Johnson, Bud Bennett and Wes Lohrey to sales managers, according to Bill Cheney, vice president of sub-division sales.

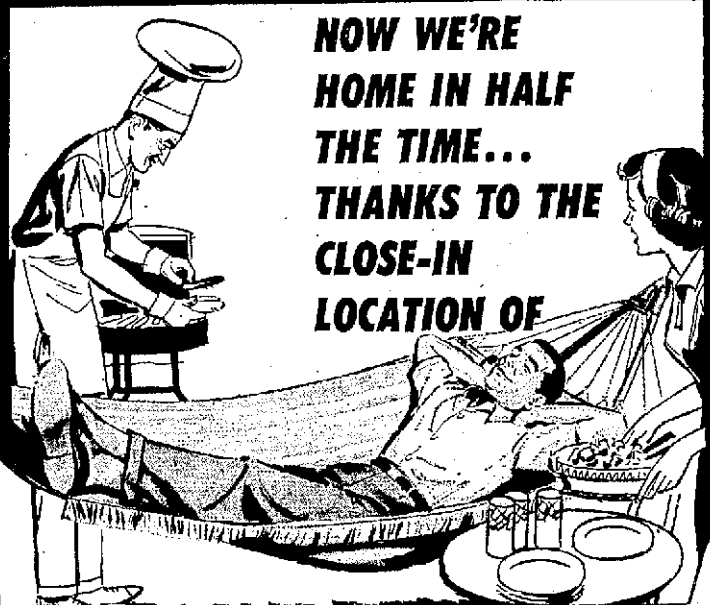

"Sales activity of the Walker & Lee organization reached a new peak during July," said Cheney.

"Their large share in this increased business coupled with their outstanding ability of these three men have more than qualified them for their new positions," John Johnson will be in charge of all new sub-division homes in the Torrance area. Bud Bennett will handle builder Mervin Johnson's three sub-divisions in Orange County and Wes Lohrey heads up Ray Watt's development in Corona.

Garden Park Estates Listing Many First-Time Home Buyers

"Property ownership is fundamentally one of the most satisfying experiences in life," officials of Garden Park Estates in Garden Grove feel "and we've tried to provide that opportunity for as many qualified buyers as possible."

From the continuing and successful growth of their attractive community, many people are now the proud owners of sturdy, good-looking homes.

"Some of the homes we've sold here were first-time purchases for growing families and you can tell by the glow in their eyes what a good feeling buying a home can produce" they stated.

BUILT IN a location attractive because of its nearness to exceptionally outstanding schools; a diverse number of nearby recreational facilities; temperate climate and close proximity to freeways, Garden Park Estates continues as one of the leaders in home sales.

With several good-looking one and two-story floor plans available, the "look-alike" feeling is eliminated and a feeling of individuality retained.

Quality-plus appointments in a Garden Park home include sparkling, fully-automatic kitchens; baths with pullman lavatories, finished with decorator-planned color schemes and sliding glass window walls.

prices ranging from $18,800 to $25,950 complete. VA terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs; also Cal-Vet loans and conventional terms are accessible. A choice of 30 to 35-year FHA loans make these durable

Select Group of 25 Homes Now Selling

A special offering limited to just 25 one and two-story custom-styled homes, at Aspenwood Park, is announced by builder John Morgan. The selective tastes of 25 families looking for a roomy, four-bedroom home of quality construction and attractive design, in the $24,000 price range, may well be answered by this select group of dwellings, in the desirably close-in Garden Grove area.

"Since many families want four bedrooms, but not all want a two-story, we designed four bedrooms into both one and two stories," Morgan stated.

THE ONE and two-story dwellings all have four bedrooms and two baths; living rooms with handsome fireplaces of brick or stone.

Kitchens boast built-in Hotpoint range and oven, dishwasher and disposal. Abundant cabinets, closets and storage, and easy-care efficient floor plans will appeal to every homemaker.

Prices start at $24,900, with

Gas Industry to Spend $7.1 Billion in Next 4 Years

The nation's gas industry expects to spend $7.1 billion on construction in the next four years, John E. Heyke, Jr., president of the American Gas Association, has announced.

"Just this year our industry expects to spend nearly $1.7 billion building new facilities to better serve the nation's 35.3 million gas customers," said Heyke, who also is president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co.

The construction survey is made annually by the A.G.A. Bureau of Statistics and covers transmission, distribution, underground storage, production and storage projects.

Final Leisure World Units Are Now Selling

FOR LEISURELY LIVING

Here is a view in a living room of a Leisure World apartment. The final unit of the senior citizen community in Seal Beach is now selling.

The final units are now open for sale at Rossmore Leisure World, 6470-apartment senior citizen community in Seal Beach, reports William G. Brangham, general sales manager.

Over 5,700 of the total number of apartments have been sold in less than a year and a half of selling, he added. Sales at Rossmore Leisure World have mounted to over $70,000,000 so far.

This unique community, one of the nation's largest senior citizens' projects, includes in-home nurse calls, calls to the doctor's office (whether at medical center on premises or to one's own doctor), all drugs, medicines, diagnostic tests and physical therapy treatment in the monthly payment.

THIRTEEN FULL-TIME plus two part-time doctors and 24 full-time nurses are already on duty in the project's medical center. Additionally, various specialists conduct clinics there every week. The $500,200 medical center opened in December. Included in the down payment of approximately $1,000 is $374 to $419 for a share of stock in Seal Beach Mutual No. 12 and 14. The purchase of this share of stock carries with it the right to occupy a one or two-bedroom apartment of the buyer's choice. Monthly payments—including principal, interest, taxes, insurance, maintenance, as well as medical care—range from $116.00 to $139.50.

ANYONE 52 years of age or over is qualified to purchase at Leisure World, with no physical examinations necessary for acceptance.

From Long Beach to Leisure World go east on 7th Street to Los Alamitos Boulevard, then right to the sales office and model apartments.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

Management Course to Be Offered Here

An evening seminar on convertible subordinated Debentures and 150,000 shares of Common Stock in units of smaller enterprises will be conducted by the division of business administration at Long Beach State College beginning Sept. 24.

The course is co-sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration. A similar seminar last spring brought an enthusiastic response, according to Dr. Robert Holmes, Long Beach State faculty member and moderator of the seminar.

"Figures show that nearly 7 out of 10 new businesses started in the last five years have failed or withdrawn from operation," Dr. Holmes said. "A study of these failures reveals that the largest single cause by far was poor management."

The seminar, he said, is designed for the owners, managers and key personnel of retailing, wholesaling, small manufacturing, service organizations and financial institutions.

The course consists of eight meetings, each held on a Tuesday evening from 7 to 9:30, beginning Sept. 24 and ending Nov. 12. Tuition cost is $50. Further information may be secured by writing the coordinator, Small Business Management Seminar, Long Beach State College, Long Beach 4, Calif.—or by telephoning GE 3-9051, ext. 328.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that the outstanding units recently issued by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons will be separated beginning next October 1st.

On May 24, 1963, public offering was made of $1,500,000 of the Company's 6 1/2%

The units were not transferable separately until December 1, 1963, or such earlier date as might be designated by the company with the consent of the Underwriters.

The October 1, 1963 separation date has now been set by action of the S. V. Hunsaker & Sons Directors.

Al Terrence Carpet Co. has opened its 6th store at 8706 E. Imperial, Downey.

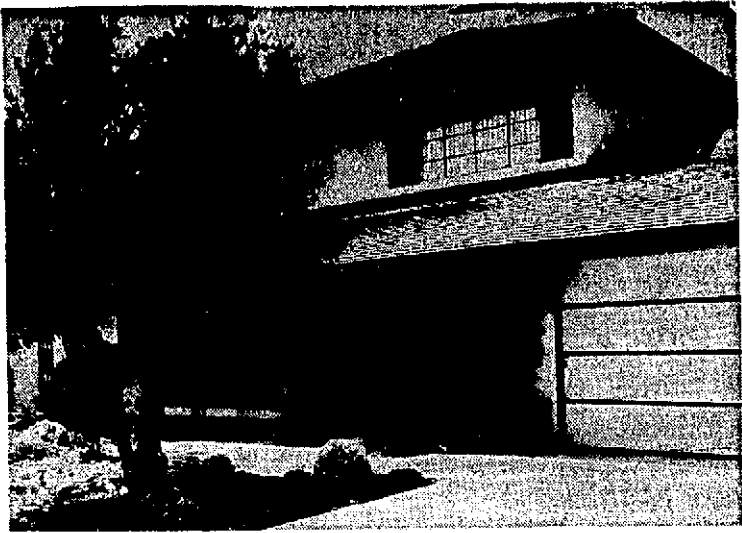

The new unit makes the company the largest volume independently owned and operated chain of carpet specialty stores in the nation, said Jerry Terrence, executive vice president. He announced that a total of 12 stores are planned before the end of 1963.

TWO PROMOTIONS have been announced at Bank of America's Long Beach District Trust Office.

Albert J. Kuhn has been promoted to assistant trust officer and Michael K. Jones has been advanced to assistant cashier and operations officer.

Retires

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sara Greenspan, who served the Theater Guild for 38 of its 44 years, retired in July. ## New School in Sol Vista Home Area

Construction is ahead of the $493,900 Bolsa Chica Elementary School being built by the Westminster School District on a 10-acre site at 12552 University, in the heart of the new Sol Vista International Home Fair community.

Approximately 700 students, the majority residents of this Alco-Pacific Construction Co. development, will be enrolled when school doors open in February.

Bolsa Chica Elementary will contain 16 classrooms, a kindergarten, and multi-purpose room. The building, which has a brick exterior, contains 38,674 square feet.

The 565-balanced power residences being built at the Sol Vista International Home Fair contain three, four and five bedrooms, family rooms, two and two and one-half baths. There are one as well as two-story floor plans available.

HOME PRICES range from $27,450 to $28,300. FHA, Cal-Vet and conventional terms may be utilized.

A park site is included in the master plan for this 160-acre project. It is also adjacent to churches, a complex shopping center, the $80,000,000 Douglas Aircraft Missile Space Center, and the Pacific Ocean.

The sales pavilion and five furnished models are on display daily to 8 p.m. at the corner of Westminster Blvd. and Bolsa Chica in Westminster.

through the availability of 10 exterior elevations, including a two-story model—offered at Tiara Estates Fountain Valley is a key factor in the success of the community and the response by buyers," he said.

The bonuses are a 500-square-foot Premium Room in Plan 2, which in turn provides the second bonus: a two-story home in a price range where such elevations are not ordinarily found.

THE BONUS area, over the garage, has gained much favor among those who want a play or hobby room, luxurious private bedroom suite or two extra guest rooms. The model is one of ten exterior elevations at the community which contains 79 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes.

All the homes include carpets, drapes, fenced rear yards and front lawns in the purchase price. Exteriors of the homes are embellished with wood and stone siding and screens, plus shutters.

They have laundry and hobby rooms and den or sewing rooms. Features are central entry halls, large kitchens with built-in range, oven and dishwasher; stone and brick fireplaces with log lighters; hand finished cabinets; sliding glass doors; luminous ceilings; forced air heat; marble pullmans; insulated ceilings, tile showers and wallpaper.

PRICED FROM $17,990 to $21,300, the homes may be purchased by veterans for nothing down. Also available are low FHA terms and conventional financing.

In the heart of growing Fountain Valley, Tiara Estates are close to the new La Quinta High School at Verano and Edinger; and an elementary and junior high school near Ward and Hazard. Nearby is the Broadway-Hale shopping center, under construction, in addition to major employment complexes and recreational facilities, including major beaches five minutes drive from the home.

Model homes are open daily on the southeast corner of Bushard and Heil.

Northgate Homes Open Today In Costa Mesa

An inspiring location, hand-some exteriors, superb construction and meticulous attention to details are the unbeatable combinations that will make Northgate Homes in Costa Mesa one of the fastest-selling developments in Orange County, predicted Charles W. Hester, developer, in preparing for this weekend's grand opening of the new subdivision.

The one and two-story dwellings, complete to draperies and carpeting, need only the families in them to make the community an integral part of Orange County's tremendous growth.

Available in either one-story or two-story plans, Northgate Homes offer features planned for the future. These include Westinghouse built-in range and oven with range hood and fan, dishwasher and disposal in kitchen equipped with ash cabinets topped with genuine Formica.

LIVING ROOMS with sliding glass doors are enhanced by used brick veneer fireplaces with mantles against a paneled wall, as decorative as it is useful. Nylon carpeting in halls, living rooms and master bedrooms and draperies.

Forced air heating ducts in baths as well as in all rooms are serviced by the 30,000 BTU Payne forced air furnace.

Both front and rear yards are landscaped with shrubbery and trees and full coverage underground sprinkler systems. Lawns are seeded and block walls of a uniform 5' 4" are installed.

EARNING the Medallion Award for electrical excellence, Northgate Homes are wired with 220 voltage for range and oven as well as for washer and dryer.

Exteriors are varied with heavy shake shingle roofs on all two-story plans, heavy shake on the front and regular shingle on the rear of the single story dwellings.

The two-story homes feature 500 square feet of room complete with bath and shower, which can adapt itself to the versatility and needs of the owner. A rumpus room, two extra bedrooms, a studio apartment, storage or sewing room are some of the suggestions.

To reach furnished models, drive Pacific Coast Hwy. to Newport Ave. Go north on Newport Ave. to Paularino and turn right to Northgate Homes. Available for as little as $595 down, the homes are being shown by Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents. The homes are priced from $23,900.

Sun City to Offer Medical Aid Plans

SUN CITY, Calif.—A comprehensive medical benefits program for Sun City residents has been formulated and will be explained in detail at a series of meetings scheduled in the Town Hall August 26 and 27.

The program, formulated through combined efforts of the Sun City (Arizona) Home Owners Association and the Del E. Webb Corporation, is sponsored by the association. Work on the program has been under way early this year.

Louis R. Inwood, president of the Sun City (Arizona)

Home Owners Association, will be in Sun City, Calif. Aug. 26 and 27.

Sun City, Calif., residents may join the plan under the Arizona sponsorship, since that community has already enrolled more than the 1,000 persons required by the underwriters.

The plan is completely voluntary with no adult-age limitations, has in-hospital and out-of-hospital coverage, a choice of three options from which the Sun City residents can make up their own programs. No medical examination is required under the plan.

Kristine Finds Her Frontier In Alaska

PIONEER-SPIRITED school marm Kristine Madsen models Alaskan fur parka, flashes warm smile before departing for north country.

OLD HARBOR, fishing village where Kristine teaches, has no streets, no stores, is accessible only by boat or seaplane.

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Rangy, red-haired and a rugged individualist, Kristine Madsen has only one gripe with life.

Her words: "Trouble is, I was born 100 years too late."

For 22 years she's taken crowded cities, clogged freeways and push-button living in her wide stride, all the while devouring history books and dreaming nostalgically of wide open spaces, covered wagons, log cabins and streams to ford.

But now, just one year out of college, she's made her peace with Father Time. She's found her new frontier—complete with wide open spaces, Indians, even a few wild bears thrown in.

The outpost: Kodiak Island in the Aleutian chain right off the coast of Alaska.

AFTER A YEAR of teaching first and second grade at Old Harbor, the island's largest native village (population 200), she's on her way back for a second-year stand.

She's been in Long Beach this summer visiting old school chums and her school teacher mother, Mrs. Bernice Michelson (first grade, Starr King School), soaking up sunshine, buying supplies and working part-time on Pierpoint Landing's deep-sea fishing boats.

"I plan to make a career of Alaska," she said Saturday, hurriedly packing parka and other supplies in a king-sized bag for the plane trip north.

TO SOMEONE like myself, who digs Paris originals, store-bought hairdos, electric dishwashers and transportation to the corner supermarket, that sounds like quite a sacrifice.

Especially after listening to Kristine's experiences of last year.

"I guess I'm the only teacher afoot who literally slept in her classroom," she quipped with a toss of the head that jangled her sharp-looking earrings (made of bear's teeth).

She not only slept there, her classroom was also her laundry room, sewing room, guest house, conference room, studio and dressing room (clothes hung above the bed, other supplies were stored underneath).

"The bed, separated from the classroom with a confiscated bookcase, made sort of a hallway," she explained. "My 24 students could check every morning to see if I'd made my bed."

KRISTINE'S giant step to the rugged north country came on the heels of her graduation a year ago from the University of California at Santa Barbara.

An elementary education major, she was called in for interviews. "Where would you like to teach?" she was asked.

KRISTINE'S STUDENTS, native Aleuts, are pictured on school grounds. As their clothing indicates, climate on Kodiak Island, fed by warm currents, is mild but damp, temperatures seldom drop below zero.

She couldn't think of anyplace in California. Besides, Lady Fate and Kristine's subconscious seemed to be playing the sound track.

From out of the blue came, "Alaska!" Then the deep freeze: "You're out of your mind," said her counselor. "We've NEVER placed anyone in Alaska."

Said remark only made Kristine more determined. She held out for Alaska. Arrangements were made and to Alaska she went.

KRISTINE'S trip to the land of the unknown was, in itself, quite an experience.

A native of Long Beach and an avid boating-fishing enthusiast, she'd never flown before.

Traveling by one jet to Seattle, another to Anchorage, she deplaned to view her promised land.

About Anchorage, she mused: "My this is a nice little town!" (It's Alaska's largest; population, 44,237.)

Arriving in Fairbanks via prop plane, she sized up the situation with: "How quaint!"

A still smaller plane landed her in Kodiak, major city of Kodiak Island. This is downright rustic," she thought.

As the planes got smaller, so did the towns—very MUCH smaller, she recalls.

It's Regatta Time for ABYC

FAVORITE SPOT of sailors in Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's annual Labor Day Regatta next Saturday, Sunday and Monday, is sure to be the galley, manned here by (left to right) Mmes. Barbara Schofield, chairman; Eldon C. Campbell, Theodore C. Matson, Miss Margaret Schofield and Mrs. Arthur F. Glasier.

Individual informal buffets and cocktail parties within the fleets will replace the traditional dinner when Alamitos Bay Yacht Club hosts its annual Labor Day Regatta next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Pacific Cats and the Columbia Challenge will hold their Pacific Coast championships under ABYC in conjunction with the regatta, which is invitational. Bay and ocean races will be held at 12:50 p.m. Saturday and 12:20 and 2:20 p.m. Sunday and Monday.

Albert Vignolo Jr. will be officer of the day on Saturday; C. Roy Conn, Sunday; and Commodore Charles Kober, Monday. Staff Commodore Thomas F. Knight Jr. and Mrs. Knight will be in charge of the ocean races and Larry Hunt of the bay events.

With hundreds of boats participating in the highly competitive regatta the focal point of the skippers and skipperettes will be the galley which will be open all three days. Mrs. Barbara Schofield, chairman, will be assisted by Miss Margaret Schofield, co-chairman, and Mmes. S. E. Thomas, Francis O. Merchant, Eldon E. Campbell, Theodore C. Matson and Arthur F. Glasier Jr.

Wayfarers' Is Setting for Nuptials

Wayfarers' Chapel, Portuguese Bend, was scene Saturday evening of a nuptial service uniting Beverly A. Farmer, daughter of Mrs. Lee H. Farmer, 3224 Rutgers Ave., and the late Mr. Farmer, and Charles A. LaGrone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. LaGrone, 6220 Myrtle Ave.

The bride chose for her double ring vows, a street length gown of peau de soie and Chantilly lace fashioned by her mother. A jeweled crown of lilies of the valley held her veil and she carried white carnations with a white orchid.

Included in the entourage

were Mrs. Elden Clement, matron of honor; Charles Barnes, best man; and Russell Miller and James D. Johnson, ushers.

A RECEPTION followed in the Miraleste home of the matron of honor. The newlyweds will be at home in Long Beach following a Lake Tahoe honeymoon trip.

Both young persons were graduated from Jordan High School. The bride also is an alumna of Long Beach City College.

Los Altos Club

Los Altos Women's Club will meet at 8 p.m., Wednesday in Whaley Park Recreation Center. A film, "Too Good to be True," will be shown and projects aimed at raising money for Los Altos "Y's" building fund will be discussed.

Peninsula Plans Horse Show

Give 'em love and feed 'em lots of oats is philosophy exercised by (from left) Darcy, Chapin and Hale Field, youngsters of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Field of Portuguese Bend, on a visit to Portuguese Bend Riding Club which will be scene of a national horse show Sept. 21 and 22.

Sponsored by Palos Verdes Peninsula Committee of the Children's Hospital, the show will swell the hospital's building fund according to Mrs. Thomas Murphy, show chairman, and Mmes. Robert L. Pruyn and Stephen H. Hinchliffe, co-chairmen.

Social high point of the two-day event comes Sunday evening when exhibitors are honored at a supper dance on the riding club courtyard.

Summer Fun--Tootenannies, Teas and Trips

Surely if you listened attentively Saturday afternoon you heard from the hills over yonder the strum of guitars, the twang of ukes, the pinkpink of banjos.

Thought it was the Hatfields and the McCoy's making up didn't you?

Nay, 'twas none other than the Junior Leaguers plus spouses whooping it up at Portuguese Bend Beach Club at a "Tootehanny."

You read right. That's what they called it. "Tootehanny"—hootenanny spelled sideways or upside down for reasons only the Leaguers know.

The toot began in early afternoon and the hours were whiled away with swimming, volleyball, barbecuing and singing. Just a few in on all this bizz were Paula and Ralph Irving, Jill and Bob Roberts, Bettye and Carl Spath, Veda and Don Wells, Mary and Jim Willingham, Dianne and Terry Barkis and Jean and Jim Steller (banjo player par excellence).

LOU HOSKING left this week to spend a month visiting her friend of many years Atala Hanbery at her Lake Tahoe home.

TEA TIME on the peninsula of recent days found 60 gathering at Mil Cameron's home to honor Judy Johnson who will become the bride Friday of Mil's son, Alex Woodard. Contemporaries of Judy's were there as well as her mother, Ann Palmer and grandmother, Clara Mitchell, and a throng of other best-wishers.

Assisting in seeing that everyone knew everyone were Caye Elliott, Pat Woodard, Bonnie Ridder, Lucille Crosby, Anne Tankersley, Julie Lawson and Betty Bixby.

Miscellaneous shower gifts, big, small, practical and delightfully "im" were presented Judy on Monday when Caye entertained 30 friends in her Los Cerritos home.

THE NIGHT before the tea introducing Alex's fiancée, Mil and Sam Cameron, plus Bix and Betty Bixby, hosted a dinner party at the Camerons' honoring John Carr and his new bride, Peg. John is former state director of finance and now lives in Newport Beach. Guests included Frances and Harry Buffum, Bee and George Hart, Bonnie and Hank Ridder, Marge and Bud Young, Lorraine and Harry Fulton, Marky and Darrell Neighbors and Margaret and Ira Frisbee of Newport.

ELK HUNTERS may be interested to know the most likely spot to find a herd is on a chartered plane. Imagine 140, all in a bunch! Well all right, so it's human Elks we speak of. It's still a fact that on Tuesday that goodly number will streak off into the wild blue for a month in such fascinating spots as Spain, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Lebanon, Egypt, Jordan, the Holy Land and we-dunno-where-all before returning via London for October doings at the local 888 club-in-the-round.

IT WAS HARDLY the silver wedding anniversary Gus and Jeannette Ambrose had in mind. Celebrating it in a hospital, after all. And here they'd planned on a trip to Honolulu. However, a car accident landed Gus at Community Hospital two weeks ago and he has a couple more months to do there before returning to Huntington Beach. Friday

Hyden-Kral Plan February Rites

Engagement of Mary Lavinne Hyden and Steve Kral Jr. has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Mary Frances Hyden of Long Beach.

The betrothed pair plans a Feb. 15, 1964 wedding. Miss Hyden, granddaughter of Mrs. Emma Austin, Long Beach, was graduated from Polytechnic High School where she was homecoming queen and member of Scarabs. She now is a senior at Long Beach State College where, in her junior year, she served as sweetheart of TKE Fraternity. She also was queen of Long Beach Century Club Invitational Basketball Tournament in 1962.

Mary Lavinne Hyden

KRAL, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kral also was graduated from Poly and attended Claremont Men's College. Current president of Long Beach Century Club, he also is active in Masonic Orders, Elks, Long Beach Yacht Club, Pacific Coast Club and is an honorary officer of the Long Beach Police Motor Patrol Association. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Miho Kralj of Serbia and Mrs. B. Z. Wucetich of Long Beach, and the late Mr. Wucetich, a pioneer builder-developer of east Long Beach.

High Time for High Fashion!

One of the earliest fall showings in Long Beach of high fashion designs is scheduled for Sept. 10 when the 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated salutes autumn with a fashion luncheon in International Ballroom of Lafayette Hotel. Trim members of the group will model exciting attire from The Parisienne during the affair which the sponsoring group calls "Fashion Forecast." Represented will be such well known designers as Marjorie Michaels, Edward Abbott, Abe Schrader, Harvey Berlin and Charles Cooper.

Complementing the street ensembles and evening wear will be furs from Lockwood's.

TALENTS OF a skilled decorator will be utilized in carrying out the decorations which will blend with the ballroom's new gold and green theme. Autumnal flowers and foliage will set the mood for the warm color selection in the show.

A special guest of honor will be Mrs. Ivy Baker Stevens, former treasurer of the United States and now a resident of Beverly Hills. Also invited to attend is Hedda Hopper, Hollywood columnist.

GUESTS will begin arriving at 11 a.m. that day for a reception. Luncheon is scheduled at noon, with the fashion show to follow at 1 p.m. The Paul King Trio will provide background music during the event.

Mrs. Gustaf H. Erickson is chairman and commentator of the show. Her vice-chairmen are Mmes. Raymond Grobaty, Jerry Sims, J. T. Spivey and Annette Brewer.

Serving on various committees as chairmen are Mmes. D. W. Dolson, William R. Atkinson, Walter Dean, Fred Looney, R. L. Schmidt and Gerald Secord, and Miss Ann Cole.

Mrs. Robert Albright, club president, will welcome the large throng expected.

MEMBERS modeling that day will be Mmes. Hugh Prichard, Lloyd P. Mallin, James Brennan, Marvin Garvin, Glenn B. Scott, Charles Bartell, William R. Atkinson and Nann Holsapple, and Misses Sue Prichard, Sharon Ballagh and Pamela Kildebeck.

Reservations for the fashion event may be made with Mrs. Henry Bloem, 1904 E. 1st St.; Mrs. Ola Dowdy, 2117 E. 6th St.; Ann Cole, 3727 Orange Ave., or any member of the committee.

To Honor Youth

For some 100 Long Beach and Orange County teenagers, summer vacation hasn't been one round of surfing and lazing on the beach with one ear on a transistor radio.

These youngsters have spent part of the vacation since June 17 as volunteers at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, supplementing the adult volunteers.

In recognition of the excellent work of these young people, the hospital staff and adult sponsors of the youth program will give a recognition party Thursday afternoon in the area of the hospital's outdoor swimming pool.

AFTER A SWIM and a picnic, the group will be presented with certificates of recognition for their services during these summer months. Many of the youths have accumulated more than 100 hours of volunteer work during the summers of 1962 and '63, and will receive 100-hour certificates from the hospital staff.

The youth volunteer group has proved so effective that the program will resume Sept. 23 for the winter months. Young people will provide escort service in the large hospital after school hours.

Typical of the young volunteer groups is the "Stripettes" who report for duty each Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to assist with escort service, office work, lab work, therapy and X-ray filing.

SPONSORED BY the Rossmoor Woman's Club, the "Stripettes" consist of ## Eastern Socialite to Speak

Mrs. Searle Whitney, formerly Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney of Locust Valley, New York, will be the honored guest and speaker Wednesday at 10 a.m. at a garden brunch given by the Christian Women's Club of Long Beach.

Setting for the event will be the home and garden of Mrs. Earl Benson, 4213 Fleet-haven Rd., Lakewood.

Women wishing to attend must make reservations by Monday noon with Mrs. Minetta Plesscher, 430 Orlena Ave., or Mrs. Robert Boze, 5119 E. Carson St.

MRS. WHITNEY, formerly a concert, opera and oratorio soloist, world traveler, lecturer and patron of the arts is active in many fields in her home state. She is a directorate of the American National Theater Academy, and a founder and charter member of the National Society of Arts and Letters.

She has repeatedly been named on the list of best-dressed women, and frequently models at charity balls and fashion shows.

Mrs. William D. McCullough

Pioneer Families Joined at Rites

Five hundred guests attended the candlelight ceremony uniting in marriage Linda Sully, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charles Sully, and William Davis McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hugh McCullough, at California Heights Methodist Church Saturday evening.

The bride wore a formal gown of silk linen with guipure lace detail and a chapel length train. Her floor length veil fell from a silk blossom head piece.

Louise Sully attended her sister as maid of honor. Tony Sparks served the bridegroom as best man. The bridesmaids, all attired in long willow green gowns and carrying yellow begonias, included Helen Sully, Sandra Hubbell, Mmes. Tony Sparks and Robert Banks. Ushers were Michael Driscoll, Frederick Griggs, Charles Durbin and Derek McWhinney.

A champagne reception followed the ceremony at Virginia Country Club.

THE NEW Mrs. McCullough is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and attended Long Beach City College, University of Southern California and Long Beach State College. She affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Her husband is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo and USC.

The couple will make their home in Long Beach after return from a Hawaiian honeymoon.

Ebell Brunch Series Ends

Under the direction of Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, members of Group Y of Ebell of Long Beach will serve the last in a series of summer brunches at the Ebell Club-house Wednesday.

Group chairman, Mrs. U. B. Killingsworth, will be assisted by Mmes. Will H. Winston, Gustav Kretschmer, A. George Downing, R. E. Dunlavy, G. A. Lackey and King C. Light.

Reservations for the 11 a.m. or 11:30 a.m. serving may be made by calling Mrs. Killingsworth or Mrs. Guy Hodson.

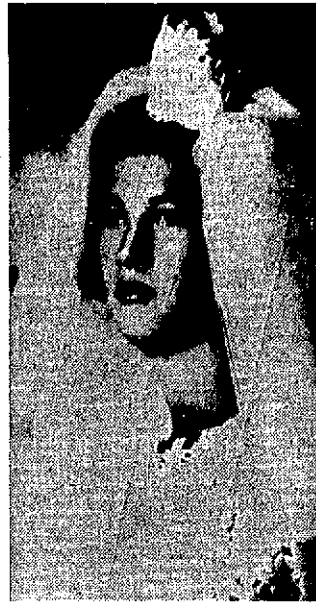

Door prizes will be awarded and card games played following the brunch.

Nuptials Add Mrs. to Their Names

Moland-Glover

Patricia Dean Glover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Glover, 1631 Linden Ave., became the bride of Gerhard Michael Moland of this city in an Aug. 20 ceremony at Atlantic Ave. Methodist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza trimmed with lace. A seed pearl crown held her veil and she carried stephanotis with rosebuds.

Miss Oweda Greer was maid of honor and Miss Janice Shugart was bridesmaid.

Son of Dr. and Mrs. O. G. Moland, Augusta, Wis., the bridegroom was served by David Rucks, best man, and Lt. Stanley Long and Joseph Gathright, ushers.

The newlyweds will return today from a honeymoon trip to Laguna and will reside at 1952 Pine Ave.

Mrs. Moland was graduated from Polytechnic High School and will complete studies at Long Beach State College in January. Her husband attended Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., and Officers Candidate School in Newport, R.I. He served as a lieutenant (j.g.) with the Navy for three years.

Education Department at Marshall Junior High School, became the bride of Lt. (j.g.) Philip Roland Garr, USCGR, in an Aug. 18 ceremony in University Presbyterian Church, Seattle, Wash.

The newlyweds, both graduates of University of Washington where she was a member of Sigma Kappa, W Key, Totem, Phi Epsilon Chi and Chi Phi Sigma, and he of Delta Chi, will reside in Long Beach while the bridegroom serves as operations officer at the Coast Guard Base, Terminal Island.

Daughter of Earl Stanford of Seattle and the late Mrs. Stanford, the bride was gown in silk and reem-broidered Alencon lace with a matching crown holding her veil. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis with stephanotis and showers of ivy.

Sapphire blue sheath dresses with matching over-skirts were worn by Mrs. Edward Garneau, matron of honor, and Mrs. Richard Strand, Mrs. Ronald Tracy and Janice Rottle.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland B. Garr, Vancouver, Wash., was served by B. Dale Kuhnhausen, best man, and Hubert R. Swanson, Errol Garr and Frederick P. Smith, ushers.

Ronald Schroeder exchanged wedding vows before 250 guests on Aug. 16. Setting was California Heights Methodist Church.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mrs. Hazel S. Schroeder, 2831 Tigertail Drive, and Mrs. Eugene L. Rukes, 3244 Lewis Ave.

The bride selected a full length sheath gown of swiss-embroidered lace with a matching crown. She carried spider mums.

Cheryl Rukes, maid of honor, and Becky Gates, Lynne McClure, Susie Strong, and Diane Eldred, bridesmaids, and Nancy Rukes, junior bridesmaid, attended the bride.

Butch Van Holt was best man and ushering duties were performed by Bill Crawford, Jack Miller, Warren James, Marty Duserre and George Tingom.

The newlyweds are at home in Long Beach after a Las Vegas honeymoon trip.

The bride is a member of Delta Delta Delta and Daughters of Diana at State; her husband is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Elmore-Ekhoff

Now on a honeymoon trip to Levelland, Tex., are Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Dwain Elmore (nee Susan Lynn Ekhoff) who were married Aug. 17 in First Methodist Church.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ekhoff, 105 Roswell Ave., the bride chose for her vows a bouffant tilly lace and illusion net.

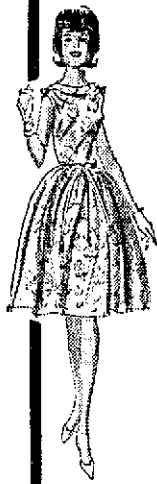

Her bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis surrounding an orchid on a floor length gown of Chan-Bible.

Irene Baker was maid of honor and Mary Baker and Mrs. Charles William Ekhoff Jr., were bridesmaids. Completing the wedding party were R. Thomas Ing, best man; Charles W. Ekhoff Jr. and Johnnie F. Koval, ushers; Elizabeth Ann Eisler, flower girl; and Bobby Baker, ring bearer.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Elmore, Fontana, received early schooling there and now is a student at Chaffey Junior College. The pair will reside in Ontario.

He Says He's Retired--Is He?

George Wallace is retired. Or so he says. All he does is chauffeur the disabled, pick up supplies, work the addressograph, organize campaign material and do about 50 other jobs as a volunteer worker for the Community Volunteer Office.

He's extra busy now, because he has inherited many of the jobs of S. M. Young, another "retired" volunteer worker, who has moved to another city.

When he and Young worked together, they not only handled a good deal of the driving jobs for the office, but when they came to work brought the sweet rolls for the employee coffee break as well.

HEMMED IN by campaign material, Community Volunteer Office workers (from left) Mary Eidy, George Wallace and Sue McKee give their time to preparation for the United Way fund drive. Every week 370 Long Beach area people serve a need in a volunteer job, placed by CVO.

EVERY WEEK 870 Long Beach area people serve a need in a volunteer job, placed by the Community Volunteer Office. Eighty-six local agencies and clinics call on CVO when they need volunteers.

Any person with extra time is welcome as a volunteer. There is such a variety of jobs to be filled, that no matter what talent or experience the volunteer has, something will be found for him, according to Clara Andrews, executive director.

CVO has a weekly article which appears in the I, P-T which has had a wonderfully generous response to appeals for everything from chess players to French speaking readers.

In March of this year, the Community Volunteer Office moved into new quarters in the handsome, modern Fairfield Community Services Building at 3515 Linden Ave. Formerly a Community Chest agency, it is now an agency of United Way.

Among other services given by CVO, is the Long Beach Calendar of Events.

VOLUNTEERS of any age, creed, race or ability are welcome at CVO. This summer, many young people have worked an enormous number of hours. They have given their time to the Junior Friendly Visitors, a group that visits the aged and ill in nursing homes. They have helped at the Braille Institute Blind Camp, at the City Health Department and the Escort Service at the Veterans' Hospital.

A young group of musicians of junior and high school age have organized an orchestra, Don's Twilights, "we play like Lawrence Welk," that plays for the Sunset Club and other groups.

The CVO office bustles with activity and reports from busy volunteers.

One volunteer has been driving a little boy to a clinic for treatment while his mother was in the hospital having a new baby.

"You know what he told me today," he chuckled.

"He said, 'Today mother is coming home and we are going to take the new baby on a picnic!'"

Oswald Jacoby Club to Hear High Lights of Pageant

Think to Add Tricks

Good defense is far tougher than good dummy play. Somehow or other it is much harder to visualize the division of cards between your partner and the declarer than for declarer to visualize the division between his opponents.

West opened the six of hearts and East's king lost to declarer's ace. South led a diamond to dummy's jack, then tried the club finesse.

At this point most defenders would simply lead the jack of hearts in order to establish some heart tricks. West was not the ordinary defender. He took time out to think. What did declarer hold for his opening bid? The ace and queen of hearts made 6 points. The king of diamonds made nine and the ace of clubs 13.

COULD East hold either the king of diamonds or the ace of clubs? No! If he had

To Live in San Diego

Helen Therese Gibbons, daughter of Mrs. Francis C. Gibbons, Long Beach, repeated wedding vows Aug. 24 in St. Cyprian Catholic Church to become the bride of John Philip Baumgarten, son of Dr. and Mrs. O. Charles Baumgarten of San Diego.

She was attired in an ivory silk taffeta and Alencon lace gown with chapel train. The soft folds of her veil were attached to a crown of lilies of the valley. She carried a cascade of white Jassett orchids and stephanotis.

FOR HER matron of honor the bride chose her sister, Mrs. Carl S. Morabito Jr. Bridesmaids were Patricia Lowry and Karen Weitzel.

Richard Serrano attended the bridegroom as best man. The 200 wedding guests were seated by Wayne Ferris and Jim Baumgarten.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel and San Francisco, the young couple will establish their home in San Diego.

The new Mrs. Baumgarten was graduated from St. Anthony's High School and from Immaculate Heart College where she was a Delta Chi Phi. The bridegroom is attending the University of San Diego and is a member of Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity.

Kristine Finds Her Frontier in Alaska

After boarding the tiny seaplane for Old Harbor (only way to get there, except by boat), she held her breath.

Twenty minutes later she landed, viewed her domain through the window and gasped: "THIS is a town?"

TOWN IT ISN'T; native village it is. On a mile-wide ledge bordered on one side by mountains, on the other by water, Old Harbor is dotted by some 20 houses, abodes of native fishermen who, Kristine found, abound in large families.

There are no streets, only gravel paths; no eating places, no doctors, no hospital. The only other edifices, besides houses, are a church, a mission, a schoolhouse and a small general store ("supplies are flown in once a week, are swooped up the first day").

There are no native trees; there ARE many native bears, however, who lurk in the barren volcanic mountains behind the village.

The island is home of the Kodiak brown bear, largest carnivorous animal in the world.

"You don't dare stray from the village without a gun or without an escort WITH a gun," Kristine warned me (not that I'll ever be there to heed her warning).

KRISTINE'S resounding welcome when she landed helped ease her into frontier life and fortified her for surprises to come. Surprises like these:

The new schoolhouse (two classrooms and living quarters) due to open in September, was not completed. She had to set up home and classroom in a storeroom behind the old school building.

Only other white people on the island were two teachers (a man and his wife, who occupied living quarters in the school) and a Baptist missionary.

All her students were native Aleuts, a flavorful mixture of Russian, Indian, Eskimo and Scandinavian, who speak Aleut and slaughtered English. Seven out of 13 had failed first grade the year before.

But Kristine Madsen seemed as different to the natives as they did to her. Five-foot-ten (in her stocking feet) with flaming red hair, Kristine became a pillar of strength to youngsters in the community. She played the role of teacher 24 hours a day.

"None of the children had ever seen red hair before," said Kristine. "Often they'd ask to touch it."

MAKING HER own history, Kristine looks back with nostalgia on the year she learned to know all the villagers, explored new ways of teaching, sampled native foods (wild celery, sea lion liver, sea gull eggs, mast beaver), ate Thanksgiving dinner with the school construction gang in their tent during a torrential downpour ("the tent leaked, so we used a shower curtain for the tablecloth") and learned to live with hardships as diversified as Canada's terrain. Last year, only three of her students failed. Because of progress made, she asked for the assignment a second year.

What after that? "I hope to be assigned to a one-teacher school somewhere in Alaska!"

SHE'S FOUND her challenge in the 49th state—the largest in area, smallest in population (entire state has 100,000 LESS people than Long Beach).

"There's great opportunity in Alaska for enterprising people," Kristine believes. "It's currently in the same stage of development as California was 75 years ago. Fishing is tremendous, vast natural resources are virtually untapped, construction is in great demand."

"True, prices are exorbitant (all foods are flown in; eggs are often $1 a dozen; fresh fruits and vegetables are almost prohibitive). But wages are on a high scale, too (Canada's wages are 20 per cent higher than other states)."

Kristine's starting pay last year was $6,350; this year it will go up to $7,220 (that, with living quarters furnished).

NOW THAT the new school building is completed, she'll occupy living quarters in the vacated school, sharing them with a new lady teacher from San Jose.

Kristine reflects the determination of a construction worker in Alaska who remarked: "You can do anything you're big enough to do here."

And with pioneering spirit like Kristine's, anything can happen in Alaska.

All Signs Point to A Love on the Wane

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

I'm a very troubled teenager. You'll probably think I'm making a mountain out of a molehill, but I'm really not. You see, I've been going steady with this boy for about three months. He swears he loves me and I think he does.

BUT he is so terribly careless about dates. He'll ask me to go to the movies with him, then maybe a half hour before he is to pick me up he'll call with some excuse and break the date. He has done this four times recently.

Last night he was to take me on a picnic with a bunch of kids. I waited for him for an hour, then called his house and his mother said he was out but she didn't know where. He never did pick me up and I had to go on the picnic by myself.

I haven't heard from him today and I'm simply sick at heart—LONELY LAURA.

DEAR LONELY: Phooey on this lad. The facts simply scream that he takes you very lightly indeed, and don't go on kidding yourself about this love stuff.

Next time you make a

Dear Molly Mayfield

date, YOU be the one to break it, and see how he likes those apples. You've nothing to lose—and you might teach him a lesson.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Recently I read a letter in your column from a woman who grieved over her son's indifference and naturally blamed the daughter-in-law.

I understand her position perfectly. I, too, had an only son, was widowed when he was eight. We were very close. When he got married his wife proceeded to entertain HER mother and father at least twice a week; sisters, brothers and cousins, too.

In 20 years I have never been invited to their home for a meal.

I thought it over carefully and decided if my son was so lacking in love and will power, then I shouldn't blame the wife. HE is to blame. If and when he asserts himself, I will be glad to see him. Not until.

Believe me, Molly, a brain-washed husband is not worthy of being a son.—ABOVE IT ALL.

DEAR ABOVE:

Bravo! It's about time that some mothers-in-law who always choose to blame the son's wife were advised to think it over and point the finger of blame at the weak one, their darling, precious son.—M.M.

Island Honeymoon for Pair

When Martha Lou Hunsaker became the bride Aug. 24 of Dan Norman Baker, 400 guests assembled for the evening ceremony in First Baptist Church.

The wedding vows united the families of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hunsaker of the Belmont Heights area and Mrs. Ann Baker of Downey.

For their honeymoon destination, the young people chose Hawaii and will be at home in Downey upon their return.

FOR HER WEDDING the bride chose a gown of peau de soie with bell shaped skirt banded in Alencon lace reembodyered with pearls. A rose at the waistline held a detachable chapel train. A crown of lace and pearls caught the soft folds of her three-tiered veil of silk illusion, and the bridal bouquet was of spider chrysanthemums and gardenias.

Jane Newcomb and Richard Scott were maid of honor and best man respectively. Others in the entourage were Mmes. Richard Scott, Harold Tiegs, David Shindler and Miss Krenwinkel, attendants; Sherwood Morf, Michael Goodman, Donald Hunt, Rev. Doyle Edson, Larry Ezzell and Robert Ezzell, ushers, and Kelly Ezzell, flower girl.

BOTH WERE GRADUATED from Wilson High School. The new Mrs. Baker attended the University of Redlands and is now a senior at Long Beach State College. She is a member of Delta Gamma and of Chapter DP of PEO.

The bridegroom was graduated from Baylor University, Waco, Tex., where he was senior class president, and was a member of the Baylor Chamber of Commerce before returning to Southern California.

CFWC District Juniors Slate Area Conference

Los Cerritos District, organizers and club representatives.

Mrs. Kenneth Newton, Area C vice president, and Mrs. Edward Burns, Los Cerritos president for senior membership, will be honored guests. Mrs. Burns will speak.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

George Directs --Gourmet Feast

By MILDRED K. KLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

He "directs" all day and writes notes to himself most of the night. Such is the quick-minded, creative nature of today's Chef of the Week, Duane George, associate director of Long Beach Recreation Department. He succeeded "Chef" "Doc" Harnett.

There's a note pad beside his bed at all times for his spontaneous thoughts.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, George spent most of his early life on a farm in Michigan. He went to Canyon City, Colo., for high school, but came to Long Beach in 1928 because of our Junior College. He especially liked its curriculum.

Following graduation, he enrolled at UCLA and earned his BA degree in psychology and education, then switched to USC for his MA and General secondary teaching credentials. He has 25 additional credits in supervision and administration.

GEORGE joined Long Beach Recreation Department in 1930, after serving as play director, supervisor, administrative assistant and assistant director. He was appointed to his present position in 1962. In fact, George had simultaneously received an assignment from the State Department to serve for three months as American Specialist in Youth Work for South Africa. He declined it to take the Long Beach appointment. His accomplishments have been many. He received the 1963 Layman of the Year Award from the Long Beach Ministerial Association and the Fellowship Award given by California Park & Recreation Society. In 1960 he was presented a 30-year Service Pin by the City of Long Beach.

George was a lecturer at the Administrators' Institute National Recreation Association Society, 1961-63. Chairman personnel standards committee, American Recreation Society in 1960, he also served as chairman, California Board of Recreation Personnel.

HE WAS a member of the National Recreation Association in-service-training committee, 1959, and the Pacific Southwest personnel committee, 1960. George also served on the National Board of Registration for American Society in 1961 through '63.

A past president, Pi Sigma Epsilon, national recreation fraternity, George is also a past president, California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Southern Section. He formerly served on the Board of Management, Long Beach Community Welfare Council. Active in the First Congregational Church, he's vice chairman of the Board of Trustees.

George writes well, too! Among his many published articles, he's best known for "Public Recreation in Long Beach" which appeared in the Recreation Magazine, September '57, and "An Adventure Play Project" in "American City" in September 1958.

There is usually a "prelude to dinner" in the George home. Anything of importance which he wishes to share with his family, Eve (Mrs. G), Mike, 25, and Steve, 22, is placed in front of their plate. Then he won't forget.

An excellent listener and a wonderful counselor, George always has a way of removing obstacles. He never mislays his enthusiasm for helping people with their problems. His psychology major has stood him well.

Our "Chef" has an aptitude for finding interesting tree and bush formations, then basing them. He has a collection second to none. He loves to putter, but he's especially well-trained and handy in the kitchen cleanup crew. Today he's barbecuing Rock Cornish Hens.

Wedding Bells Will Ring

Parsons-Wallace

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin L. Parsons announce engagement of their daughter, Carolyn Kay, to Stephen Douglas Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Wallace. All are Long Beach residents.

The bride-elect was graduated from Millikan High School and is a senior at Long Beach State College where she is a member of Spurs and Califias.

Her fiancé also was graduated from Millikan. He attended Long Beach City College and now is a senior at UC, Berkeley.

The wedding will take place next summer.

Whitmer-Jones

Long Beach City College graduates Nancy Jane Whitmer and Robert Harold Jones are planning a June, 1964 marriage, according to an announcement from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Whitmer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jones, Lakewood.

Miss Whitmer was graduated from Wilson High School and was affiliated with Entre Nous at LBCC where her fiancé was a Tilsman. He now is a student at LBSC.

Teel-Sutton

Engagement of Millikan High School graduates Pamela Teel and Larry Allan Sutton is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Teel. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Sutton, also of Long Beach.

The wedding will take place Oct. 25.

Terney-Muhlenberg

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Terney of Honolulu, Hawaii, announce betrothal of their daughter, Jackie, to Brent J.

Set Card Party

A card party is planned for Wednesday at Machinist's Hall by Long Beach Claretian Guild. Canasta, 500, contract and pinochle will be played. Refreshments will be served at noon, with the party to follow, according to Mrs. Margaret Musick and her committee.

1 tsp. celery salt
Stir and heat without boiling. After soaking quarter slices of bread in the heated mixture, place one piece in each open end of each bird. Close with small skewer pins.

After washing and drying exterior of hens, brush with oil of your choice, or butter, and sprinkle lightly with seasoning salt.

Place hens on barbecue over a thin bed of charcoal that is already hot. After the spit has turned for 1/2 hour, brush the meat with oil a second time. Each 15 minutes thereafter until hens are cooked (about 1 1/2 hours) brush with barbecue sauce prepared by mixing TWO portions of tomato catsup, and ONE portion each of Worcestershire sauce and orange juice.

One-half hour before taking birds from broiler, scatter hickory chips that have been pre-soaked in water, over the coals. This gives smoke flavor.

One game bird makes an ample individual serving. Delicious hot or cold.

Muhlenberg, son of Mrs. Vivian B. Muhlenberg of Long Beach.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Millikan High School and was awarded the U.S. Navy highest peace time award for the saving of two lives in July of 1962 in Glyncro, Ga. The pair will marry this fall.

Madsen-Miller

An informal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Madsen served to announce betrothal of their daughter, Carol Ann, to Ronald Leroy Miller, son of Mrs. Dorothy G. Miller. All are of Long Beach.

Both young persons were graduated from Millikan High School. The bride-elect also was graduated from LBCC where she affiliated with Mahabharata, and now is a student at LBSC where she is on the Dean's Honor Roll. She will be graduated in June with a degree in elementary education.

The prospective bridegroom attended LBSC where he was a member of Phi Kappa Tau and also on the Dean's Honor Roll. He will be graduated in June from UC, Berkeley, as a chemical engineer.

The pair plans a July 11, 1964 wedding.

Ring-Maio

Mrs. Mary C. Ring of Long Beach announces engagement of her daughter, Peggy, to Frank G. Maio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Main of Medford, Mass.

Both young persons are natives of Massachusetts where the bride-elect attended the Tewksbury Schools. Her fiancé is a musician with the Hank Penny Orchestra.

No wedding date is set.

Hollenbeck-Dodson

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Hollenbeck announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Ellen, to Michael Dodson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Dodson.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended LBCC. Her fiancé is a major in engineering at LBSC where he is affiliated with Acacia Fraternity.

The wedding date has not been set.

Bernstein to Appear at Bowl

One of the foremost singers of Israel, Netania Dav-rath, will make her debut at Hollywood Bowl Tuesday night as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Or-chestra. Walter Hendl will conduct.

Following the Davrath concert, the New York Phil-harmonic conducted by Leonard Bernstein will ap-pear Thursday, Friday and Sunday nights.

The Saturday night "Pops" will be "Encores of the American Musical The-ater," conducted by Frank De Vol, with Earl Wright-son, baritone; Lois Hunt, so-prano; and the Jack Hal-loran singers.

All five concerts during the week will be at 8:30 p.m.

AS LEADING soprano of the Israeli Opera, Miss Dav-rath has sung Mimi in "La Boheme" and other principal roles, and has also won an international reputation for her folk songs.

On her Bowl program Tuesday night, she will sing several Hebrew songs, a group of folk songs; and in addition, Tatiana's Letter Scene from "Eugene Oneg-in" by Tchaikowsky.

BERNSTEIN will present the gifted young pianist, Andre Watts on the Thursday program, Anna Moffo, Met-ropolitan Opera coloratura, will be soloist Friday. For the final New York Philharmonic event Sunday night violinist Jascha Heifetz and cellist Gregor Piatigorsky will play the Brahms "Double Concerto."

EXPERT'S OPINION

Art is something you buy for your own enjoyment, says Vincent Price. Some 200 works which he collected in Europe will be shown for 10 days at Sears, Roebuck and Co., Long Beach, beginning Aug. 28. The collection includes old masters such as Rembrandt and Goya, outstanding contemporary artists and "masters of the future." Prices range from $25 to $1,000. The works to be displayed here have not been seen in any other exhibit in the Southland.

Date for Belafonte Is Changed

Harry Belafonte and Com-pany continues a record-breaking pace at the Greek Theater, Los Angeles. The exponent of the calypso, folk song and popular ballad is making his sixth appear-ance at the outdoor play-house through Sept. 7.

Patrons holding tickets for the Wednesday, Aug. 28, performance are notified that it has been canceled. Exchange will be made for other available performances or refunded either at the box office or by mail. An extra date, Sunday, Sept. 1, has been added to the remaining schedule.

On Stage---

COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE, 5021 E. Anaheim St., "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," 7:45 p.m., Thursday; 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.
OFF-BROADWAY THEATER, 211 Lime Ave., "La Bamba," 8:30 p.m., Thursday through Sunday; "The Wilks' First Birthday," 2:30 p.m., Saturday.

In Choosing Art, Begin by Looking

By VINCENT PRICE

First, let's get over the popular misconception that original art is an oil painting on canvas. Oil paint can be used on boards, cardboard paper, silk, or any material that will hold it. Many modern painters use composition boards.

Some of the greatest works of art are not oil paintings at all, but water-colors and gouaches, which are more opaque than water-colors, but use water as the medium.

The old masters often painted on wood panels cov-ered with gesso, a superfine plaster, using eggwhite as the binder or medium, with finely ground natural min-erals and earth for colors. This is tempera. Later, they glazed the tempera with oil paints or colored varnishes.

NO LESS important or valuable are the drawings in ink, pencil, crayon or char-coal which the artists did either as notes for future paintings or simply for their own pleasure.

The graphic arts—etching, drypoint, woodcut, engraving, aquatint, lithography and others—are the artists' solutions to turning out more than one example of their work. Usually, they limited the number of prints for a plate either by choice or because the plate wore out.

AN ORIGINAL work of art denotes the all-important fact that it comes directly from the artist's hand or was under his personal super-vision. There are many re-productions today done to fool the purchaser. Mechanical processes are used to reproduce watercolors, and it's very difficult to tell the real from the false—but one has value, the other little or none.

In buying original art the first thing to do is go out and look. My sources of art include museums, galleries, bookstores, interior decora-tors, art schools and indi-vidual artists.

AFTER YOU'VE looked, decide on what you like. The name of the artist should be secondary in the consid-eration of his work. Keep in mind that everyone has different taste. Art is some-thing you buy for your own enjoyment, and not even all the greatest masterpieces ap-peal to everyone.

Art buying should be a mutual thing. I would not buy a painting without first con-sulting my wife.

Art Fair at Bixby Sept. 22

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Under the direction of Ralph Tarzian, Long Beach Art Association has com-pleted arrangements for its big, annual outdoor Art Fair to be held in Bixby Park Sunday, Sept. 22.

Each year, artists and art viewers come from through-out the Southland to attend the fair.

Ken Ross, well known art critic and director of the Los Angeles County art pro-gram, will judge the show which is open to all artists. An entry fee of $2 will be charged for each work.

Receiving hours will be from 8 to 11 a.m., judging will take place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and the show will be open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m.

There is no limit on the number of entries, but art-ists must bring their own easels or other means of displaying their work.

The September show in the association's gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. is titled "Figure" and will include work in all media. Entries must be taken to the gallery Monday between 1 and 7 p.m. Any number of paint-ings may be submitted by artists at a fee of $1 each.

Members having one-man shows in various business establishments during the month of August are Elaine Sagerhorn, Velma Bertsch, Alyce Saunders, Audre Hutchins, Joy Elliott, Athena Hall, Jack Van Eden, Con-nie Lettler, Marie Bucher, Evangeline Churnoss, Calva Cooke and Helen Franklin.

A TEA from 2 to 5 p.m. today at Pacific Coast Club will open an exhibit of pas-tels by G. Arthur Hopkins and watercolors by Cath-erine M. Richter. The public is invited.

ART CLASSES offered through Orange Coast Col-lege and sponsored by Art-ists League of Seal Beach are still open to interested applicants. Classes are held at the Art Center, Ocean Boulevard and Main Street, Seal Beach.

Registration will take place Monday through Wednesday and Sept. 4 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Orange Coast College, 7501 Fairview Road, Costa Mesa.

Scheduled classes and in-structors include: mosaics, Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., Jean Hudson; intermediate oil painting, Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m., Fred Rash; watercolors, Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m., Dr. Bela Biro.

The Artists League also will conduct children's classes Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at the center, with Marjorie Vanderlip as instructor.

SOUTH GATE Art Asso-ciation's annual Indian Sum-mer Membership Show is slated for Sept. 16 at the Art Gallery, Walnut and Tweedy Boulevard, South Gate. It will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Original art work will be offered for sale and paint-ing demonstrations will be conducted throughout the day. Awards for winning paintings will be made at 4:30 p.m.

Paintings by Philip Gilk-erson will hang in the gal-ery until Sept. 15. The gal-ery is open daily except Monday from 1 to 4 p.m. The association meets the third Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m.

ONE OUT of seven of the 290 entries selected for the Fifth Annual Exhibition of Illustration, sponsored by the Society of Illustrators in New York, is the work of alumni of the Art Center School, Los Angeles.

Ken Deardoff, an Art Cen-ter graduate, won one of three gold medals awarded for outstanding work. He also won an award of excel-lence, as did his fellow grad, David Klein.

Winning entries were selected by a jury headed by George Samerjan. The show is on exhibit at the Society of Illustrators Hall, New York City.

NEW YORK SCULPTOR Louise Nevelson, working in stone lithography for the first time in her career, com-pleted 26 editions of litho-graphs at Tamarind Work-shop, Los Angeles, during May and June. Her prefer-ence for somber mood dom-inates the color prints in muted brown, dark blue, brick red and olive green.

The Tamarind lithographs will be shown at the Martha Jackson Gallery, New York.

FORTY youngsters, 6 to 9 years of age, will partici-pate in Saturday art classes at the University of South-ern California beginning Sept. 21.

Mildred Taylor, painter and member of USC fine arts faculty, will conduct the classes, assisted by Verda Flowers, former teacher in Los Angeles City schools.

Children 6 and 7 years old will meet from 9 to 11 a.m.; those 8 and 9 years of age will meet from 10 a.m. to noon. Drawing, painting, construction work, clay, ceramics and metal sculp-ture will be included in the curriculum.

No testing or screening will be required; children will be accepted in order of their applications. Tuition of $30 covers materials and costs.

Further information may be obtained from USC De-partment of Fine Arts, Uni-versity Park, Los Angeles.

Gobel in 'Birdie' at Poor Casting Ruins Opera

George Gobel, one of the top laugh-getters in show business, opens Tuesday night in "Bye Bye Birdie" at Melodyland Theater in Anaheim, with dancing-singing star Elaine Dunn as his leading lady.

"Gypsy," starring Patrice Wymore, closes its two-week run tonight.

Stuart Damon, who scored in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," will play the part of Conrad Birdie. Lew Parker, a comedy star of the nightclub circuit and his wife, Betty Kean, are cast in important roles.

Gobel is cast as the manager of guitar-banging rock 'n' roll singer, the "birdie" of the title, who is drafted into the army. The farewell ceremonies for the darling of the teen-squealer set get hilariously fouled up in the course of one of Broadway's funniest musicals.

Elaine Dunn was a sensation in "Bye Bye Birdie" in its Las Vegas debut.

"Bye Bye Birdie," is the last of Melodyland Theater's current summer season series.

The fall season opens Sept. 10 with "Firefly," starring Anna Maria Alberghetti.

I have a gripe to air in my column today. It concerns opera impresarios, and would-be opera impresarios. And it is about the very poor judgment many of them use in casting lead singers for their productions.

As I have noted many times, an opera or operetta is only as good as its principal singers. It does not matter if the staging, chorus and lighting are all excellent—if the singing is bad, the performance is lost. A vivid example of this was seen in the Laguna Beach Festival of Opera production of "Rigoletto" recently in the Irvine Bowl. Grand opera was being tested as to popularity in Laguna and its future was being dangerously risked (although last season's productions were excellent) by bad casting in some of the roles. Although there are very fine operatic tenors right here in our midst who have appeared successfully with the Los Angeles Opera Company and the San Francisco Opera, male leads who were most disappointing were imported for this opera.

THE WONDERFUL performances of Norma Lynn as Gilda and John Arnold Ford as Sparafucile could not save what, but for bad judgment in casting, could have been a highly successful production. These mistakes set back the popularity of opera in our country.

The impresario of the Los Angeles Opera Company, although in possession of a "going concern" of opera, which has enjoyed five successful seasons, last year jeopardized the popularity of the company by engaging a leading tenor for FOUR out of SIX performances, a man who looked like a Fatty Arbuckle!

It is not enough that the singing voice is good—in opera there must be illusion and romantic conviction, as well as beautiful singing.

I HAVE A GRIPE, too, against the impresario of the San Francisco Opera who continues to relegate into inferior roles American singers who have proven themselves first-class artists.

The impresario of the opera company with which I sang in England had himself been a successful opera singer. Sir Frederick Austin knew singers and the theater and combined them adroitly. Such astute judgment as his is why opera is given the year-round in England.

LOVE IN OLD VIENNA

"I'd like it better if you were single," says Little Miss (Pamela Dunlap) to a wandering husband (David Emmes) in Arthur Schnitzler's "La Ronde" playing Thursday through Sunday evenings at the Off-Broadway Theater, 211 Lime.

Nolde Retrospective Show Is Impressive

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The major retrospective of the paintings, drawings, and graphics of Emil Nolde continues for one more week (through Sept. 1) at the Pasadena Art Museum. The first impact is color, expressionistic color, fauvist (wild beast) color. Nolde painted for the last 50-odd of his 88 years, and this show reflects a fantastic productivity, an indelible originality, and a passionate spirit.

Rather than chronologically, the show is hung in groupings. The earlier works, from around the turn of the century, are in the first room. Here, the self-taught artist worked in a similar spirit to Van Gogh though detail is summarized and color is more brutal. The next gallery is full of flowers, elegant quick watercolor studies, rapturous full-color oils. The most vivid is "Great Poppies—Red, Red, Red" of 1942 though "Sunflowers in the Storm" of the following year vies with its orange yellows, purple, and blue-green.

THE NEXT salon reflects the North German mysticism of Nolde the peasant, close to the earth and to folklore. Here are a "Last Supper" and an "Entombment" as well as a shocking triptych, "Mary of Egypt," and a rather lovely "Christ with Children."

Nolde was sent out by the German government in 1912 to study its then island possessions in the South Seas. The next room contains portraits of the people he saw on this trip, bearded Russians in fur caps, plum-skinned New Guinea natives with flame-colored hair (achieved with the slaked lime of coral), as well as portrait studies. Sometimes these have purple faces, sometimes green, which do not seem at all out of place in his palette.

Always, between his travels, Nolde returned to his home on the North Sea and his oil seascapes reflect a wild power and agony alongside ink drawings of serene sailboats on water which seem to float on a non-specified horizon.

IRONICALLY, Nolde the super-patriot was classified by Hitler as one of the "degenerate artists." His works were seized from museums (Nolde's work became popular early in his painting career) and sold off abroad by the Nazi government. Finally, he was forbidden to paint altogether.

A final gallery, a black room, contains the works, the unpainted paintings, of this boycotted area. The works are small watercolors, of women, of landscape, in which the colors glow with an inexpressible fire.

Why Should A Woman Want to Reduce?

Pat Walker Answers Your Personal Letters

Miss Pat Walker, the nationally known figure authority, spends one full day each week in her private office on Wilshire Blvd. in Los Angeles. Here she conducts the business affairs of her salons and personally replies to the many letters she receives. Printed here is a letter telling why many women want to reduce.

HUSBAND SHOWS NO AFFECTION

DEAR MISS WALKER:

Perhaps you may understand this letter when I say that socially I am a coward.

For one thing I've had a whopping big weight problem all my life but held my own until 5 years ago, except I always had large upper arms which meant watch the sleeves so I took up sewing.

Then the big joke came. I broke my ankle and the weight came on from lack of daily activity.

Hopeless despair set in. I couldn't lose weight and no one seemed to care and here I am at 200 pounds.

My skin is clear but that's not my problem. It's large arms and hips and a limpy ankle which would be better if there was not so much weight on it.

I am 53 years old, 5 ft. 4 in. tall, and have to wear oxfords. I hate the fact I don't fit anything that comes in the stores. I have tried drastic reducing programs, even sane ones, but no one cares. Not even my husband.

I have become the sounding board of everyone else's troubles as if I didn't have enough of my own.

Once I got flowers from my husband and was gay; today I hurt inside and hate myself.

To me it's important to look right as I belong to a service club. I don't go to meetings anymore because I look like you know what.

Also to wake a little romance in a so-called dead husband. I just can't be that old yet.

I think I got a book full of reasons why I need a remodeling job.

Maybe I try attacking the wrong end of this but whatever it is I continue to go backwards.

Oh, yes, I am nice and people like me but they don't invite me anywhere either.

What can I do?

MRS. W. M., Bellflower

DEAR MRS. W. M.:

Maybe the lack of interest your husband has shown is the indirect result of your own negligence. After all he once was the devoted husband you wanted and he can be again. If you have a complex about your appearance, it reflects in everything you do.

There really is no reason for a woman to feel the way you do because today you can seek professional help with your figure problems. We have revamped over 5 million figures throughout the years and many of them with the same problems you have and women in your own community. It is just as simple as picking up the phone and asking for a personal figure consultation and free trial treatment.

Sincerely yours,
PAT WALKER
National Figure Authority

Free Trial Treatment and Figure Analysis

Under Pat Walker's scientific personalizing a pleasure. Try it! You can have a complimentary treatment and figure analysis at no obligation. Most women see changes in 10 days. Visits are only $2.00.

For more information phone NE 6-6475, MEtcaif 4-0672 or HE 2-2973, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday thru Friday. Collect calls invited!

You can lose where you need to lose and you'll enjoy doing it. Pat Walker's personalized, comfortable service makes slenderizing a pleasure.

DESIRES NEW FIGURE BY NOVEMBER

DEAR MISS WALKER:

When my husband and I married in 1947, I was 25 and he was 31. I wore size 13 and could always see the love mirrored in his eyes.

Now I'm 46 and wear size 18½ and since I had an operation there has never been even a little spark of love showing.

My husband's family plans a trip out here in November and it would be wonderful to be able to look nice when they are here.

I'm enclosing a photo, but as you can see I hide if I can. At least I try to hide my figure as much as I can as I am ashamed. Can you help me?

Hopefully,
MRS. D.R., Downey

DEAR MRS. D.R.:

Thanks for your letter. There is no question that you have your share of problems, but let me assure you that you are not alone. Figure problems are our business and we are used to them and know how to handle them. What you want to regain is only natural, but let me give you the best advice I know how—you have already taken one step and that is you have recognized you have a figure problem. The next step is to do something about it! Come in to see us and we'll analyze your figure problems, tell you what we'll do for you, how much it will cost you and how long it will take. It's that simple. If your decision is to let us help you, you will probably find much happiness will be in store for you. Newly gained confidence in yourself brings about much in the way of personal attention, new found happiness and who knows, with the holiday season, just around the corner, your husband will again be an attentive, proud, and happy man who will shower much affection and flowers in your direction.

Sincerely yours,
National Figure Authority

Norwalk Woman Loses 21½ Pounds in Six Weeks

Here you see Mrs. Harvey, with her husband in their Norwalk home. She is reducing to be more active with her children and to be more presentable at P-T A meetings.

as told by Virginia Harvey, Norwalk

"I want to lose weight. The else I make a suit with a loose jacket.

"This year I'm going to be the 1st Vice President of our school's P.T.A., and that means getting up in front of a group every month to introduce the program and also attend other meetings all over the state. Therefore, I'd like to look and feel my best, and I cannot do it with this excess weight.

"I used to get so disgusted when I looked in a mirror, that I would turn away real fast, and if I felt this way, others must feel the same when they looked at me."

"When I go out to buy a nice dress for a party, or special occasion, it's very hard to find something in a size 18½ or 20 that doesn't make me feel and look like an old lady. Rather than wear them, I stay home, or I'm thrilled and happy with her husband married. Mrs. Harvey's has completed her program.

Here you see Virginia Harvey with Pat Walker, the national figure authority. After only 6 weeks she has reduced 21½ pounds, 4½ inches from her waist, 5 inches from her abdomen, 4½ inches from her hips, 4 inches off each thigh, and still going down.

weight and inch loss. She looks husband is so pleased with her so wonderful, and is beginning progress, that he has promised to resemble again the girl her her a new wardrobe when she

Questions and Answers by Pat Walker

QUESTION: How much does it cost to reduce? Mrs. H. H.
Treatments are $2 per treatment and from a figure analysis we can determine exactly the number of treatments you need to regain your figure.

QUESTION: Every time I try to reduce I look haggard, old and get so nervous, D.G.
With our program you not only lose where you need to lose but you look younger and more vibrant and it does not age you in any sense of the word.

QUESTION: How long does it take to reduce? I get so discouraged when I try on my own, Mrs. P.M.

Every woman is an individual with her own special problems, so therefore one woman needs less than another woman.

QUESTION: Your ads sound too good to be true? Mrs. B.F.
The people that you read about in our ads are real people who have used our system and are women many of whom you know personally.

"Honolulu Woman Was Ashamed of Her Figure"

Here you see Mrs. Jessie Thompson with Pat Walker, the national figure authority. Mrs. Thompson is wearing a size 20 dress and weighs 189 pounds. For years she had all kinds of figure problems and was convinced it was glandular or hereditary.

As told by Jessie Thompson, Honolulu, Hawaii.

My name is Jessie Thompson. I live at 3838 Pahoehoe Avenue, Honolulu. I am married and I have 2 fine sons; ages 20 & 23. For years I have been plagued with all kinds of frustrations and I did not realize until recently that most of them were the direct result of being frustrated and unhappy because of how I looked in a mirror. For years I read in magazines about Stauffer System and wished that there was one here in Honolulu. I can't explain the joy I felt when I read about Pat Walker arriving from the Mainland and saw her picture where she was photographed getting off a plane and read that she was here because of the opening of her new Salon. Then when I saw Miss Walker on T.V. and read about the wonderful things that were happening to the ladies in the Salon, I called and made an appointment and went into the Salon to see them. Until going in I really did not believe that there was professional help for people like me. For years I had listened to my friends, who like myself had all kinds of weight problems, and I had convinced myself that it was either my glands or it ran in my family, and that I was destined to always live with myself the way that I was. My sons appreciate a pretty figure and I can't tell you what it means when they look at me now and rave over what's happening to "their mom." It feels so good to get up in the morning and look at the scales in the bathroom and not be afraid to get on them. It's a lot of fun to think about walking on the beach here at Waikiki and not wear the loose muu-muus that I have pretended to enjoy wearing for all these years. I am going to wait until I am a size 14 before I get a bathing suit and I will tell the world I'll love wearing it. Miss Walker was photographed with me in the salon and I felt like a real celebrity with all the people watching us. It is really the only time in many years that I did not cringe when they pointed a camera at me. Probably what has happened to me is the same as any other woman who has found happiness and a new way of thinking, and a new outlook on life as a result of finding her figure again. I only wish that it had happened to me many years ago, because I feel that I have missed so much in life as a result of dreading to go to parties because I felt ashamed of the way I looked, and dreading to stand up before a club group to speak because I felt that they were looking at my figure faults and not listening to what I was saying, and I feel that my mental outlook did not make my life with my husband and sons as happy as it could have been and will be in the future. In other words, I am glad that I mustered up enough courage to go and talk to Miss Walker at the Salon and find the solution to my many problems that I have had for years.

OUR COVER

Old Mission Santa Barbara is symbolic of Father Junipero Serra's work in California. Alone, it kept the sanctuary light burning when the sun went down on the mission period. Father Serra admired the Channel Indians and foresaw great promise for a spiritual vineyard there. When the Presidio was built at Santa Barbara, he blessed the land and raised the Cross only to find that the mission must wait. Authorized a month before his death on Aug. 28, 1784, the actual founding fell to his successor. Today's cover picture of the mission includes, in the foreground, the fountain of Moorish design built in 1808 of native Santa Barbara sandstone as part of the water system there. More about Fr. Serra and the mission on Page 8.

NEXT WEEK

It is easy to see that with 40 per cent or more of the American Army stationed in some 73 countries of the world, the need for bilingual GIs is pressing. Hence the importance of the Army Language School, ranked as the world's finest linguistic training center, in California. Next week, Southland tells you about this interesting school and its functions.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on GLASSCOCK — P.G., Long Beach.

P.G.: GLASSCOCK is a surname alteration based on the English town-name "Glas-cote," in Warwickshire. The source syllables, "Glas-Cote" were achieved by shortening Nicholas to "Glas," and joining it with "Cote" for "cot-tage." John Glascock, a remote forefather, is listed in the Close Rolls parchments of King Henry VI in 1454. The Glascock shield, granted in 1571, is covered with ermine, emblazoned with three blue roosters placed below a black stripe lying along the top of the shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain KRUSE — MRS. F.F., Lakewood.

F.F.: KRUSE, an ancient German surname, is a spelling variation of Krauss. This originated as a personal descriptive nickname, meaning "curly-haired one." No other data is accessible on Kruse.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze COURTNEY — C.C., J.M., Long Beach.

C.C., J.M.: COURTNEY is English, but is based on a French town-name, Courtenay, meaning "little farmstead." Records of the late 1200s in England list Hugo de Courtenay of Devonshire and Henry de Curteneye of Somerset. The family shield is gold, emblazoned with three red coins or balls.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you information on POFF? — E.M., Seal Beach.

E.M., POFF when researched to its early German origin, is found to be re-spelled from the hero-warrior name Bode-frit meaning "peaceful messenger." Condensation of Bodefrit to Boffert was followed by alteration to Poff.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you the origin of VENNARD? — Mrs. I. S., Long Beach.

I. S.: VENNARD originated as Venard in Normandy, northwestern France. Venard is a Norman dialectical spelling of the eastern French surname Guenard, meaning "strong governor."

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you publish genealogy on RAMSEY? — D. G., Norwalk.

D. G.: RAMSEY had two English sources that were merged many centuries ago in the modern spelling of this name. "Ram's-eye" meaning "Ram-land," and "Hramn's-

Old Jewelry Does a Comeback

By Helen L. Gillum

Cameos, like this from Mrs. Thomas Waller's collection, are treasures from milady's jewel box of many years ago.

WITH the growing popularity of antique jewelry, many an old ring, bracelet, brooch or lavalier is being salvaged from great-grandma's jewel chest, dusted and polished, and put to delightful new use. Cleaned and repaired, in some cases redesigned, these items are being appreciated in a modern light, not only for their quaint, old-fashioned beauty, but for a certain mystic charm imparted by the traditions of their times.

styles. They are especially intriguing because a small beetle is embedded in each of the 3/4-inch ornaments of tear drop shape. Amber, a fossil resin, was a gummy exudation from the trees of the pine family thousands of years ago. Insects of all kinds (many that are now extinct) were caught in and covered by the sticky substance. Highly prized in itself, amber is even more desirable today when it contains these preserved fossil insects.

An "obituary ring" in Mrs. Waller's collection illustrates the "mourning" jewelry particularly fashionable in the second half of the 18th century. These were frames of various sizes used for pendants, lockets, rings, bracelets or other, which were designed to contain small appropriate items of departed loved ones.

THE OVAL gold frame of Mrs. Waller's ring, 5/8-inch across, is set with a rock-crystal carving of an 18th century lady mounted on a tiny background mat woven from the lady's own gray hair. The standing figure of the deceased woman was carved from the back of the crystal and filled in with a white substance, so that her fingers, facial features, flowing gown and cross she carries stand out clearly in almost "ghostly white" detail. The ring was made at the time of her death, according to the custom of those days. Her initials, "BSOD", and "OB-May 30, 1800" appear on the back with her age, 78.

A pair of intricately carved jet pendant earrings is a fine sample of jewelry made from this black mineral, described by one authority to be "the blackest brown one may ever see!" Actually, jet is a velvet-black variety of lignite or brown coal, which lends itself to carvings and a high polish. It is one of the four "organic" gems which trace their ancestry to living things, the other three being amber, pearls, and coral.

CAMEOS, all-time favorites through the ages, are also favored by Mrs. Waller. Two of her cameos came from Pompeii, and feature delicately carved women's heads. A larger one which profiles the figure of a woman against a background of the Colosseum in Rome, came from a shop near the Colosseum. The largest cameo, 2 1/2 inches across, bears a head in distinct relief, and is from Italy. Glowing in rich, purple tones is a cameo carved from a pure sparkling amethyst. A beautiful cameo ring, created from a red sardonyx, dates to pre-Civil War days.

A brooch and pair of matching earrings fashioned of "bog oak" are fascinating because of their origin. They were carved from the black, ebony-like wood of oak which had been immersed in peat bogs as a seasoning process.

Treasured for their sentimental value are an old ring and an old medal. The medal, inscribed "BES Bull, 1859," against a rural background in raised design, was awarded to Mr. Waller's grandfather, a gentleman farmer of Mellor, England, in that year. The heavy gold "keeper" ring with chased decorations, which Mrs. Waller enjoys wearing occasionally, is her grandmother's wedding ring.

Father Junipero Serra is pictured in many ways by many artists. Above, one version of the famous mission padre.

By Jan Heminway

FATHER JUNIPERO SERRA first limped into California in July 1769. He was 56, crippled with an ulcerated leg, suffering from asthma—and eager to gather wild grapes for the altar.

Majorca, his birthplace, is a Spanish province in the Mediterranean. Its people know Christianity as a happy thing. Then, as now, they danced and sang for the greater glory of God, and Fr. Serra brought this exaltation to California. The missionaries sang around the camp fires and the curious Indians were drawn from the shadows. Later, they led them in work and play, as well as formal devotions, through song. Almost 50 years after the mission system was destroyed, Robert Lewis Stevenson wrote at length on the remnants of the Indian choir at San Carlos, their aged faces "vividly lit up with joy."

Except that he was small and dark, no one knows what the great Franciscan looked like. His numerous portraits were painted by artists who never saw him. Some show him as hollow-cheeked and ascetic, others round-faced and bland. In late years, many statues have been erected in his honor. Some show a strong, bronze man holding aloft a heavy mission model; others a stern, stone man surveying the world from a pedestal. More to his nature are those in which one arm is about an Indian boy. For Serra was a man motivated by love. His frail body was leashed to it.

HE HAD SPENT 20 years among the half-titled tribes of Mexico when rumors from Madrid reached the New World. News had come from the ambassador to St. Petersburg that Russia claimed North America. Had not the Indians' ancestors crossed by way of Siberia? From their launching base in Alaska, the countdown had begun. By the time Serra heard it, the story had grown dramatically. The Russians were declared to have landed somewhere in California and lost 300 men in a terrible battle with the natives. Everyone knew they had enslaved the Aleuts without any effort at Christianizing them so he was jubilant at the chance to lead a crusade northward. He traveled through hundreds of pagan villages above San Diego—without meeting any Russians—but he knew here was the work for which he'd left home and country. Here were uncounted thousands of wild grapes to bring to the altar.

Ripening in the security of the missions, the adults continued to visit their barbaric relatives. How much they really comprehended of the new faith was uncertain. It was the children on whom the harvest depended, for their tendrils fastened to all the concepts of mission life. Even so, they were a primitive people and the vines would take generations to cultivate.

THIRTEEN YEARS passed in getting the necessary cooperation for founding the first mission along the Santa Barbara Channel. There had been a 200-mile gap between the five in the north and the three in the south. Yet, the Channel Indians were the most promising of the wild grapes. They had a higher civilization and were more industrious than most. Serra had met them many times on his trips up and down the coast.

On one occasion, he was returning to Carmel during a winter storm. El Camino Real ran along the coast at the channel, and during high tide was under water. Now, the breakers roared over the path to crash against the mountains jutting into the sea. As the small party halted, a band of local Indians offered help. They carried the frail old man up the craggy path to high land while the soldiers scrambled behind, dragging at their unwilling mules. Amiably, they escorted the Spaniards along the unfamiliar trail, learning the hymns the old Father sang and joining in the harmony with joy, even though the words were strange, music being universal.

BEFORE HIS DEATH in 1784, Fr. Serra had established nine missions and built the foundations for more. From the roots he planted came the great establishments in which modern California agriculture was born. On land that had known no crops, wheat fields rippled in the breeze like inland oceans as far as the eye could see. With irrigating systems that channeled river water for miles, all the fruits and vegetables native to Spain were grown. Sheep were sheared for their wool to clothe the naked neophytes, and vast herds of cattle furnished hides and tallow as well as meat—all from a handful of domestic animals brought in by Serra.

With a scattering of skilled workmen and the puzzled Indians, the friars made the missions self-sufficient. They fashioned looms for weaving, tannery tanks for turning hides into leather, and water-powered mills for grinding grain. They made their own soap and candles, adobe bricks and roof tiles. The women learned to cook, spin, weave and sew. Everything was done on the wings of a song, and the song lasted long after the buildings were shattered.

THE CARMEL mission, where Serra lies buried, was first to be hit by secularization in 1833. The priest moved to the Presidio chapel in Monterey, the nearby capital. Yet, the Indians waited in the forsaken compound. They raised ramparts of music and dreamed of the return of happier days. Incredulously, they watched as greedy colonists stripped the roof of tiles and carried away everything of value. The ceiling caved in and for almost a century the church lay exposed to wind and rain.

But so long as they lived, the old neophytes kept the ruined shell clean, with bright flowers at the phantom altar. Warmed by the afterglow of Father Serra's love, they were sure that he returned every night, at midnight, to sing High Mass. The wild grapes had become sacramental wine.

Rich beauty is still to be found in the missions of California which Fr. Serra brought to pass. Above, at Capistrano.

Protecting 70 miles
of waterfront:
that's job of
L.B.-L.A. Harbor's

Fireboat Fleet

By Lou Jobst

Newest and most up-to-date fireboat in the United States, L. A. City No. 4, shoots plumes of water from three of her deck guns on arrival at home port earlier this year. She's one of six L. A.-Long Beach Harbor fireboats.

THE FIREBOAT fleet which must protect the 70 miles of Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor waterfront from disaster may be small, but it packs a lot of firefighting punch.

The six boats which comprise the fleet—Los Angeles has four and Long Beach two—can pour an astounding 32,500 gallons of water per minute on a harbor blaze.

This torrent would fill an average-sized backyard swimming pool in less than 30 seconds and would require 26 land-based fire engines to duplicate.

Besides its deluge-producing potential, the fireboat fleet is one of the most modern and versatile in the world. It is manned by hand-picked and specially trained crews and is equipped with the latest devices, including radar.

One fireboat, City of L. A. No. 4, is one of the largest and newest fireboats in service anywhere.

Built in Portland, Ore., at a cost of more than $739,000, the 76-foot "No. 4" is a seagoing firefighter's dreamboat.

"We thought of everything a fireboat should be and we put it all into No. 4," says a Los Angeles fire officer.

Fifteen years in the planning, No. 4 is a floating power plant with six 400-horsepower diesels, two to propel her and four to operate her pumps which can hit a blaze with 9,000 gallons of water per minute.

She is also equipped with controllable pitch propellers which give instant reverse speed, a comforting innovation when working close to boiling, explosive flames.

FIREBOAT 4 also has maneuvering jets at the waterline which permit sidling up to a conflagration, providing the craft with mobility to hit a fire from any direction.

And since Los Angeles Harbor is one of the world's largest petroleum ports, No. 4 carries tanks containing nearly 600 gallons of foam for gasoline flame suppression.

Day-to-day life aboard the fireboats is largely routine—a continuing series of drills and inspection patrols, broken occasionally by the ceremonial task of greeting a new ocean liner or leading a nautical parade.

The patrols serve a dual purpose. They keep the crews in fighting trim and ferret out potential fire dangers.

Oil slicks and gasoline spills are among the most frequent dangers spotted. Often these are dissipated by turning waterguns on the spots, but when the oil slick is large, boom crews are called in. The slick is corralled inside log booms and then covered with straw which soaks up the petroleum. The straw is then picked up and taken away.

It is a tribute to the efficiency of this work that the two ports have had only three major fires since World War II: the $10 million Markay ship and Shell Oil pier fire on Mormon Island in June 1947; the $2½ million Matson dock conflagration at Wilmington in March 1960, and the Long Beach Pier 2 fire in 1945, a blaze that burned for more than 30 hours and caused damage estimated at $775,000.

A big asset to the fireboat fleet is the newness of the two ports which—from a fire standpoint—are among the safest in the world.

While Los Angeles Harbor still has a large number of wooden docks and wharves, Long Beach is virtually all built of fire-resistant steel and concrete.

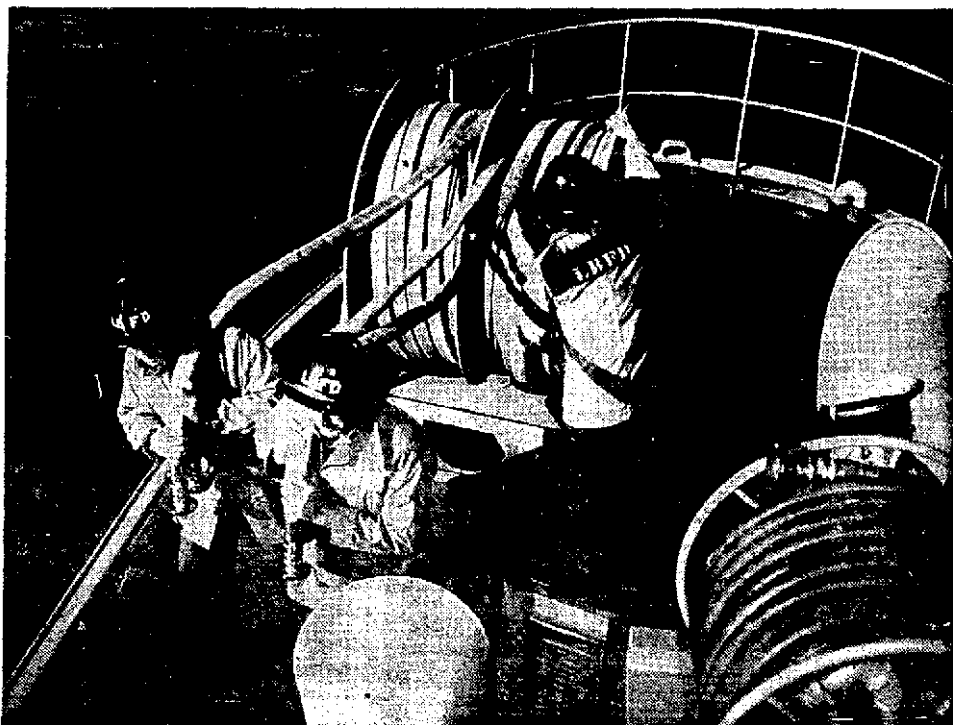

The new warehouses at both ports are built of metal and contain fire alarm and water sprinkling systems.

FOR THESE and other reasons Long Beach maintains only two fireboats with a total water pumping capacity of 9,000 gallons per minute, while Los Angeles has two boats—No. 2 and No. 4—which can deliver blaze-squelching deluges of 10,000 and 9,000 gallons respectively.

And while life aboard the fireboats is much different than shore duty in the firehouse, the Long Beach fireboaters, at least, still have to cope with the cigarette butt blaze. They have made a number of runs to the Pacific Electric Railway trestle and Rainbow Pier where a carelessly discarded fag has started a blaze.

Spray is blasted from water gun aboard one of Long Beach's powerful fireboats.

In addition to deck-mounted water guns, fireboats also carry standard hose units to back up their activities. Above, crew of Long Beach Fireboat 2 unreefs hose on stern in practice. Men train hard and keep equipment fit.

Outside House Painting Now Eliminated

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the homeowner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglas FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residence until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking, or peeling.

FLEXON the miracle exterior wall coating is so indestructible and durable that it is absolutely guaranteed to eliminate the necessity for painting the outside walls of your home, apartment building or commercial property for 10 full years. This outstanding product when applied is approximately 20 times the thickness of ordinary paint and makes a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather, and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

The United States Government and many large corporations such as U.S. Steel Corporation, Aluminum Corporation of America, Pacific Telephone, and Shell Oil Company, are included on the honor roll of FLEXON users.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with special heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall surface and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

They Haunt Graveyards for Art

By Mary Neth

HAUNTING graveyards has proven a far-from-gloomy occupation for Avon Neal of Artesia.

It has resulted in appearances on TV and radio, travel abroad (from Africa to England) and best of all, a storm of real excitement in the art world.

For, in the half-forgotten old burying grounds of New England, Neal and his partner, Ann Parker, have discovered an incomparable storehouse of native American art.

They've brought this archaic art to life in a series of delicate, meticulously executed rubbings: creating a new art form from one of old.

To make the rubbings, Neal works with a non-woven fabric paper, a mixture of full-bodied inks and a cloth-covered dauber.

THE PRINCIPLE is simple: place a thin piece of paper over a coin, rub with a soft lead pencil and you have the idea.

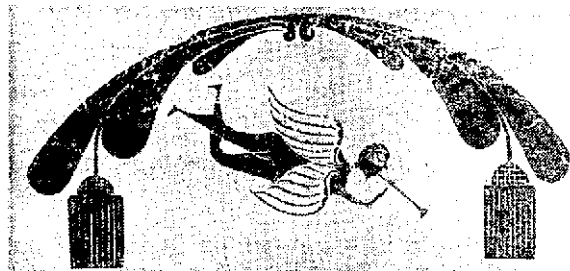

But, producing a rubbing that is esthetically pleasing in itself—not just a literal record of the original design—involves artistic workmanship and lots of back-breaking work.

By dint of just that, Neal, a writer-sculptor, and Miss Parker, a photographer, have carried the technique to perfection.

Result: their work has caught the eyes of collectors around the world.

Aided by a Ford Foundation grant, they now have more than 2,000 gravestone rubbings: 150 ready for exhibit in London and Paris later this summer.

Already the work has been shown widely in the U.S. Time and Look magazines devoted feature articles to their accomplishments, "Art in America" has sponsored a limited edition of their portfolios as part of its 50th anniversary program.

This rubbing from a New Hampshire headstone is part of a traveling exhibit compiled by Avon Neal, Ann Parker.

THE VENTURE of reproducing stone pictures with paper and ink began in Mexico. The idea was hit upon after viewing crumbling Mayan ruins.

The first rubbings (pre-Columbian reliefs) were made to be sold in art galleries here and in Mexico.

However, the Mexican government seemingly took a dim view of the project. Officials limited the output to two rubbings of each major relief—one for the foreigners, one for Mexico.

Neal later circumvented this regulation. Upon return to California, he transferred the rubbings to blocks of plaster of Paris and cement, carved out replicas of the original bas-reliefs and then made additional rubbings from them.

But, the pre-Columbian work never created the impact the New England rubbings have.

UNTIL NOW, this graveyard art has lain nearly neglected in America's back yard. Though it caused some attention in the past, it was never studied in detail or as a related group.

And, as a rich source of early American design the headstones are a gold mine.

Generally speaking, the practical, puritanical colonists were sparing of unnecessary decoration. Their houses, tools, utensils and furniture were, first of all, utilitarian.

But, in that rigid society, when it came to commemorating the dead, the living came up with some very lively pictorial images.

According to Neal, "Stone-cutting was not necessarily a full-time occupation. Many of the gravestone makers were farmers, blacksmiths, cobblers."

PERHAPS THIS explains the originality in design many of the markers display.

As Neal points out, "They managed to convey an astonishing variety of pictorial images, not only reflecting attitudes of their time, but reaching beyond them in vision and originality."

"Portraits abound, varying from young children to stout deacons, most are a deliberate, if primitive, attempt to portray the deceased."

All in all, the results are wonderful — sometimes poignantly humorous, always rich in stylistic decoration.

While in Europe this year, Neal and Parker will attempt to trace the carving techniques of the early American gravestones to English forebears. Then, upon return, they will continue the study of Americana—surveying next the tombstones of the Southern seaboard.

Seemingly, for Neal graveyards will remain happy hunting grounds for some time to come.

Neal adds another New England gravestone rubbing to the growing portfolio he and Miss Parker are assembling. Work has resulted in travel and radio, TV appearances.

Warm, welcoming and definitely interesting is the living room of the peninsula home of Clive Greenlee. This is one view of the attractive area.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

When a Bachelor's at Home

Another living room view, showing undraped glass wall that unites the patio with the indoors. Greenlee maintains a bit of flame in his fireplace the year around.

By Stella George

WHEN HE isn't traveling around the United States or exploring a new and interesting spot in Europe, Clive Greenlee lives a happy bachelor life in his unique home located at 60 60th Place on the peninsula. The background of the home is worthy of mention. At one time there were two garages on the rear of the empty lot. When the new home was being built, these were converted into what are now the kitchen and bedroom areas. The living room was built in front.

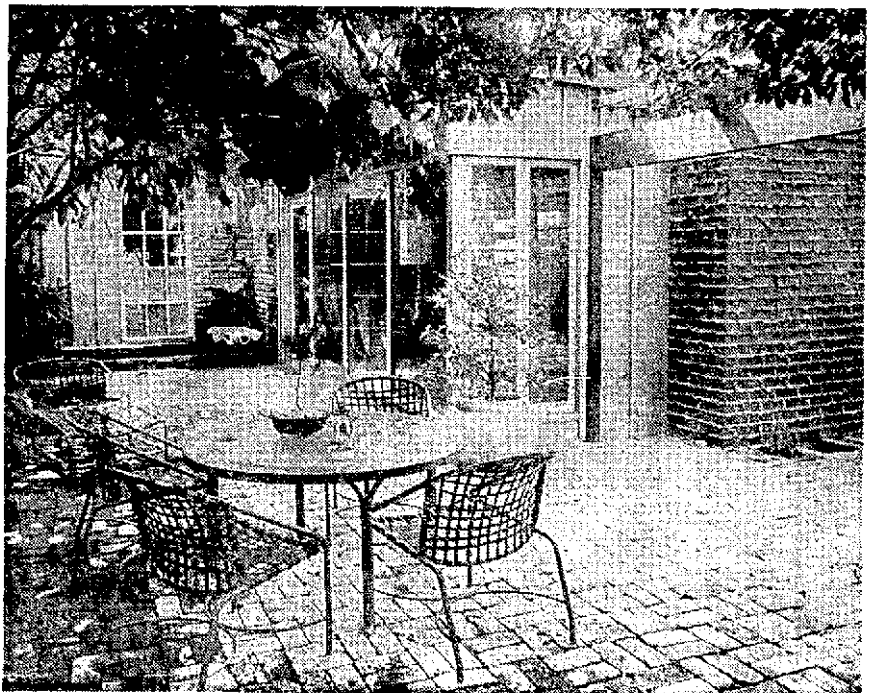

The home is still set far back on the large lot, and the front door is reached through a shaded, louvre-beamed patio. The entire patio flooring is of brick and greenery abounds. In the evening, hidden lights lend their warm glow to the area which is designed for entertaining or lone, every-day enjoyment.

Although he is now blind, Greenlee has had his home decorated in tastes befitting his own ideas on the subject. He has a keen and sensitive awareness of accessories, accents and colors. Paintings were chosen with great care. Charles Glass, who is associated with interior designer Floyd McMains, worked with Greenlee in the planning.

THE LIVING ROOM faces one side of the patio. An absence of drapes provides a full view of the inviting, tropical setting with a shell waterfall in one corner trickling a musical melody in the background.

A warm and welcoming atmosphere prevails in this home. The brick fireplace at one end of the living room usually has a fire even on sultry summer days, a glowing invitation to guests who cross the threshold. A bam-

Entrance to the home is far back in the picture, near and to the right of a shell waterfall. Brick-floored patio can be contemplative or merry, as occasion may be.

HINTS ON CARPET SHADING

An apparent change of color-tone that sometimes appears on a rug or carpet, shading is the result of pressure of scuffing, which causes the tufts or pile to fall at various angles. It is characteristic of all pile fabrics, especially good quality, high pile carpets. The better you keep the pile falling in one direction, the less shading there will be on your carpet. Run your carpet sweeper or vacuum cleaner in the direction of the pile for uniform color effect. This is not a defect.

From the carport of the Greenlee home, a winding way to the left through a patio leads to the front door.

boo "plant" in one corner is artificial; however, it complements a real plant across the room so that both achieve interest as live and decorative pieces.

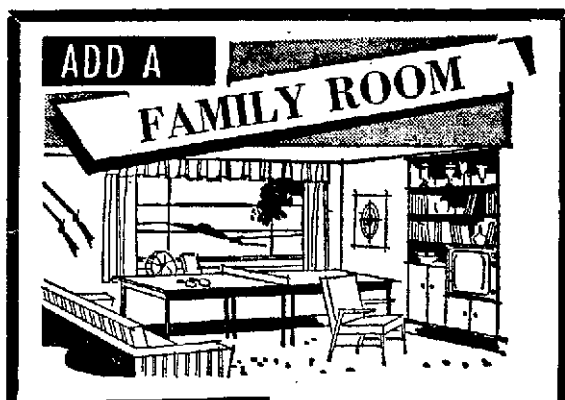

At one end of the living room Greenlee has installed an antique pump organ which is used for the pleasure of guests, and the owner himself. Two old, handsome, antique chairs done in needlepoint are nearby. Among other pieces in the room is a floor lamp, set in the corner near the organ, that once was of the kerosene type, but now has been converted into electricity. The heavy wrought iron base is artistic in the setting. A painting above the organ is an original by the widely known artist, Fran Solini.

THE KITCHEN is large and well-organized for the owner's special needs. There is a dining alcove in one corner where his chair, at the head of the table, is conveniently near the wall phone. Since his profession is that of a highly trained clinical psychologist, the phone rings often, and must, of necessity, be easy to locate. Indirect lighting is placed above the high beams in the room. Work areas are uncluttered, easy to maintain. An old-fashioned china cupboard is a distinctive decoration, as are the many treasures within.

There are two compact bedrooms, and two baths in the home. Furnishings are simple and well planned. Guests who tour the home admire heirloom pieces kept for sentiment as well as decoration. An antique clock with wooden parts which has a place of honor on the dresser is an example.

Although Greenlee has traveled extensively, he feels that his home on the bay offers much which might be found in a castle in Spain or a shop in Rome, both for him and the many, many friends who come to call.

Barbecued Ribs: A Family Treat

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Southland Magazine Home Economics
Editor

IF YOU are at an impasse about what to serve for a Labor Day weekend supper, here's a unique recipe for barbecued spareribs. It's quick and easy and delicious, besides. The trick is to simmer the ribs in the kitchen first, while preparing the sauce and readying the outdoor fire. Then, move it all outside in a jiffy and grill just till the ribs are crisp and brown, basting generously.

The savory sauce is truly Western, with just the right zest. The reason is prepared tomato sauce with the special tangy touch. This just-right combination of tomato and herb flavors is a perfect ingredient for all barbecue sauces.

Try these unusual spareribs — they're just likely to be the best you've ever tasted!

BBQ Spareribs

Layer 2 medium onions, sliced, and 4 pounds fresh spareribs, cut in large sections in 5 quart saucepan; add ½ teaspoon sage, 1 bay leaf and enough water to cover. Cover tightly, bring to boil and simmer till fork tender, about 1 hour. As ribs cook, make sauce:

- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1 tsp. each, salt and paprika
- ½ tsp. each, garlic salt and ginger
- 2 tbsp. brown sugar
- 3 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tbsp. oil

Combine all ingredients and simmer 20 minutes. Strain. Arrange ribs on grill over slow charcoal fire about 8 inches from heat. Brush ribs with sauce, turning several times. Grill till ribs are crisp and brown (30 to 40 minutes). Serves 4 to 5.

Spareribs, barbecued and basted the while with savory western style sauce, are a prime Labor Day menu idea.

Recipe of the Week

EVER-WELCOME flavor of steak is enhanced by a specialty that wins $5 as best recipe of the week for Mrs. Edna Luehr, 425 E. Seaside Blvd., Long Beach 2. The recipe:

Swiss Cream Steak

- 2 lbs. round steak
- 2 med. onions diced
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. paprika
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- ½ cup sour cream
- ½ cup flour
- 2 tblsp. grated cheese
- ¼ cup butter

Cut meat into serving pieces. Dust with salt, pepper, flour. Melt butter, add onion, cook until golden brown and remove onions. Add meat and brown on both sides. Add cooked onions, water, sour cream, grated cheese and paprika. Place all in a casserole, cover and bake about one hour in 375 degree oven or until done. Serves 4 to 6.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Their ancestor, Simon de Ramseye, migrated to Scotland about 1125. The clan shield from 1380 is black, emblazoned with an ermine chevron between three silver ram heads. The Ramsey tartan is red, overlaid with wide black cross stripes accented with white pin-striping. Thomas, James and John Ramsey were south Pennsylvania land owners in 1781.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze DE LEON.

—R. D., Stanton.

R. D.: DE LEON in Spanish, with three different sources. "De Leon" denoted "lion" in Spain in the Middle Ages, pertaining to the lion-like courage of an ancestor, but also designated a place of business that was trademarked by a picture of a lion. A third origin was an ancestor who once lived in the Spanish province of Leon. The ancient family shield has a red, gold-crowned lion centered on a silver background.

The most celebrated ancestor was Ponce de Leon, born in 1640, Spanish discoverer of Florida, searcher for the legendary "Fountain of Youth."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on EUSTACE from Kildare, Ireland.

—M. F., San Francisco.

M. F.: EUSTACE and EUSTICE, Irish surnames, trace back to a Norman-French ancestor called Fitz-ustace who migrated to Erin in the 1100s. Eustace was a baptismal name expressing "abundance." Eustace family estates included large areas of the Irish counties of Kildare and Carlow. The Eustaces had the title of Viscounts Baltinglass. Their coat-of-arms has a red "X"-shaped cross centered on a gold shield. The family motto "Cur me persequeris" translates from Latin as "Wherefore my perseverance."

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. What is the world's oldest business company? K.A.

A. This may be a concern with headquarters in Falun, Sweden. Stora Kopparbergs Bergslags, AB ("great copper mountain mine"), is the direct descendant of a business which has been in continuous operation for at least 674 years. Its earliest existing record, now in Sweden's National Archives and dated June 16, 1288, disposes of a one-eighth share in its copper mining concerns. After copper mining ceased, about a century ago, the company became active in the fields of iron and steel, paper, and chemicals.

Q. Was novelist Jules Verne trained in science? C.R.

A. No. Jules Verne (1828-1905) went to Paris to study law after completing his studies at the lycee in Nantes, his birthplace. In Paris, he started to write for the theater when about 20, and later became interested in literature. His first success was the novel "Five Weeks in a Balloon" (1862). In writing his scientific romances he made use of all the scientific knowledge of his time, as well as his tremendous imagination and inventive powers. Eventually he built up a personal reference library of thousands of volumes.

Q. What was the "Wedding of the Waters" in connection with the Erie Canal? R.F.

A. The "Wedding of the Waters" ceremony marked the completion of the Erie Canal. It took place in New York Harbor on Nov. 4, 1825. Gov. DeWitt Clinton and other state officials left Buffalo, the canal's western terminus, on Oct. 26 in the "Seneca Chief," first boat to make the entire canal trip. They carried with them a barrel of water from Lake Erie, and when they arrived in New York they poured this water into New York Harbor to symbolize the joining of the waters of east and west.

Q. Is the coelacanth still considered the world's rarest fish? D.Y.

A. No. It was so considered beginning in 1938, at the time the first live specimen was caught off the east coast of Africa. However, after a second one turned up in 1952, a third in 1953, and at least five additional specimens were caught in 1954, the coelacanth lost its title as to rarity.

Q. Is the St. Johns River

the only U. S. river that flows northward? E.W.

A. No. The St. Johns River in Florida is remarkable because it flows northward throughout its entire course, until it turns abruptly eastward, near Jacksonville, to empty into the Atlantic. There are a number of U.S. rivers which flow northward for part of their course, some of them for long distances. Among these are the Willamette, Monongahela, Niagara, Tennessee, Red River of the North, Big Horn, Powder, Deschutes, and Genesee. In Alaska, the Colville and other rivers flow northward to empty into the Beaufort Sea.

Bud Drop Cause

Tuberous begonias sometimes drop buds because they don't get enough air circulation. This is especially true with potted plants grown up next to a wall. Too much shade will cause the same problem. Begonias like high shade (and air circulation) rather than low, dense shade, according to the California Association of Nurserymen.

MEDICINE AND YOU

New Image in Heart Study

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

A NEW community study of deaths from coronary heart disease in persons 50 years old and younger has turned up an image of the coronary-prone individual that differs from the popular conception.

The popular view: A tense, driving, ambitious person.

The new finding: The coronary-prone individual is more likely to be an inactive person.

Other findings, reported in New England Journal of Medicine:

Fewer victims than expected were found in professional or managerial posts.

A considerable number of victims were either alcoholics or heavy drinkers.

A NEW BATH OIL rich in fatty substances called phospholipids is highly effective in relieving itching and dryness in skin disorders.

The oil, called Inthol, contains no mineral oil or lanolin. But the phospholipids in it closely simulate the fats of the skin, to facilitate passage of the oil into the skin, according to Dr. Bertram-Meister of Yonkers, N. Y.

Dr. Meister, in a report in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society, says Inthol gave "good to excellent" results in 92 per cent of 71 patients.

Inthol, at last report, is not yet available for general use.

KLEENEX tissue can be helpful in the treatment of painful cracks and fissures in the soles of the feet, a doctor reports in Archives of Dermatology.

Here's how the new technique works: One or two layers of ordinary Kleenex tissue are applied to the affected area. Over the tissue the doctor paints

Friars balsam (tincture Benzoin compound).

The tissue adheres to the affected area in a surprising manner, forming a protective and artificial skin. It won't even come off in a hot bath.

The protective layer allows healing to occur.

A NOTED nutrition expert says vitamin supplements aren't needed by the individual who pursues the sport of mountain climbing.

Dr. Fredrick J. Stare of Harvard says sufficient vitamins can be obtained in a balanced diet. His report is in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

ANOTHER negative report on the efficacy of an antifatigue drug has been published in the medical literature.

The latest report, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, is that of four doctors affiliated with the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

They gave the drug—a combination of the potassium and magnesium salts of aspartic acid—to 26 inmates of the Maryland State Penitentiary, all experienced weight-lifters.

Tests failed to show any beneficial effect of the aspartates on the muscular performance or well-being of the prisoners.

TROUBLED with leg cramps at night? Then try sleeping with your legs flexed.

The suggestion is that of a medical consultant reporting in the journal GP. Nocturnal leg cramps, says the doctor, usually occur in a leg that is fully extended.

MENTAL depressions aren't limited to the city dweller. American farmers are highly susceptible to depression as a result of the hard work and frustrations of farm life, doctors reported at a recent rural safety conference.

COLORS step out after dark

By Mary Ellis Carlton

Southland Magazine Fashion Editor

SAY GOOD-BY to the cocktail dress in both title and traditionally full skirt.

Did farewell to the little, black crepe dress, once the standby of every fashion-conscious woman's wardrobe.

And say adieu, also, to the sweeping, full-skirted ball gown.

All these were so rare in fall-winter fashion collections shown recently in New York and Paris that their appearances could be counted on your fingers.

In their place, new names, bold and pastel shades to replace the black, also slithering evening gowns reaching to the floor.

THE LONG DINNER dress will be worn where last year a woman would have worn a short dress, according to Larry Aldrich, manufacturer of high fashion garments and president of the New York Couture Group.

During recent showings, the "cocktail dress" was mentioned no more than horse and buggy. More often, it's a late day dress in the parlance of the fashion commentator.

Designer-manufacturer Adele Simpson re-named the cocktail dress the "day's end social dress."

THESE DRESSES have changed in line from bell-shaped skirts and scooped necklines in warp silks to the sheerest of wools or crinkly and carved silks in colors ranging from palest pink and lime to bright reds and greens.

The line of the late day dress: slim. For more formal occasions, the look is also lean for the upcoming season. There are a few dresses shaped closely to the figure with empire waistlines. But most depend on fabric draping, through seaming and bias cut, to outline the figure—skimming tightly over it.

DESIGNERS USE both black and pastel-colored wools of sheerest weight for many of the dinner dresses.

By contrast, almost every collection has a group of formals in handsome, costly brocades, metallics and jewel embroidery.

To go with the long, slinky evening dress: the floor-length evening coat.

Here, several designers let the coat have more fullness at the back to give a sweep as the woman walks. Others cut it straight, narrow and as tailored as a man's chesterfield.

Numerous short and long dress-up coats are copies of the casual trench coat. And for a further touch of the casual, often a matching scarf is worn as a head covering, babushka-fashion, for both day and evening.

TO DISAPPOINT after-5 girl-watchers, most collections have more cover-up than bareness in evening clothes. Sleeves, for instance, on short and long formals, often drop to the wrist, are usually covered with beading.

But dapper Olep Cassini, with the male interest at heart, bucked the tide. Mrs. John F.

Photographed in New York's St. Regis Hotel; Photography Courtesy New York-Cosume Group

Glittering exposure—a wool dinner costume in wild grape-pink, the long jacket showing a jeweled silk satin overblouse, is from Paul Parnes Fall 1963 collection by Karen Stark. Bold colors, pastel shades are prominent.

Kennedy's favorite designer shows daring necklines for evening. A group of black crepe dresses came with the back exposed to the waist, in front sinking daringly low.

ANOTHER FORECAST: fur flurries for evening.

Every designer in the nation's garment jungle (that's what they call New York's Seventh Avenue garment district) must have gone on safari this year.

It's the most fur-bearing, fur-ocious fashion season in history.

New furbishings range from seal to civet, tiger to lamb, even natural sheared buffalo. And, of course, there's mink, fox, lynx, leopard, opossum, lamb, chinchilla and broadtail.

Frederica, fur designer extraordinary, has a sinuous evening sheath, floor-length, of Somali leopard.

Jean Louis, California couturier and designer for movies and movie stars, produced a sleek white mink dress, floor length.

Also in the collections: a leopard trench coat that changed its spots by reversing to a waterproof green velvet evening coat.

ALSO FOR EVENING: jewels that shimmer and shine, also weeping bead embroideries and shiny fabrics everywhere.

Samuel Winston's designer, Roxanne, introduced sundown gowns emblazoned with shimmering sequins, tinkling with dark crystals and gleaming with huge stones. Even notched collars and cuffs of otherwise simply-styled dinner gowns were embroidered with gems.

When the sun is up, apparently, Winston fans put their jeweled dresses in safes in favor of pure little two-piece suits made of fur.

Popular, too, are teardrop gems that cover evening dress and swing like chandeliers in a hurricane.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

What of Shockers

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Are horror films harmful to children?

ANSWER: This frequently-asked question hasn't been and probably won't ever be answered conclusively.

There are strong authoritative arguments on both sides of the issue.

Dr. Frederic Wertham, a psychiatrist, contends that film violence tends to make children indifferent to the suffering of other human beings and contribute to juvenile crime.

Herman Cohen, author and producer, thinks that horror films help release a child's fears and tensions and leave him in a calmer state of mind.

The ancient Greeks said that their tragic dramas cleansed the emotions and left the viewer in an elevated state of mind. Many persons who have received a unique feeling of satisfaction from watching a good stage play understand what the Greeks meant.

Whether modern horror films, designed purely to shock, can be classed with classic drama in this regard is debatable.

Certainly it's hard sometimes to find the morals that are served by modern horror tales that are being released in theaters and over TV in such profusion.

QUESTION: Is non-conformity always bad in a child?

ANSWER: Certainly not. It depends on the issue. If it's a question of established rules, conformity is, of course, expected and desired. A child must learn respect for law and order.

But when it comes to the world of ideas, non-conformity may indicate rare moral courage and creativity.

According to Norman R. F. Maier, professor of psychology, University of Michigan, the best problem solvers are those persons who are not afraid to up-pose group opinions.

Happy adjunct to any garden is this wishing well that a home handyman can make easily from detailed pattern.

By Bill Meyerriecks

A WISHING well's inviting rustic warmth and feeling of tranquility can add much to make your house more attractive and valuable. The Sketchbook design this week incorporates all the wishing well's charm—and makes it as easy as possible for you to build.

Besides its decorative appeal, the well does serve as a useful garden center. It can store the garden hose as well as other gardening tools. Or it can be the centerpiece for an informal outdoor party with the refreshments right at hand in and around the well. You can use it for any number of things besides its basic decorative purpose.

BUILDING the well from the Sketchbook plan is a pleasant late summer or early autumn pastime that the entire family can enjoy. The structure above the well is made from standard-size lumber only. You may well have enough scrap wood around the house to hold down the modest cost of these materials. The plan gives all details, sizes and steps of the entire project even to the concrete and stone work necessary for the well itself.

TO OBTAIN the plan, send name and address and 50 cents for Sketchbook Plan S-122 to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Chaise for Outdoor Living

FOR RELAXATION in patio or garden, any handyman can have a chaise like this, occupied for the purposes of photography by Eileen O'Neill of NBC television. The chaise is mobile, comfortable, adjustable and equipped with a standard outdoor furniture pad. To make the chaise, all you do is to trace a full-sized pattern on wood, cut out the parts and assemble them. The pattern lists required materials and gives illustrated directions. To obtain Outdoor Chaise Pattern No. 125, send 75 cents in coin, check or money order to Steve Elingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. Be sure to include your name and address.

Fast, seaworthy, streamlined—the Jericho was once the dreamboat of a rum runner and the bane of revenue men in the days of prohibition off the Long Beach coast.

By Eleanor Avery Price

MANY ARE the salty tales told by members of the Corsair Yacht Club and one concerns the Jericho, one of the speediest and snappiest little boats ever to ply the waters of the Pacific. The account is given by her builder, Fred Ashbridge.

Business was going along as usual at his Wilmington Boat Works when in walked two nicely dressed men with a request for a high speed fishing boat, something seaworthy, under-slung, painted a neutral color.

Building proceeded, and after a time the finished product brought admiring glances. She was 52 feet long, had a 10-foot beam and had a concave section forward and a long run aft to give her a speed of 35 knots. Indeed appearance-wise she was long, lean, racy. Under her deck pulsed two 250 horsepower Liberty motors. Under her seats along the sides were tanks that would hold 1,200 gallons of gasoline.

AT THE TIME of her creation, the boat-builder did not know that government men had their eye on her. But he learned shortly when the boat's new captain took the craft, named Jericho, on her shakedown cruise to Catalina and a Coast Guard cutter made the first of many attempts to capture her. The premise for search was "irregular registration," which really didn't hold water (no pun intended), for the boat had been registered as a high speed fish boat and the $10 fee paid.

The captain eluded the cutter by racing his boat into port and putting her on the ways. The Jericho was grounded, anyway, for six months.

After her release she was taken back to the Wilmington shop to conform with registration requirements. There the captain had a hinged stern installed so a load of "fish" could be disposed of quickly. A watertight cockpit was also installed.

Again the Jericho sallied forth, and for three years she made like an ocean wolf dodging the big grey wolfhounds, for the most part Coast Guard cutters. They couldn't corner her. Not that the Coast Guardsmen weren't trying. No sooner did they get on the heels of the elusive B-girl (she was carrying Scotch) than apparently her owner disposed of her cargo through the self-bailing hinged stern and took her merrily on her way between the infamous Cortes Banks off the coast of Baja California to off Point Conception.

THE MERCHANDISE on the Jericho was in sacks tied with pieces of half-inch, four-strand rope on the ends of which were small submerged buoys. When the skipper wanted to lighten the load to make a quick getaway, he simply cut a string that held a weight near the pilot house. The sack then sank out of sight. If the weight still slowed the boat, the skipper cut another line. And still another, if need be. With good luck, the boys on the Jericho could later retrieve the merchandise.

The Case of the Shady Lady

With the repeal of the 18th amendment, the shady life of the Jericho came to a temporary end. Ernie Judd, veteran operator of Pacific Coast Water Taxi Company, bought her in 1934. She was reconditioned and seats running fore and aft for 82 passengers were added. The boat, now a queen of water taxis, went on regular runs between Long Beach and Santa Catalina Island. Sometimes she was chartered by glamorous film stars and others for parties.

Such a conventional life was not to be the turbulent lady's lot for long, however. In 1936 Judd assigned her to runs to the gambling ship, Monte Carlo. But one night, in thick fog alongside a fuel-dock in the harbor, the Jericho suddenly blew up, and most of her disappeared, burning, in 40 feet of water. Only her stern was visible.

JUDD HAD her carcass towed seaward with the intentions of punching holes in her gas tanks and sinking her to a watery grave. Then he recalled that he could use her reverse motor gears, so he took her about and beached her. He bored a hole in her sides to let the water out, then he left until such time as he could salvage her.

When he returned in two months, the Jericho was bobbing merrily on top of the water, the hole in her tank filled with kelp.

Since she refused to die, Judd decided to rebuild the Jericho. He found her keel good, her stem undamaged, and there were 200 gallons of salvageable gas in her tanks. By bending in some new ribs and adding a few top planks, he had practically a new boat to work with. He set about streamlining her, adding tubular furniture for 60 passengers, and installed new Liberty motors. So once again the Jericho made nightly runs from Long Beach to Avalon. She maintained a 25-knot speed, and the trip was only one hour and 15 minutes from shore to shore.

Another of her latter day occupations was playing in movies. Ridiculous though it may sound, the Jericho even played the part of a Coast Guard patrol boat for one film. In it the first two letters of her name were temporarily grayed off, and on celluloid she was called Richo.

Possibly no one knows where the bones of the rum runner, water taxi, and glamour queen are today. In 1940 she was loaded aboard the British freighter, Silver Bay, at San Pedro, and taken to England to serve His Majesty in the Battle of Britain. But sometimes at night, when lights blink off Baja or Point Conception, her ghost may ply the ocean swells or slink into coves to hide. They say it may even make a run between Long Beach and Catalina Island.

Sights and Sounds of the Woods

By Vera Williams

Independent Press-Telegram Book Editor

THE LIFE STORY of an intelligent animal—the beloved horse Black Beauty; the adopted fawn, the Yearling; Elsa, the affectionate lion or the playful otters in Ring of Bright Water — allows the reader to escape from complex problems and project himself into a world at once more primitive and more understandable.

That is why Sterling North's "RASCAL," ($3.95), first winner of the Dutton animal book award given for the best work of fiction or non-fiction relating to animals may furnish the best escape reading of the season.

In May 1918, Sterling North and his St. Bernard, Wowser, found a den of small raccoons in a hollow stump in the woods near Edgerton, Wis. Sterling took one of the four unweaned, defenseless kits and raised him on warm milk—plus the milk of human kindness. Rascal repaid this kindness by becoming the best companion a motherless boy could have—sleeping, eating, swimming, fishing and canoeing with his young master—and only occasionally raiding chicken coops and sweet corn patches to arouse the wrath of neighbors.

The book is filled with the sights and sounds, songs and memories of a different world, nearly a half-century ago, when the birthright of every rural boy was the woods and waters of an unspoiled continent. That probably is why the subtitle of Rascal is "A Memoir of a Better Era."

SEVENTEENTH Century Europe was an area of intrigue. France, England and the Austrian Empire lusted for power. In the center were Spain and Carlos II—Carlos, the "Bewitched," sixth generation Hapsburg king of the Spanish Empire.

Born with the Hapsburg jaw, teeth pointing inward, blunted by a retarded intellect, subject to the weaknesses and diseases of generations of in-breeding (he was descended from Juana la Loca, the "Mad" through seven of his eight great-grand-parents!) he lived on in blundering fashion for 39 years, unable to rule, unable to produce an heir to the throne. His death plunged Europe in the great War of the Spanish Succession.

"CARLOS: The King Who Would Not Die" by John Langdon Davies (Prentice-Hall, $4.95).

"THE TIME has come—indeed it has already passed—when the American nations must unite in one of history's rare adventures in unity and unselfishness," writes Milton S. Eisenhower, who was special ambassador for eight years to Latin America for his brother, the former President.

"THE WINE IS BITTER: The United States and Latin America" (Doubleday, $4.95) is his appraisal of the events and developments during that period, which add up to his appeal, and warning, that the Alliance for Progress must succeed.

He reviews the three events leading to the Alliance: President Eisenhower's 1960 proposal to Congress; the Act of Bogota, and the Punte del Este Conference which laid down the principle of 10-year development plans.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN was no weakling or coward when he let Hitler take over the Sudetenland in 1938 in return for "peace in our time . . . with honor." Chamberlain's failure, which opened the hell gates of World War II, lay, rather, in his naive faith that Nazis were men of their word.

Keith Eubank, professor of history at North Texas State University, examines the tragedy of "MUNICH" (University of Oklahoma Press, $5) and assigns equal blame to Edouard Daladier and Georges Bonnet of France and even more guilt to double-dealing Russia.

Powerful military, diplomatic and psychological pressures, rather than Hitler's bluff, forced Chamberlain to his fateful decision. Eubank finds in his comprehensive and penetrating text.

RUSS LEADABRAND

LAND of emphatic contrasts: desert views and tall timber, lakes, campgrounds, fishing streams and ski resorts—that's the San Gabriel Mountains of Southern California.

And because it is a favorite stomping ground for Southlanders who like the tangy scent of pine with their hiking or camping—and still not wander too far from home—an important new handbook to the area, "A GUIDEBOOK TO THE SAN GABRIEL MOUNTAINS OF CALIFORNIA" (Ward Ritchie Press, $1.50 paperback) already is a best seller.

The author, Russ Leadabrand, a Pasadena newspaperman and magazine writer, has driven the roads of the San Gabriels, hiked its dim trails and seen its varied wildlife. And yet, before putting his book together, he turned to dozens of men also intimate with this range that separates the Mojave Desert from the sea-leaded coastlands.

Leadabrand's text—terse, vivid and ably written—is truly a gold mine for the outdoorsman. Maps and excellent photographs give it added impact.

"Where do you get insurance for lost articles while traveling? I think you said you got it for $35 a year."

I got mine from Travelers.

"We will be in Jamaica in October. What kind of clothes do we need? Will it be hot (at Montego Bay)?"

PRETTY WARM — in the high 80s during the day. Swimming is great, though. Try Doctor's Cove. Resort wear — short sleeve shirts, easy shoes, shorts, slacks. Little dressy at dinner. But a man doesn't need a dinner jacket.

"What about the Central American countries? Cheap? Interesting?"

FOR ME, they become progressively less interesting the further south you go. Beyond Guatemala I was bored — I couldn't get with it. However, I was only in the capitals and only for a short time.

"What do you think it costs per day to drive from New York to San Francisco and back? Two people."

FOR TWO, I budget these trips at $35 a day. Gasoline, $10 to $12 on a 450 mile daily run. Same for motel rooms. The rest on food, drinks, etc.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

BEYOND the familiar charms of the tourists' London, a city landscaped by Hyde Park, decorated with the Houses of Parliament, and peopled by guards in scarlet coats, there lies another London, less glamorous, but more real.

This is the London of Dickens and Eliza Doolittle and even Jack the Ripper, a bewildering and ancient urban sprawl of neighborhoods and villages, the Bronx, Brooklyn, and the Lower East Side of London.

Its curious names may be vaguely familiar from the signs on the double decker buses: Tooting, Finsbury, the Angel, Islington, Camden Town, Whitechapel, Holborn, Bermondsey, St. Pancras. Nay, they do not ring with the overtones of class heard in Westminster, Mayfair and St. John's Wood.

These are the places of Charles Addams architecture, grimy kids playing street games of Elizabethan origin, pushcarts and street markets and "goods stations," a few remaining gas lamps and flowery cast-iron letter boxes, horse troughs, Georgian tenements and postage stamp gardens behind wrought-iron fences.

THIS LONDON changes slowly or not at all. It has survived the Plague, the Great Fire, and the Blitz to an astounding degree. There are few new buildings. Most seem to be of a monstrous Victorian vintage: mammoth and cavernous suburban railway stations of ugly red brick, heavy with Gothic arches, dark windows, and lacy towers; abandoned public markets under vaulted steel and glass roofs; and sagging, half-timbered Tudor facades.

Here, too, survive the last of an all but forgotten London tradition, the elaborate "public convenience." Some still have Edwardian brass gas lamps and fittings, marble stalls, stained glass windows, and fish bowl flush boxes, not to mention scrawlings on the walls that—in the words of an attendant—"would make yer blood run cold, it would." A few still are privately operated.

Scattered throughout these sections—most are to the east and north of the West End—are the true pubs of London. They invariably strike the visitor as the best-kept buildings of London, as they serve a dignified function as the working man's "club."

LITTLE KNOWN curiosities abound throughout this untouristed London, most dating to that wondrous and proud time of Victoria. Just beyond the jammed streets of "the City," London's Wall Street, where gents in silk topers still may be seen, lies Whitechapel. Jack the Ripper prowled near here, and on Jubilee Street, where the gas lamps have just lately been removed, Leon Beron and his notorious anarchists conspired. From Whitechapel also came Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army. Once the Yiddish theater thrived here, but today there are mostly delicatessens, cheap stores, and "turf accountants" (legal bookmakers).

Elizabeth I vacationed in Islington. It has since become urban, then decayed, and once more is becoming fashionable.

FEW CHINESE remain in once-sinister Limehouse, and its Victorian music halls and even old churches are falling under the redeveloper's bulldozer.

Best known of suburban London areas is Hampstead, a charming village set on a height among the rolling parklands of Hampstead Heath. It is a last determined effort to prevent incursion of the city.

But the ancient stage stops are scheduled for demolition here too, and together with the cast-iron street clocks, pavilion-like drinking fountains, gas lamps and horse troughs, old London is slowly but inevitably giving way to the new.

Mexico's Famous 'Soup Seller'

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

MEXICO CITY — Gringos like to refer to Mexico as "Mananaland" because they have a notion — often conceived through an actual experience — that Mexicans never do today what they can put off until tomorrow.

Not Cesar Balsa.

Sr. Balsa in a few short years has parlayed a small cafe here to a chain of 10 beautiful hosteries stretching from midtown Manhattan (St. Regis) to Mexico City and Acapulco, six exciting nightclub-restaurants, and an ultra-swank motel.

"He's probably one Mexican who demands that today's tasks be done today," I commented to a close associate.

"No, senor," came back the quick rejoinder, "today's jobs — Senor Balsa, he gets these jobs done yesterday!"

BUT, ACTUALLY, he's a Mexican only by choice.

He was born in Spain, got his first job as a bellhop in Barcelona. A few years later — in 1948 — he and his bride came to Mexico on their honeymoon. Balsa was captivated by the Mexican people and saw in their country a sleeping giant about to awaken to tremendous growth. Instead of returning to Spain, he took a job as manager of a chain of restaurants.

Then, one day, he came upon a little restaurant here whose doors were closed by bankruptcy, and he was on his way to realizing his first dream — that of becoming a restaurant proprietor.

Within six months he had doubled the size of the restaurant, redesigned the setting with a garden and sweeping staircase, treated his patrons to music from a romantic violin ensemble.

MEXICANS REFERRED to him as the "soup seller."

Today his first restaurant — the famous Focolare — is a

CESAR BALSA
He's Mexico's Hotel King

mecca for gourmets who enjoy dining at its best to the music of a dozen beautifully costumed violinists playing from the broad steps of the rococo staircase.

Nearby is Balsa's famous night club-restaurant, the Jacaranda, overflowing with happy crowds. And a block away is his new nightclub, the CanCan. For this one it is said from good authority that reservations must be made six months in advance.

"You just can't knock superlative service, fine food and entertainment," explained a long-time observer. "Balsa dishes up all three."

BUT TODAY, at the tender age of 40, Balsa is better known as the Mexican hotel king.

American associates like to call him "the Conrad Hilton of Mexico."

Balsa, however, did not realize his second dream (conceived when he was a bellhop) of having his own hotel until 1957 when his El Presidente — declared by many to be the finest in Mexico City — was opened.

El Presidente, with the famous Balsa formula at work, was a success from the start. One hotel whetted his appetite for two, then three, then four...

The chain is still growing. Last month, he broke ground for his 11th, on the island of Cozumel, off Yucatan, and already is planning his 12th, in Merida.

A close associate estimates his fortune at $5 million (American).

You'd think that this man, with a restaurant-hotel empire on his shoulders, might be cold and businesslike. On the contrary, he is warm and friendly, almost adored by his associates.

He is also a sentimental little man. On his lapel is a pin with the letter "F." It stands for Focolare, his first enterprise.

"After all," he explains, "I'm still a soup seller."

Little Taj Mahal

By Retta E. Ewers

CALIFORNIA'S Little Taj Mahal stands in an isolated area of the San Bernardino mountains, near Crestline. Conceived and erected by a man born in India, "Prince"

Akhoy Mozumdar, a religious leader of the 1930s, this majestic edifice was dedicated to the Lord, but has never had a sermon preached inside its gray granite walls.

Still to be completed is California's Little Taj Mahal in San Bernardino Mountains. Los Angeles YMCA owns it.

While a theological student at the Redlands University, Mozumdar visited the San Bernardino mountains and fell in love with them, saying they reminded him of his native land. He bought 10 acres, and began to dream of the structure that stands today upon the property.

Later he acquired 87 additional acres of wooded hills, canyons and grassy meadows.

Here he proposed to build the temple of his dreams. William Lodge of La Jolla, a follower and friend of the "Prince," drew up plans for the temple. It was also decided to include an outdoor amphitheater for open air meetings. Nature provided an ideal spot a short distance from the temple.

TWELVE large pillars, 30 feet high, and built of the same granite that went into the temple, stand about the perimeter of the theater.

These represent the 12 Apostles.

Near the entrance to the Pillars of God Temple is a sign that reads, "If you are weary and heavy laden, and are afflicted with sorrow and suffer, rest here awhile. The Eternal Christ will give you peace and rest and health for your body and mind. Banish all fear and worry. Feel the protecting arms of the Eternal Father—Peace be with you."

Much of the property remained unfinished. It was purchased by the YMCA of Los Angeles and will be completed according to original plans. The large auditorium will be used for special meetings and lectures. Downstairs rooms are now used as classrooms for summer vacationers. Other recreational facilities include a large swimming pool, playground and cabins.

The temple is reached by taking Arrowhead Ave. out of San Bernardino, going to Crestline, thence to Cedar Pines Park, and along the main road.

A Farewell to the Reservation

By Frank L. Remington

UNIQUE among educational institutions, Sherman Institute at Riverside helps young Indians to shift from old culture of a pastoral life on the reservation to the new existence of a wage economy in city ways.

"We are mighty proud of our graduates," says kindly appearing Myrthus W. Evans, superintendent of the institute for the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs. A dedicated educator, he has guided Sherman Institute for the bureau for 16 years and has helped many Indian youngsters mold a better lot for themselves.

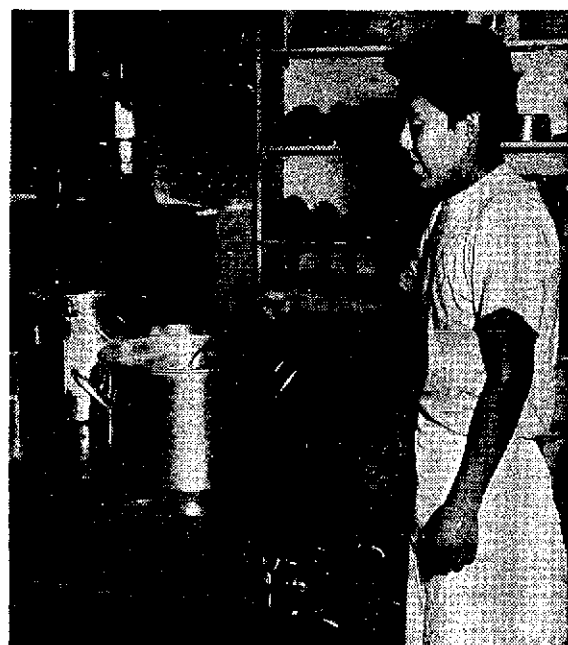

"Considering the momentous educational handicaps they face, our graduates are compiling an exceptionally fine employment record," Evans said: "Of last year's 112 graduates, most are gainfully employed or going to higher-level schools."

A HIGHLY experienced guidance staff supervises the new arrivals in their adjustment to the white man's culture. The seven dormitories emphasize home living; a trained counselor supervises each.

In their brightly-colored, gaily-flowered sport shirts, blouses, and skirts, the students appear little different from other American young people. Perhaps some students, though, question the benefits of white man's civilization and abandon old customs with cautious reservation. About matters tonsorial, young Navajo Dick Alcott explains: "I think the boys don't want to get their hair cut because they remember old stories that Indians should have long hair so there'll be lots of rain. But we aren't on our reservations and we look neat with a haircut. We should forget the old ways and think of our future life."

Early in their first year new students visit downtown Riverside with their teachers. They see their first stores and learn about traffic signals and the duties of policemen and firemen. Later, students are encouraged to visit shopping areas on their own and many secure weekend jobs through the Sherman placement service. Girls usually do housework and baby sit. The boys perform a variety of odd jobs.

FOR PART-TIME Saturday work last year, Sherman students earned $39,000. They are encouraged to save in the school bank which is run by effervescent Mrs. Vicki Benedict of Sherman's office staff. She has more than 300 individual student accounts, ranging from one cent to $400. "The one cent account," Mrs. Benedict says, "belongs to a determined Papago lad. He won't withdraw his penny because he says, 'I want money in the bank.' " Like Sherman's other employees, teachers, and instructors, Mrs. Benedict speaks glowingly of the students.

There are some 100 buildings on the 80-acre palm-studded campus. Established in 1900, the institute bears the name of James S. Sherman, then chairman of the Indian affairs congressional committee.

Of the 1,000 students, 700 are Navajos.

Ranging in age from 12 to 21, many of the students come from remote areas of

Arizona and New Mexico reservations. "Most students here are academically retarded four or five years simply because they've had no opportunity to attend school," says Principal Edgar L. Samons. "In their five years here we advance them as fast as their capabilities permit."

UPON graduation, in addition to a knowledge of American culture and customs, Sherman students have attained an academic level of from fourth to ninth grade and acquired a salable skill in a vocation to enable them to face the economic challenge of the off-reservation world. Students spend three years concentrating on general academic subjects like English, science, arithmetic, social studies, and modern American customs. New students who speak only tribal tongues concentrate on English during their initial year.

During their first three years the boys also devote an hour or two daily in general shop classes learning the fundamentals of various vocations, and ultimately choose one in which to specialize. They select from a wide variety of trades: printing, carpentry and mill cabinet, cooking and baking, machine shop and welding, and painting and furniture finishing.

The last two years at Sherman the students devote most of their time to developing skills in their chosen vocation. In Judson Bradley's print shop, preoccupied Indian youths operate linotype machines and printing presses. Bradley is part Cherokee Indian; in fact, half of the Sherman employees boast Indian descent.

IN BAKING classes, students prepare all the baked goods for the school dining room except loaf bread, which would be too time-consuming.

Merrilyn Erskine, Poly High School sophomore, has gained recognition as a majorette.

By Frank Jewell

WHAT of the bare-limbed majorette who struts and tosses her baton in street parades? What sort of girl can she be? Must she be brash and vulgar?

Not at all! And Merrilyn Erskine, majorette for Poly High School's band is a case in point. Despite regular appearances at school games, baton contests, band concerts and parades, Merrilyn is gentle, unassuming and even shy. Her bathing suits and costumes are such customary garb that she is completely

Indian School

In the paint shop, tyro painters busily spray iron cots from the dormitories. Each shop contributes to school maintenance in every way possible.

The girls receive practical training in sewing, cooking, serving meals, shopping, child care, and other home economic subjects.

Graduates locate work through Sherman's Guidance and Placement Committee, which operates through the Los Angeles branch of the Indian Affairs' Relocation Office. "Only about 15 to 20 per cent of our graduates return to the reservation permanently or take employment in towns near the reservation," Superintendent Evans comments. "Many of our former students have assumed positions of responsibility in their communities, both on and off the reservation."

The young Indians' will to learn, their determination to support themselves in their chosen trades, and their willingness to adopt the white man's language and culture are paying rich dividends in raising their standard of living and in integrating them into mid-20th century American life. In this social revolution, Sherman Institute is playing a prominent role.

natural in her unawareness of them.

The only sophomore at Poly to become a majorette, Merrilyn, at 15, merits this enviable position because of her top scholastic standing, dependable character and baton skill. She practices at least two hours daily perfecting new techniques learned from Bud Skrivan, her baton teacher since February 1962.

The lessons began with basic twirls of wrists and fingers, simple rolls and hand passes. Some stretching and limbering exercises now precede practice as well as run-throughs of contest routines which she uses also for contest appearances with Son's

Long Beach Junior Concert Band. Though music accompanies these difficult performances, Merrilyn insists that she does not hear it. She does keep time, though, when there are other girls in line working in unison.

Son's Junior Band Pompon Corps routines are planned by Merrilyn who is their leader. The 20 girls practice with their pompons weekly and often on Saturdays during band-marching exercises. Merrilyn's mother, Mrs. Merrill Erskine, chaperones these junior high to college-age girls at practice and on bus tours as she has done since her daughter joined the band at 12.

"The band activities keep us very busy and the teenagers out of trouble," says Merrilyn's father, "but we enjoy it and never miss a parade, concert, party or contest."

Dolls Recall Women of History

Photos by Joe Risinger
Dolls are the hobby of Mrs. Katherine Kimbrough, shown here with Lillian Russell doll in an elaborate costume.

By Vera Williams

SINCE she was a girl of six years, the Rev. Katherine Kimbrough, 724 Elm Ave., has enjoyed dressing dolls.

Now she has 225 dolls, exquisitely dressed, as women of history. Mrs. Kimbrough designed and made all of the costumes and furniture used in the doll settings.

She plans to display her dolls next year in New York, at the time of the World's Fair.

"There are 40 million doll collectors in the world," she says. "Doll collecting ranks third as a hobby — stamps first, then coins, then dolls . . . Fifty million dolls are sold every year in the United States."

DOMINATING the collection is a doll that belonged to Mrs. Kimbrough's great-grandmother. Mrs. Kimbrough has dressed the doll to represent Lillian Russell in a pink satin-blue panne velvet costume, trimmed with pearls and lace, with an ostrich plume hat. Materials, trimming and ostrich feathers all came from costumes worn by Mrs. Kimbrough's mother.

Standing side by side are the Emperor and Empress of China, the last of the Manchus, in authentic court costumes. The Emperor has a jeweled sword.

Nearby sits Mae Murray, between the scenes of "The Merry Widow."

Marie Antoinette is Mrs. Kimbrough's favorite historical character and she has several dolls to represent her. One depicts her dressed for a ball, seeing in a mirror a vision of the guillotine that was to behead her.

MRS. KIMBROUGH has two Marilyn Monroes. One is Marilyn in a black evening gown trimmed with sequins and shirred tulle, and one is Marilyn in a gold lame gown with cape.

She has dolls representing Lady Hamilton, the Empress Catherine of Russia, Pavlova in dancing pose, and a Park Avenue matron of the 1890s in broadtail-trimmed costume with a muff.

Mrs. Kimbrough still has dolls she dressed when she was six years old. One is in white silk and the other in green organdy. The stitches are childish but the costumes still are pretty.

This doll "impersonates" the late Marilyn Monroe. Collection has 225 dolls.

new Kotams tampon can give more protection, more comfort

At last there's a tampon that's really protective! For new Kotams is designed with a slim guide that places the tampon exactly where needed to give you the most complete protection possible.

Old-style ways of inserting a tampon can be very haphazard with bulky applicators—or no inserter at all. No wonder protection is so often incomplete!

But with new Kotams it's virtually impossible to position this tampon incorrectly. For the Kotams guide stem has a tapered grip that makes you hold it just the right way for perfect placement. There's no guesswork at all. The tampon is angled correctly, directed smoothly to the most comfortable and protective position. Then the stem releases immediately.

Positioning is so easy, so gentle and sure. The Kotams tampon is a small size, compressed so that it can expand 4 times its size for greater absorbency.

Try this new-style tampon in Regular or Super absorbency. They're attractively wrapped, individually, to carry discreetly in your purse.

Who-oo's Who-oo of Owls

Young North American horned owl has become a special pet of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Gras of Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum.

By Betty Hardesty

OWLS' WINGS have built-in mufflers of soft, velvety-surfaced feathers which allow them to pounce on their prey without making a sound. This unique ability makes owls indispensable in the control of rats, mice, gophers and rabbits.

Barn owls, most common in California, nest in palm trees and often roost on rafters of dairy barns. A pair of these owls will catch as many mice, gophers and other ground creatures as a dozen cats, according to Kenton C. Lint, curator of birds, San Diego Zoo.

"Please get the barn owls out of our roof trusses," was an appeal he received from an aircraft factory where the messy habit and steady gaze of numerous owls was hampering production. Lint had them caught and shipped with a conservation project to Honolulu where they were needed to aid Hawaiian owls in eradicating unwanted rodents.

Screech owls, with either grey or reddish coloring, are numerous in California. Smallest of North American owls with ear tufts, they are only eight inches in length and should be carefully protected because three-fourths of their food consists of insect pests and rodents. The tiny, five-inch elf owl eats insects exclusively and lives in South-eastern California where it nests in holes high up in giant cactus.

WESTERN burrowing owls have rather unowlish habits. They nest in deserted burrows of prairie dogs, squirrels, foxes and skunks, collect and store up supplies of food in good weather, greet people as they stand in the doors of their burrows by making several head-bending bows, and see perfectly in the sun's glare with eyes unlike other owls.

The staring wide eyes, probably more than the weird voices, nocturnal habits and silent flight of owls, influenced ancient Greeks to designate them as symbols of wisdom. Though not necessarily wise, owls are specialists in the capture of nocturnal prey for the pupils of their eyes are capable of extreme dilation to use the faintest ray of light. Unlike other birds, owls' eyes are directed forward and converge to a greater degree. They are not blind in daylight but have an internal eyelid to draw for extra shade.

Owls detect the softest mouse squeak through large ears hidden beneath plumage of the head while the two long tufts resembling erect ears worn by many of the 400 species, have no connection with hearing.

PET PARADE

One of a Kind

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE IS just one family of cockatiels, although breeders work for different colors. Some are difficult to sex. A male may mature earlier, and it is he who learns to talk well, not the hen. However, a hen is gentle, loving, often quiet, perhaps more venturesome. She also has a stronger instinct to live.

Cockatiels should be well-feathered and have some pin feathers before they leave their parents. They usually accept humans as substitute parents in a short time and can be hand fed with a canary feeder. Food can be pablum mixed with other baby cereal and a very small amount of dry egg sheet, all to be thinned with boiled warm water. Food is gradually changed to hard-boiled egg yolk, seeds, grit, and later some bits of carrot and celery tops.

may become elongated, especially after and during moult. A tame bird will let you clip his nails. Hold him up to light so you can see the tiny blood vessel that runs partway down under each toenail. Do not cut this vessel, as it could prove dangerous to your bird.

Small sharp scissors and an emery board can be used to trim the beak. Do a little at a time, and do not cut back beyond normal outline.

Of course, the most interesting part of most bird-keeping is teaching the bird to talk. Cage him alone. Cuddle him often under your chin and walk with him on your shoulder. As you go about, call him by name. Slowly teach him other words. Make sentences short. Some people also teach their birds to whistle, but others say it is best to stay strictly to talking.

A BIRD'S CAGE should be placed out of drafts. At night, drape a clean white cloth over the cage. This not only helps keep night air from chilling the bird but serves as a check to see if red mites are present. Mites attack birds during the night, but in daylight they hide in the cage. They will get on the white cloth in the morning and can be detected. If any are present, use a commercial insecticide for birds. Follow directions exactly.

Another mite not so easily found is scaly leg mite. If the cere, facet, neck or legs of the bird appear to have a gray, spongy substance on them, suspect this mite. A veterinarian should be consulted.

A bird needs fresh drinking water. When a baby, he will drink from a canary feeder. Boil water at first and gradually mix in local water. Of course, offer it cool.

GRIT, cuttlebone, mineral blocks, and twigs from wood help a bird keep his beak and nails in good shape. However, there are times when both

Many Flowers Rolled Into One

LIKE the hostess-cook who adds a dash of "this," a sprinkling of "that," and a little of "something else," and creates a tasty dish of food, the gardener who grows Gloriosa daisies is reminded of the unusually interesting flower characteristics of rudbeckia, gaillardia, and helianthus, rolled into one.

The single to semi-double and double flowers come in shades of brown, yellow or orange. The showy flowers furnish garden color, yet some of them may be cut for table use.

The plants like lots of sun and water and are perennial in growth tendencies. Half a dozen planted in a sunny flower bed provide lots of flowers.

SOME HOME gardeners try growing strawberry plants for fruit but have little success.

Joe Aselyne, home gardener and one of our readers, offers these suggestions.

Select a sunny area with enough room so plants may be spaced properly for expansion. Loosen the soil to a depth of at least 6 inches. If the soil is compact, mix with steer manure and peat moss.

Before planting, put in each planting hole about one heaping tablespoon of a mixture of 4 pounds of steer manure, 4 tablespoons of both bone meal and blood meal, and 2 tablespoons of cottonseed meal (tablespoons should be heaping, not level). Mix the materials thoroughly and place dry in each hole.

By Joe Littlefield

THIS SAME mixture should be used to fertilize your plants at least once every four months. Place the mixture close around plants, then loosen the soil around them.

Fix soil in heaps or piles and tamp closely around the plant roots. Cut off about one-third of the plant roots prior to planting. Arrange plants in rows approximately 6 to 8 inches apart, depending upon the number of plants and the space you have available.

Irrigate the plants until soil is wet about 1½ to 2 inches deep. Plants should be irrigated at least once a week or oftener in hot weather. To see if more water is needed, dig a furrow in the soil about an inch deep, if dry at that area, more water is needed.

After the plants have taken hold, spray with good insecticide and use a snail and slug bait as often as necessary. To prevent root destruction place a fumigation capsule approximately 2 yards apart in every other row.

After plants have borne their crop of berries and start sending out runners, and you want larger berries the second year, cut the runners off. In the third year allow runners to mature. In the spring of the fourth year remove the original plants and let younger ones take over. Berries on fourth year plants may be much smaller and inclined to be pithy.

Fuchsia Club

"Adding Color in the Shade Garden" will be the topic of Joe Littlefield, gardening specialist and writer, at a meeting of North Long Beach Fuchsia Club at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Houghton Park Clubhouse, 6301 Myrtle Ave., Long Beach. Members and visitors are invited to submit landscape or garden problems for discussion and advice.

Gloriosa daisies are garden brighteners and will supply plenty of flowers and to spare for arrangements.

By Dorothy Jonson

When the foliage on your roses and other plants lose their luster and become unsightly, it may be that there is a deficiency of mineral elements in the soil. In an over-alkaline soil this condition usually exists because the mineral elements are "locked up."

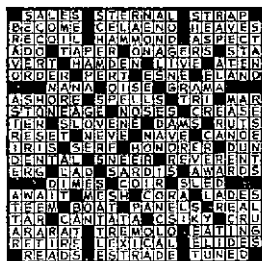

Human life cannot maintain its health without a proper proportion of food and minerals, and we try to offset any such lack by means of vitamins. We also safeguard our health by trying to improve our living conditions.

We should, therefore, fortify plant life by reinforcing the soil with necessary minerals. To get prompt and satisfactory results, I recommend the use of a trace element product containing iron and other minerals, which is also a soil penetrant. This will counteract the alkalinity in the soil and fortify it against additional alkalinity contributed by the chlorinated water used for irrigation.

Mums Due Soon

When September comes, the gardener knows that chrysanthemum bloom is close behind. Thus the care of recent months is about to pay off. Nurserymen warn against dropping the program of chrysanthemum care at this point, however, for the plants still need water and if the buds are not yet showing color you can feed them once again. Be sure the plants are staked enough to support the bloom when it comes.

Beware of the Animals

IF YOU visit the national parks this summer, do not "fraternize" with the wild animals, especially bears.

This warning has been issued by the Department of Interior's National Park Service which explains that the park areas are sanctuaries where wildlife is permitted to roam in complete freedom; and that the animals often resent being teased or not being fed "handouts."

Six basic safety rules:

Avoid and stay away from all wild animals, especially bears. Never feed them, molest them and never try to make friends with them. This applies when riding, walking, or hiking.

Never stop on highways to watch bears as this may lead to "bear jams." Bears may attack and serious traffic accidents may occur.

Keep windows and car doors closed when wild animals are suspected to be around. Close windows and doors when you park your car.

Keep all foods in locked car trunks or containers. Dispose of garbage promptly. Food and food odors will cause bears to make a damaging search for food.

If any bear, or other wild animal, continues to wander around your camp area or otherwise scares or annoys you, report the incident to a Ranger immediately.

Be especially alert in Yellowstone, Sequoia and Kings Canyon, Yosemite, Great Smoky Mountains, Glacier, Grand Teton, Olympic, Crater Lake, Lassen Volcanic, Mount Rainier, Mount McKinley, and Rocky Mountain National Parks, and Glacier Bay National Monument.

meet your host

Caricature by Bob April
JOSEPHINE REYNOLDS
It's Recommended

ONE OF THE MOST enjoyable aspects of dining out is the art of discovering something so delightful that you can recommend it wholeheartedly to your friends.

But you must be cautious. You have to choose something you know your friends will enjoy as much as you did, because you wouldn't wish to suffer the embarrassment of having them be disappointed. And, of course, the price should be right.

Those requirements are met quite perfectly by the $2.65 top sirloin dinner at the beautifully redecorated (inside and out) Melody Cove restaurant, 1960 Santa Fe Ave. For years the owners and hosts, Jerry Reynolds and his wife Josephine, have offered their guests fine steaks at modest prices. They are particularly proud of their current steak feature, a 10-ounce sirloin of juicy Grade A quality, carefully broiled and served with a delectable soup or generous salad, steamy baked potato with cheese sauce and chopped onions, a basket of fresh hot garlic toast and beverage.

The Melody Cove, which is closed Sundays, serves its full menu the rest of the week from 11 a.m. to midnight. Among the other steak features, all of which are worth writing home about, are an unusual $2.25 teriyaki steak (served with a cup of exotic teriyaki sauce for dipping); a splendid big New York steak for $3.95 and a large top sirloin for $3.25. Also emphasized are excellent sea foods and chicken.

The Cove, victim of a fire earlier this year, now sports a new exterior of smart Palos Verdes stone, new mahogany doors and monkey pod wood paneling inside, plus an air conditioning system, new bar and elegant, wine-colored, wall-to-wall carpeting.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE SUNDAY NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

Television Mothers Never Wear Bikinis

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —
Ever since television began presenting family-type shows, viewers have complained about video parents being unrealistic.

Mom never smokes a cigarette, they grouse. Or, Dad hardly ever tells his wife to go jump in the lake, as a brave husband is expected to do occasionally.

But television mothers have rules which they must abide

by. We took a survey of some popular video housewives to learn the labors.

* * * * *

WHITNEY BLAKE, the mother on "Hazel," says, "I don't know if television knows what a housewife is. I'm not talking about this show specifically."

Citing specific complaints,
the pretty Whitney said, "You don't make love to your husband. You can't be too affectionate or too angry. If you're angry, it's tempered.

You can't wear trousers, although I will in one of the shows. Mothers don't wear
bikinis."

Television moms not only have to be circumspect in their own shows, they must not soil their image on other series. Such is the case with June Lockhart, the mother on "Lassie."

* * * * *

"ANY WORK that I do has to be within the image and concept of the mother on
'Lassie,'" she said. "The character is a very even-tempered woman."

Miss Lockhart doesn't wear slacks on her show. And she can't wear shoes with heels that are too high. Emotion is something else that is rationed.

In only one scene has she been allowed to indulge in a touch of good old female hysteria. That was when she was riding in a truck which was about to fall off a cliff.
Any mother would get excited
on the edge of a cliff.

* * * * *

DONNA REED, one of tele-
vision's most successful mothers, said, "In the beginning I wasn't allowed to lose
my temper frequently enough, but that was only the first few months."

Miss Reed said she doesn't think of herself as a television mother. She's playing the part.

Donna believes that television's moms should reflect some of the human errors of their real-life counterparts, maybe even break a dish once in a while or burn the dinner.

* * * * *

"THE FUN comes when we stumble and stub our toes," she said. "That's what comedy is based on, the mistakes
you make."

As for disciplining television's children, that could take all night on television, like it often does at home.

"If I had to stop on our show and give as many orders as I do at home with four children, we'd never get the show over," she said.

However, Donna is a firm believer in discipline, claiming, "I think we're the strictest parents on television."

A Preview of the New TV Season

By TERRY VERNON

Between Sept. 15 and mid-October some 32 new network programs will be unveiled on that little screen in your living room.

Yet looking at the line-up, it appears that the newest thing in television is the block-busting, single "premiere week" concept to be used by both CBS and ABC in shooting off all their big guns within one 7-day period.

Fortunately for both viewers and critics, the two chose different weeks to launch their new seasons.

DRS. KILDARE and Casey will remain the only physicians to care for TV's medical ills, but ABC will unveil "Breaking Point," its new psychiatry series, which incidentally was in the works before "The Eleventh Hour" hit the screens last year.

Westerns still are being de-emphasized, with only four old stalwarts returning. Even "Rawhide" finally bit the dust at the last minute. Only new western is NBC's "Temple Houston," in which Jeffrey Hunter plays a lawyer on horseback, son of Gen. Sam Houston.

Just one new lawyer, other than Houston, will hang up his TV shingle. And Chuck Connors, on the "trial" segment of ABC's new piggyback 90-minute "Arrest and Trial," automatically will defend the suspect nabbed by Ben Gazzara during the earlier "arrest" portion.

CBS, which had the best year in its history with its long parade of comic strips, will launch three more.

"Glynis" on Wednesday nights will star Glynis Johns as a kind of Pamela North-Mrs. Thin Man scatterbrain.

Bea Benaderet leaves her Cousin Pearl role of "The Beverly Hillbillies" to take off on her own as star of another

IMOGENE COCA stars as a spunky but consistently put-upon working girl who takes a different job each week in the new comedy series "Grindl" which premieres Sunday, Sept. 15, at 8:30 p.m. on channel 4.

brainchild of Paul Henning, "Petticoat Junction." And that old Bilko returns to head up a Saturday night "New Phil Silvers show."

Imogene Coca will be back on the home screens in "Grindl," which with "The Bill Dana Show" make up NBC's new Sunday comedy entries. Grindl is an itinerant domestic who finds a new job each week.

Both Perry Como and Andy Williams are cut down in the number of their outings next season, but devotees of the entertainment-variety-musical shows may tune in weekly hours starring Danny Kaye, Judy Garland and Jimmy Dean—or the two-hour Saturday night marathon by Jerry Lewis. And ABC's "Hootenanny" has been expanded to a full hour.

"Twilight Zone," which returns to its 30-minute format, will be joined by two others of the science-fiction format. CBS's "My Favorite Martian" will be played strictly for comedy, while ABC's "Outer Limits" will appeal more to those who like the chillers

SUNDAY

THE LOST MOMENT — 12:30 p.m., ch. 5. Robert Cummings, Susan Hayward, Agnes Moorehead (1947). Absorbing drama from Henry James' novel. Young American publisher finds that love letters he has been seeking in Venice cause near-tragedy and a girl's strange illusion.

FRIENDLY PERSUASION — 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 9. Gary Cooper, Dorothy McGuire, Anthony Perkins, Richard Eyer (1956). First run. Religious bigotry as it existed in the early days of our frontiers as Quakers are rejected by others in a community. William Wyler directed.

THAT FORSYTE WOMAN — 9:30 p.m., ch. 11. Greer Garson, Errol Flynn, Robert Young, Walter Pidgeon, Janet Leigh (1949). Based on Galsworthy classic of a woman and the three men she loved. Screened without commercial interruption.

BELLES ON THEIR TOES — 10:20 p.m., in color, ch. 9. Myrna Loy, Jeanne Crain, Debra Paget (1952). First run. Sequel to "Cheaper by the Dozen," continuing with the Gilbreth family of 12 children following the death of the father.

THURSDAY

FARMER'S DAUGHTER — 8:30 p.m., ch. 5. Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten, Ethel

Barrymore (1947). Oscar-winning film of fiery Swedish servant girl who fights against the man she loves for a Congressional seat. Basis for a new fall ABC series.

FRIDAY
THEY WERE EXPEND-

SATURDAY

FRAULEIN — 9 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Dana Wynter, Mel Ferrer, Theodore Bikel, Maggie Hayes (1958). Young German girl is caught in the chaos of the final weeks of World War II.

A Preview of the New Season

featuring monsters and creatures from other worlds.

BOTH ABC and NBC will be going back to school this fall. NBC's "Mr. Novak" is played against a high school background—from the faculty angle, not another "Dobie Gillis"—while ABC's "Channing" is set on the campus of a midwestern coeducational college.

Gene Barry will be television's newest, and richest, detective when ABC unveils its "Burke's Law," a kind of light-hearted murder-for-fun series produced by Aaron Spelling. Burke is driven to the crime scenes in his own Rolls Royce, and has more contact with live women than with corpses.

Richard Boone's new repertory theater will take over on NBC where Dick Powell left off in the drama department. Bob Hope will host another drama series for NBC in between his monthly variety specials. And CBS hands George C. Scott his first TV series in "East Side, West Side," a David Susskind production of social workers in a private welfare agency in Manhattan.

ABC, which didn't fare too well with its "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," will try another television of an Oscar-winning movie when it launches "Farmer's Daughter," also with a Washington setting. Inger Stevens, Emmy winner for her "Price of Tomatoes" role on Dick Powell's show, will play the Swedish farm girl who goes to work as a governess in the household of a Congressman.

THE FATALITIES among last season's programs amounted to nearly 40 per cent, yet the only major new stars to be introduced to television are George C. Scott, Glynnis Johns and three new ones for ABC. Dan O'Herlihy will star in an adaption of the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel "The Travels of Jamie McPheeters," while Jack Palance will head a color hour set behind the canvas walls of the circus, and Oscar-winning Patty Duke will play a dual role as look-alike cousins.

But all the veterans of defunct series are back.

Chuck Connors sheds his "Rifleman" garb for that of the defense attorney on "Arrest and Trial."

"Naked City's" James Franciscus will star in "Mr. Novak," while one-time "Richard Diamond," David Janssen, stars as ABC's "The Fugitive."

* * *

THE PLUSH living of "Amos Burke" will be a pleasant change from "Bat Masters" for Gene Barry, and that old "Man Against Crime" Ralph Bellamy will take over the senior psychiatrist role in "The Eleventh Hour."

Larry Blyden, who flopped in "Joe and Mabel" and won raves in the one-shot "What Makes Sammy Run?" will chase around Europe with three beauties in NBC's "Harvey's Girls."

But stars of "The Richard

Boone Show" and "Petticoat Junction" still lay claim to the most past series.

Boone is a veteran of two years of "Medic" and six of "Have Gun, Will Travel," while Bea Bonaderet played Blanche Morton in the old Burns and Allen series, Mama in "Meet Millie," and, of course, Cousin Pearl.

- SPECIAL
RUSSIAN POWER — Historic film traces the rise of Russian power from the 1890's to the Great Wall of Berlin. Malcolm Muggeridge narrates, as films include the Czar, Rasputin, Lenin and his funeral, the end of Trotsky, and on to Stalin, Malenkov and Khrushchev—at 8:30 p.m., channel 11.
STORY OF WILL ROGERS — Two of the century's greatest humorists are seen in a repeat of the "Project 20" hour at 10 p.m., ch. 4, with Bob Hope narrating a portrait of Will Rogers from his early rodeo-roping days in Oklahoma. Rogers' own voice from his old radio broadcasts provides much of the hour's wit and wisdom.
ONE FALSE STEP — Premiere, Kind of a Mr. Anthony with Univac is this new series at 10:30 p.m., ch. 5. Unidentified persons tell of past errors and electronic computers solve their problems. It's a John Guedel production, with Warren Hull as host.
WUTHERING HEIGHTS — Claire Bloom stars as the tempestuous Cathy, with Keith Mitchell as the brooding Heathcliff and Ronald (son of Leslie) Howard as Lockwood in this BBC production of Emily Bronte's masterpiece. It's first-run in L.A., ch. 9 at 10:30 p.m.

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. When President Kennedy was journeying around Europe a few weeks ago, did he take time out to visit his sister's grave in Derbyshire?—L. T., New Rochelle, N.Y.

A. He did.

Q. In 1948 a Negro girl, Edith Irby, was the first of her race to enroll in a southern medical school. I believe it was at the University of Arkansas. Can you tell me what's become of her?—O. Calderon, San Antonio, Tex.

A. She is now Dr. Edith Jones, chief of cardiology at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Houston, Tex. She is also a clinical instructor at Baylor University Hospital. She is married to Dr. J. B. Jones, a dean at Texas Southern College. They have two children.

Q. As a stockholder in CBS I would like to know if the network has built two $75,000 dressing rooms for Danny Kaye and Judy Garland. And if so, why?—F. T., White Plains, N.Y.

A. The TV network spent $75,000 on a penthouse for Kaye and $75,000 on a trailer dressing room setup for Judy Garland. Reason: to keep them happy.

Q. When did the great silent star Rudolph Valentino die? And wasn't there a rumor at the time that he was shot by a jealous husband?—R. G., New York, N.Y.

A. Valentino died in 1926 when he was on a visit to New York. There were plenty of rumors about the cause of his death. He died of Peritonitis.

Q. I understand that Roger Kahn, the sportswriter who wrote Calories Don't Count, is writing the autobiography of Mickey Rooney. When will it appear?—Ike Freund, Baltimore, Md.

A. Kahn was hired to ghost the Rooney autobiography, delivered 80 per cent of the book, then filed a $75,000 breach of contract suit against Rooney for calling off the deal. The actor counterclaims Kahn breached the contract because the manuscript "contained many grievous and serious misstatements of fact." Result: no book.

Q. A New York furrier named Lou Ritter was once married to actress Carroll Baker. Was he also married to Zsa Zsa Gabor?—F. Bloom, Hempstead, N.Y.

A. Gabor and Ritter, who is now deceased, were never married.

Q. I would like to find out where screen star Stella Stevens was born, what was her name at the time of her birth and who the man was who gave her a start in motion pictures.—E. P., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Stella Stevens was born in Hot Coffee, Miss. Her real name is Estelle Eggleston. Her original sponsor was a Philadelphia theater-owner named Marty Shapiro.

Q. Who said: "The husband who's always busy as a bee may some day find his honey missing?"—Vic Healy, New York, N.Y.

A. Bob Hope.

Q. What's happened to Juliet Prowse? Is she really returning to South Africa?—Helen Adams, Chicago, Ill.

A. She is starring in Irma La Douce in summer stock, plans to film in Europe, claims, "After my romance with Sinatra was over, 20th Century-Fox shoved me right into the ground with four triple C pictures. Now I have to start all over again."

Q. What is the setup between Dame Margot Fonteyn, the ballerina, and Rudolph Nureyev? They've been doing the ballet tour everywhere. Doesn't she ever see her Panamanian husband?—H. T., Dallas, Tex.

A. Dr. Roberto Arias, former Panamanian Ambassador to Great Britain, spends most of his time in Panama supervising his investments. Miss Fonteyn is accompanied by her 74-year-old mother on these ballet tours. She and Nureyev are colleagues.

Q. Recently Charles Wrightman rented the 680-ton yacht, Radiant, from Basil Macrolean, the Greek shipping king. He paid $10,000 a month rent for the yacht. I would like to know who is Charles Wrightman that he can afford such rates.—Ellen Charles, Indianapolis, Ind.

A. He is an oil millionaire, Palm Beach neighbor of the Kennedys, father of Charlene Wrightman Cassini, who earlier this year took her life.

Q. Is Jerry Lewis an egomaniac?—Bernard Roth, Passaic, N. J.

A. He is extremely confident.

Q. Who is Marie Cui, who recently named Marlon Brando as the father of her 4-month-old daughter? How much money does she want?—Carla O'Kane, Frankfort, Ky.

A. Marie Cui is a Philippine dancer who gave birth to a daughter, Maya Gabriella, on February 27, 1963. She charges Brando is the father of her child. She wanted $775 a month, but a few weeks ago a court announced that Brando was not the child's father.

Q. I read in PARADE that Gary Player, 28, is well on his way to becoming a millionaire. Is this really true? How come there is so much money in professional golf? The prizes don't seem that large.—Tom Winston, Raleigh, N.C.

A. It is true. The big money in golf for professionals like Player, Palmer and Nicklaus lies in endorsements and television, not prize purses.

Judge Santora examines defendant. He may order teenage jurors to question the culprit directly.

'HOW SHALL WE PUNISH THIS TEENAGER?'

Asking this question of a teenage jury, a Jacksonville judge is helped to reach a just verdict

by E. D. FALES, JR.

INTO court here one day swaggered an arrogant young man, arrested for throwing rocks at a motorist.

"Guilty?" asked the judge. "Or not guilty?"

The lad sneered. "That's my business. Maybe you're smart enough to find out?"

Jacksonville's two-fisted young municipal judge, John E. Santora, Jr., is a no-nonsense jurist. But the judge has three sons of his own and is noted for fairness—and patience.

"Son," he asked, "how old are you?"

"Seventeen."

"Then turn around and face the boys and girls behind you." The boy whirled around. He hadn't noticed the six teenage jurors sitting quietly behind the spectator rail, eying him with interest.

"I've got to talk to them?"

"You may if you like. They're going to help me decide what to do about you."

The arrogance drained from the boy's face. He could try to fool the judge but he knew he'd never bluff his keen-eyed contemporaries. "OK," he said. "I did it."

"You really stoned a man while he was driving?" one girl queried. The boy nodded. "You knew you could have caused him to crash?" asked a boy. Again a nod. The teenagers wanted to give the youth a break, but found only proof that he was a dangerous hoodlum. He had no remorse.

"I find you guilty," said Judge Santora. Then he asked the teenagers: "You've heard his story. What do you want me to do?"

The teenagers whispered together. Then a boy foreman stood up. "We recommend 10 days in jail and a $75 fine."

Judge Santora turned to the prisoner. "You've heard what these teenagers think of your act and attitude," he said. "I accept their recommendation, and when you get out of jail, don't ever let me see you in this court again."

There's little chance the boy will ever be back. Jacksonville's novel Youth Jury, in action only 13 months, has spread consternation among young delinquents here, who at last are beginning to mind their manners and respect the law.

A bold experiment, it has cut juvenile cases in Santora's court in half—while they're increasing astronomically in many other cities. New as it is, the idea already has spread to Annapolis, Md., Dayton, Ohio, and Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., may be tried soon in Cleveland, New York, Sacramento.

All this is paying off in a big way for Jacksonville youngsters. Acting as court advisors, they at last have a chance to crack down hard on young scoundrels whose actions hurt the reputations of all teenagers. And they crack down on boys and girls alike.

SURPRISE SENTENCE

The other day, for instance, a well-dressed girl of 18 was up for speeding. To her, court was a huge joke—until she saw the teenage jury. If she expected a fine, the usual punishment, she had a surprise coming. All teenagers know that fines, paid by parents, are quickly forgotten.

"We suggest you sentence her to traffic school," said the 19-year-old foreman, Ernest Evans.

"So ordered," said the judge.

The girl slumped in disgust. Leaving court, she turned and jeered, "You creeps!"

Instantly, young Evans was on his feet. "Sir, we ask you to sentence her also to sweep out the court after every session for a week."

A guard called the girl back. Her look of haughty scorn faded. Her mouth fell open. She'd be joining the hired crew with a pushbroom. "You see what other teenagers think of your conduct," the judge said. Her pride broken, the girl kept silent this time.

All this was started by Jacksonville's teenagers themselves—in self-defense. And it grew out of an even broader idea.

One day last year it suddenly dawned on young people here that teenagers, so often criticized, should have a say in the way their home towns are run. Led by young Evans, a very businesslike pre-college student, they formed the Youth Council on Civic Affairs, Inc. Prominent citizens are its advisors.

The Council's 500 members, aged 14 to 21, decided to seek ways of working for this beautiful and growing city. They plugged for a new library (now being built), for more art, good music, dances, plays, sports—and cleaner streets. They set up a teenage job bureau.

Then one day the boys and girls heard that Judge Santora, one of the best judges the city has ever had, was getting discouraged by soaring youth lawlessness. Here as in many communities delinquency—and worse—was going beyond all bounds. Young punks seemed to have no respect for courts at all.

The Youth Council discussed the problem. A group called on the surprised jurist. "What can we do?" they asked.

Santora pondered. "No matter how fair we try to be," he said, "a lot of these kids in trouble complain that adults are 'against' them. So suppose we made them face a teenage jury?"

It was a daring idea. The Council liked it. "I have no legal precedent," the judge confessed. "But we've got to do something, and if it works it may well set its own precedent." The jury would, of course, have to be merely advisory. And it was agreed that to avoid suspicion of unfairness, both white and Negro youngsters would sit.

A few mornings later, on July 12 last year, 6 boys and girls, all between 16 and 21, came quietly to Defendant explains to the teenage jury how he happened to hit a truck. When they discovered that the accident was caused by excitement over new puppies, his contemporaries persuaded judge he should go free.

Sentencing offender to clean up the city is one cure for arrogance. Youth Council and adult advisor watch.

Mrs. Ray Pooley, adult advisor to Youth Council, chats here with Don Shaw and another young Council member.

court and took front spectator seats. They watched the usual depressing morning parade of drunks, prostitutes and degenerates—and thus began their special court education, for this is something few citizens ever see. Then at 10 A.M. a policeman walked to the bench with an 18-year-old college boy.

"Your Honor," said the officer, "this man was speeding 65 miles an hour through town."

The boy admitted it. He was honest, not arrogant. Yet his offense had been serious.

ESSAY ON SPEEDING

"What punishment do you recommend?" the judge asked the jurors.

Young jurymen Evans stood up. "That you sentence him, sir, to write an essay."

The judge was astonished. "An essay?"

"Yes, sir. On 'The Psychology of Speeding.' Give him a week."

"Very well," said the judge, doubtfully. Was this the best a Youth Jury could do?

One week later, to the day, the boy reappeared. His name was called. He stood up.

"Well, did you write it?" the judge asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Was it any good?" the judge demanded of the jurors.

"It was, sir. We all read it," said Evans.

"Did he say anything important?"

"He did, sir. He wrote: 'I speed because I am a show-off.'"

The judge smiled. "Well, he's honest. He'll remember it. We'll forget about a fine and let him go."

Nearly all speeders soon turn up in court again. But this one has never been back.

More poignant was the case of a glum young runaway girl from Syracuse, N.Y., arrested for street-walking. In many courts she would have gone to jail with hardened prostitutes, her life probably ruined.

But it was this girl's first escapade. She'd run away from an unhappy home. On the Youth Jury's recommendation, Judge Santora sentenced her to two days working at the Youth Council offices before being returned to Syracuse. Then he asked the young jurors to talk to her after court. "See if you can find ways to help her," he said. "Find out what her trouble really is."

The runaway glumly went to work handling the Council's mail, and several girl members tried to befriend her and made plans to get her home safely. But she felt embarrassed among these well-dressed boys and girls. "I'm so shabby," she said.

Jacksonville's civic-minded Roosevelt Hotel donates a room to the Council in emergencies, and there the girl had a good bath and her first good night's rest in a week. The big surprise came next day.

Before breakfast, a diminutive girl juror arrived early at the Roosevelt carrying a nice yellow dress.

"It's for you," she told the Syracuse girl. "It's just an old one I was going to throw out."

The girl put it on, feeling cheered, worked another day and was sent home in a happy mood. A week later the teenagers had a letter from her. She was happy again and had found a good job.

Later, Ernie Evans told me the true story of that dress. "It wasn't an old one at all," he said. "It was that juror's favorite dress."

To date 250 boys and girls have served on the jury, and Judge Santora now draws on 17 high schools and 2 colleges.

For six days recently, this reporter watched the jurors at work. They have an uncanny ability to see through deception and get to the truth.

They have no patience with ducktail-and-jeans types, often get them sentenced to be given haircuts. One boy refused a haircut, was given, instead, 30 days in jail. Any teenager who attacks a cop goes to jail. One common sentence is the unpopular traffic school, for traffic offenders caught speeding up to 45 miles an hour. Those who go over 45 are sentenced to help mop up blood and bathe horribly injured victims of bad driving at the hospital emergency room.

To their amazement, jurors have discovered that some disturbed boys today actually seek jail as a status symbol. They want to be martyrs or heroes. Some of these status-seekers have been thwarted by the jury. They've found themselves pushing brooms in a street cleanup detail.

On the last day I was at the court, a car sideswiped a truck. It looked like the same old story: wild kid, fast car. But Judge Santora wasn't so sure. "William," he said, "will you go over there and tell everything to the youth jury?"

The boy was nervous. He leaned on the rail, clasping and unclasping his hands and tried to explain.

NICE KID, NEW PUPPIES

Little by little the teenagers drew the story out as a lawyer might never have done. The boy was a nice kid, never drank, was a brand-new driver. But his pet dog had, that day, given birth to pups. Someone had said, "Get a carton for their home, quick." William got in the family car, started for the store, met the truck on a tight turn, hit it.

The jury understood. A boy excited over new puppies is hardly a willful law-breaker or road-menace.

"What do you want me to do?" demanded the judge.

"He should go free," said Foreman Larry Smith.

Judge Santora smiled. "So be it!" he said.

and how does a baby flower and flourish?

A baby is truly a blossoming thing from the sweet sprouting of birth through the first several months. In the beginning but a sleeping bud, drawing strength from slumber. Then, almost imperceptibly, he opens up to the world around him . . . looking, listening, feeling, doing. Gradually vision sharpens and eyes light up at the sight of you. Hearing concentrates and ears rejoice at the sound of your voice. Fists unfold and petaled fingers flutter. A smile springs forth and lo and behold, your baby's personality is in bloom.

A baby flourishes through loving care and nourishing food. One of the earliest foods to offer good nourishment is specially prepared cereal. Good way to introduce your baby to this important basic food: Gerber Cereal Sixes. This handy sextette contains Rice Cereal, Barley, Mixed Cereal, High Protein Cereal and two Oatmeal . . . in small-size boxes for mite-size appetites. Like the regular-size cereals, the nutritional benefits of the Sixes include copper and iron to help build good red blood, plus calcium and important B-vitamins.

Feeding footnote. It's a good idea to start baby on the single-grain cereals, then proceed to the mixtures. Rotation of all varieties will teach baby the delights of different flavors . . . establish good eating habits.

Department of reassurance. Your baby's inner security grows when his needs are met promptly and tenderly. The mother who cares for her baby with love in her arms and a caress in her voice goes a long way toward helping him overcome babyhood anxieties. When occasional tears are stilled with loving care your baby learns to trust and that's a happy frame of mind for any baby.

Fruitful ideas. Happy acceptance of fruits comes naturally with Gerber Strained Fruits. That's because they're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to preserve true-to-nature colors and flavors . . . to say nothing of the utmost in precious vitamin values. Ten strained varieties, eight junior fruits.

For your baby's well-being: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business . . .
our only business!"***

Parking meters that bounce back

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

■ Parking meters that bounce back when hit by careless motorists are not only sparing drivers embarrassment but also saving the town money.

This sunny Florida city used to spend $6,000 a year fixing bent parking meters, until traffic boss Francis May heard about flexible meters and installed 40 as an experiment. Now the bouncy type is being adopted throughout the city. The idea is also being extended to street signs, another casualty of negligent drivers. May's chief worry is that the bouncy meter may take an unexpected rebound. "I sure hope people won't use them as targets," he says.

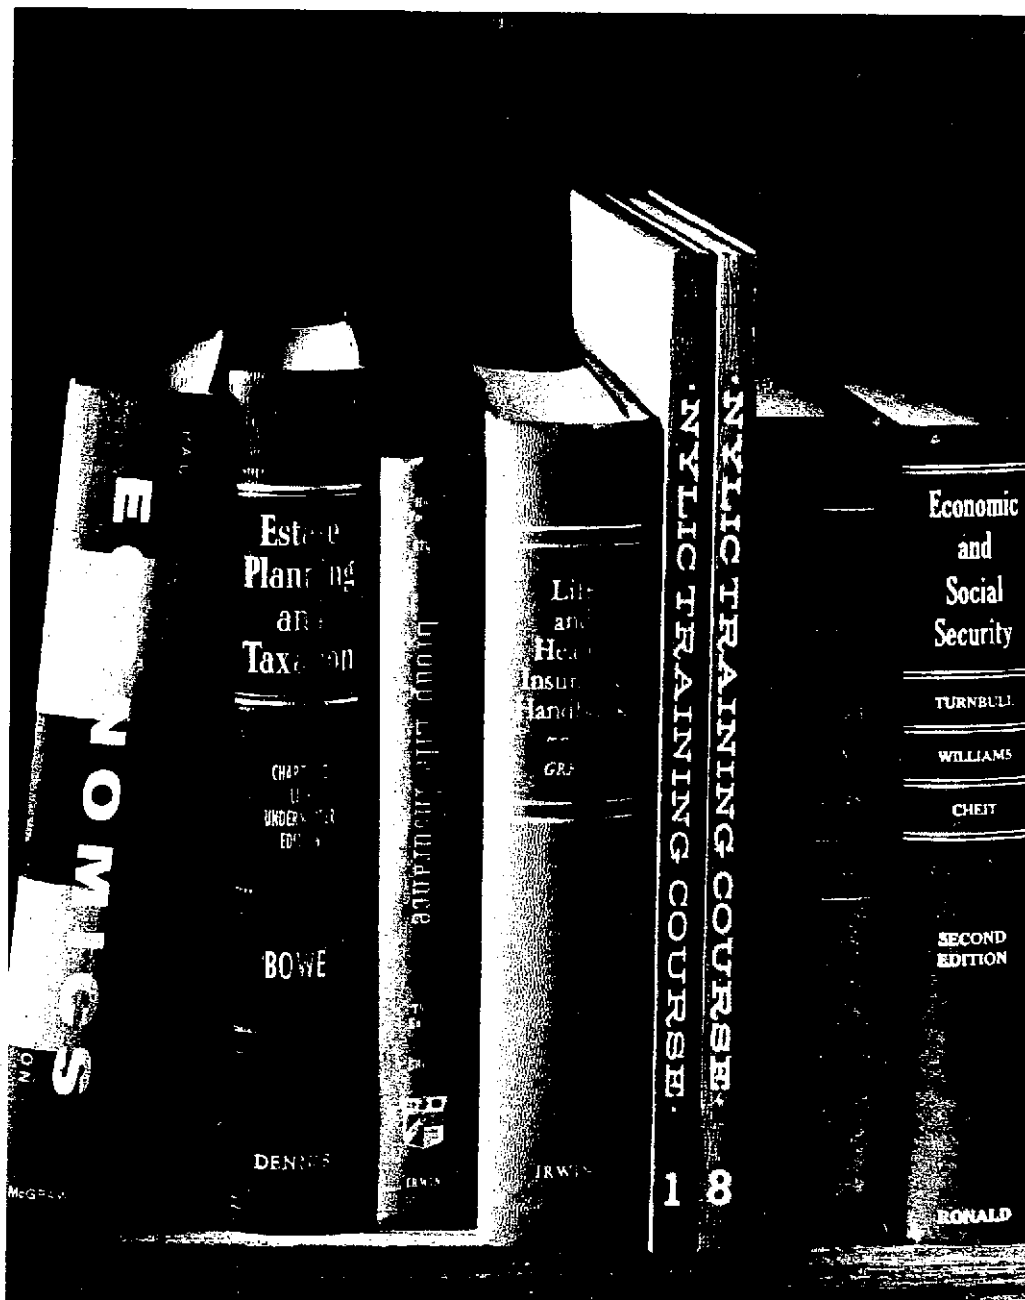

—SID ROSS

Woman explains to cop why she hit street sign. The damage is nil—but she gets ticket anyway.

"Did I do that? . . . Hmmm, worse than I thought. Wonder who gets the bill. Me, maybe?" . . . . . After car pulls away, meter magically rights itself.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bobby Pickett of Somerville, Mass., is a bright young comic who in 1960 earned his first big money in show business, $10, by winning a contest at the Irish-American Club in Boston. A few months later he migrated to Hollywood where, starving as an entertainer, he took a job as timekeeper with Lockheed. There he joined a group of singers also from Somerville, Mass., called "The Cordials." In 1962 Pickett got the idea of combining impersonations with a special song based on the teenage dance craze, The Mash. He cut a record called "The Monster Mash," and it became the number-one single record hit last year. Since then Bobby has encountered little difficulty in finding work. He's appeared on the Steve Allen and other TV variety programs where he's told such jokes as the following:

My Favorite Jokes

BY BOBBY PICKETT

A first-grade teacher asked her young pupils to draw pictures of John Glenn's space flight. The children worked hard on the project for about 15 minutes, then submitted their results to the teacher for her comments.

In the corner of one youngster's drawing was the outline of a woman. This puzzled the teacher and she asked: "Janic, who is this woman in your picture?"

"Oh," replied the first-grader, "that is Kate Canaveral."

I see," commented the cynic, "by the number of divorces that this is still the land of the free."

"Yes," added the optimist, "but by the number of marriages, I would judge it is still the home of the brave."

Did you hear about the new Mafia car—two hoods up front?

A Texan went into a bar and said, "Give me the tallest glass you've got and one lemon." The bartender obliged.

The Texan squeezed the lemon and got almost a pint of juice. Tossing aside the lemon rind, he said, "I'd like to see anyone else get that much juice from just one lemon."

A little fellow standing near-by said, "Let me have a tall glass and the lemon rind you just threw away." He then took the lemon rind and squeezed another full glass of juice from the already used rind.

"Man!" exclaimed the Texan. "I never saw anything like that. How did you do it?"

"Well, you see," replied the man quietly, "I'm with the Internal Revenue Service."

Did you hear about the real estate man's girl friend who sued him for breach of promise? She expected a lot!

Definition of a hypocrite: A man who hands his pay check to his wife with a smile on his face.

My neighbor stays up every night, he says, to get the late news . . . that's when his wife comes home from work!

Mr. Jones was delighted with the way the painter had redecorated his house and said to him when the job was completed: "Here is your money for the work, Smith, and I'm going to give you a little something extra because you did such a good job. Here's $10. Take the missus to a show tonight."

That evening the doorbell rang, and when Mr. Jones went to the door, he found the painter—all dressed up.

"What is it?" asked Mr. Jones. "Did you forget something?"

"No," replied the painter. "I just came to take the missus to a show."

FRUIT PIE

BY BETH MERRIMAN

Parade food editor

Two luscious fruits of late summer—peaches and cultivated blueberries—have true flavor affinities. Put them together in a two-in-one pie; cut small wedges from both halves for each person. Serve hot with peach or vanilla ice cream on top, or chilled, without topping. Your family will demand repeat performances as long as the season lasts.

Double Fruit Pie

- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups sliced fresh peaches
- 2 cups cultivated blueberries
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1-2-3 pastry

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Sprinkle half over peaches and half over blueberries. Toss each to mix well. Divide pastry in half. Flatten one portion slightly; roll out into 12-inch circle between 2 pieces of waxed paper. (Wipe table with damp cloth to keep paper from slipping.) Peel off top paper; place pastry circle in 9-inch pie pan, paper side up. Peel off paper. Fit pastry loosely into pan, extending about ½ inch beyond rim. Arrange blueberry mixture in half the pan. Dot with ½ tablespoon butter or margarine. Flip uncovered half of pastry lining over blueberry filling, leaving half the pie pan empty. Roll out remaining pastry to 12-inch circle as directed above. Fit into empty half of pie pan, with pastry around rim extending ½ inch and other half resting on top of blueberry pie. Fill half pan with peach mixture; dot with remaining ½ tablespoon butter or margarine. Flip uncovered half of pastry over peach filling. Trim pastry, if necessary. Seal; flute all around rim. Cut slits in top of pastry to permit steam to escape during baking. Brush with additional melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 425° until fruit is tender and crust is browned, about 35 minutes. Makes about 6 servings.

1-2-3 Pastry

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons cold water

Combine flour and salt in mixing bowl. Blend in oil, mixing thoroughly with fork. Sprinkle all water on top; mix well. Press firmly into ball with hands. (If slightly dry, mix an additional 1 to 2 tablespoons oil.)

Europeans know Elke as pin-up queen. Now Hollywood's giving her a "no cheesecake" build-up.

ELKE SOMMER

they're changing her image

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

Now that Brigitte Bardot is passé—she suffers from acne, overexposure, and her last three films were flops—the number-one sex kitten in Europe is Elke (pronounced Fll-key) Sommer.

Elke (real surname—Schletz) is a blonde, saffig German Mädchen of 22 with a beautiful, green-eyed photogenic face and a curvaceous altogether which ranges from 120 to 135 pounds.

In the past 3 years Elke has starred in 16 motion pictures, 15 of which were made overseas. The Prize, her 16th, in which she plays a delectable Swedish guide showing Paul Newman the stimulating ins and outs of Stockholm, is her first Hollywood-made film. Last week she finished it for $50,000. After bleaching her hair, capping her teeth and viewing a rough cut, MGM signed Elke for three more films, ordered that she be given the Grace Kelly-type build-up: "No cheesecake, leg-art or bikini stills."

Since Europe has been flooded with thousands of Elke Sommer pin-up photos, this attempt to change the actress's public image is no easy job. The studio is convinced, however, that it can be done, at least on this side of the Atlantic, by placing the publicity emphasis on Elke's brain instead of her physique.

Fortunately, Elke is equipped with a good brain, a genteel background, a facility for languages—German, Spanish, French, English and Italian. Her father, before his death eight years ago, was pastor of the Lutheran Evangelical Church in the shadow of Spandau, the jail in which the last remaining three of the Nazi war criminals are still incarcerated.

His name was Friedrich Schletz, and according to Elke, "He always wanted a son, and since I was an only child, I had to do everything a son would have done. He sent me to school where I learned Greek and Latin to become a school-teacher. But then he died of a heart attack, and we had very little money to live on, a pension of 150 marks a month, about $40, because he was a war veteran. So I decided I would become an interpreter, and I changed to modern languages.

JOB IN ENGLAND

"To learn English," Elke goes on, "I hired myself out in England as a mother's helper, what they call an au pair girl. I worked for a very nice Jewish family called Nathan. Mr. Nathan worked in a fish market and had three kids, then a fourth. Joe Nathan was his name, and he paid me two pounds ten a week [$7].

"After seven months I managed to save some money. I got back home to Germany. With my mummy and a whole tourist group I went for a small vacation to Italy. I didn't speak any Italian then. I was almost 18 and then one night in Viareggio I was invited to go dancing by an Italian boy. My mummy went with me.

Today, demurely clothed, inseparable from her mother, Elke aims to be new Grace Kelly.

"We went dancing in the open air, but at the gate entrance they gave me a little card with a number. My number was 14. While we were dancing I noticed a table with about 40 elderly people looking at us through opera glasses. It was strange but I told myself, 'After all, this is Italy.'

"Anyway, after half an hour someone announced that Signorina Schletz was elected Miss Viareggio of 1958. They pulled me on the stage and gave me a blue sash and flowers and perfume and I smiled into the cameras."

The following day when Elke and her mother were lunching at their pension, a little Italian man ran up to their table, began to exclaim how wonderful it was that Elke was going into films.

Says Elke, "This man, his name is

"So we went, and I made a test at Cinecittà, and they said it was fine, and they offered me 5,000 marks, about $1,000, to make a picture. And I said to myself, 'Dear God, that is a lot of money. I will never have to be an au pair girl again.'

After her first film, Elke was spotted by famed Italian director Vittorio De Sica, who offered her 4,000 marks a picture, plus a build-up. Two more films in Rome during which provocative pin-ups were distributed throughout the Continent, and Elke had had enough of Italians.

"The men," she explains, "were too aggressive. That's why I left Rome. I like that city, but everywhere I went I was followed by men. I'd go out to the beach to be alone and in five minutes I'd be surrounded. If I was in a crowd, I would always get pinched. And the Italian men, when they talk, who can believe them? They exaggerate so much. I was glad to leave. I went to Germany and made six films, then four or five in France, then four in England, including The Victors.

"I saved my money and bought a house in Erlangen, that's a university town in Germany, and a villa in Spain, a very small one, and we have an apartment in Switzerland, but there is really no place in the world like Beverly Hills. I guess I will also buy a house here. Houses give me comfort and a feeling of security, especially when they are paid for."

SHREWD ABOUT MEN

Agented by Kurt Frings, a Machiavelian character who also represents Elizabeth Taylor and Audrey Hepburn, Elke Sommer—"I took the name Sommer because I like it"—is a sure bet for Hollywood stardom, largely because we don't seem to breed her type domestically. She is loaded with that rare combination of sex appeal and common sense, and more important, she's a shrewd judge of men.

During her Hollywood stay, she was given the "pitch" by half a dozen accomplished men-about-town, including Glenn Ford. Elke's stock but truthful answer: "I am not interested in going to Hollywood parties. I am mostly interested in making someone good of myself. There is always plenty of time for men."

A shrewd cookie, this Elke Sommer—one of the shrewdest, sharpest, smartest cookies to come down the Hollywood pike in a long, long time. In the apt words of her mother: "Her face gave Elke a start, but her brain will give her a future."

Land Squeeze Nips Military

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series telling of the problems of military installations resulting from the population explosion in Orange County. The final result will have telling effect locally. The first article sketches the general picture, others explore the details and the last article tells of a solution found in Ventura County to the north.)

By BILL JONES

The land war in Orange County pits subdivider against the armed forces and involves vital defense security and millions of dollars in property.

The military charges that the urban growth is slowly strangling the existence of three Navy and Marine air installations valued at more than $100 million.

It contends that future communities on the edges of the installations will put the armed forces in full retreat because of the nuisance of aircraft noise and the dangers of a crash.

The land developer retorts that (1) A man can do what he pleases with his land, (2) and, if the soldier is so worried, why doesn't he move out or (3) buy out the surrounding land as a "buffer zone."

Involved in the war are the nearly 7,000 acres of rich lands at:

Naval Air Station, Los Alamitos—Largest of the Navy's 18 air reserve activity locations in the United States.

Marine Air Station, El Toro — One of the Marine's four major training airdromes in the nation, and second largest employer in Orange County.

Marine Air Facility, Santa Ana—Largest Marine helicopter training installation in the continental limits.

The trio commands 17,650 active servicemen, reservists and government civilians. Their annual payrolls: $90.6 million.

Two of the chief battles in this war will be fought this week in the chambers of city and county officials.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, the Los Alamitos City Council will consider a zoning change that would permit the construction of an apartment development near the major landing strip of the Naval Air Station.

On Wednesday, the Orange County Planning Commission will tackle the future zoning of the farming land to the south of the main runway at the Marine Air Station.

The Navy claims scientific studies show that the proposed apartments "would receive so much noise that residents would be continually agitating to close the air station."

At El Toro, one developer has already filed a $1.5-million lawsuit against Orange County for "freezing" the usage of the land south of the Leathernecks' airfield. The case is due in court Sept. 9.

What prompts the military to take this strange role in the land fight is the shutdown or curtailment of military bases in urban areas because of public clamor.

More Aid Needed in Boy Hunt

A call for more volunteer searchers was issued late Saturday to help in the continuing search of the High Sierra northeast of Fresno for a missing 4-year-old Buena Park boy.

Meantime, Fresno County sheriff's officers said they were considering the possibility that Donald Roger Griffin was kidnapped.

The boy disappeared early Thursday from Deer Creek campground at Huntington Lake, 72 miles from Fresno. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Griffin of 5664 Chestnut Circle.

"WE'LL keep looking," said A. L. Collins, sheriff's deputy in charge of search operations. "We're trying everything in the book."

"As close as we've covered the entire area—land and water—I can't see how we've missed him. But we'll double check and double check again," Collins said.

Coins Are Scarce, Uncle Is Scarcer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)—Rare old American coins, said to be worth $10,000 to $15,000, were reported missing Saturday, along with the man who was guarding them at the All-American Coin Co. here.

The store owner, Ronald Winget, 25, told police he left the store in charge of his uncle, Royal Hewitt, 48, for about two hours and returned to find him and the coins missing.

Yarborough in Jab at 'Texas Politician'

FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI)—U. S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., bitter over not getting on the Appropriations Committee, lashed out Saturday night at those who blocked him—including, it was believed, Vice President Lyndon Johnson. Yarborough delivered the stinging attack at a reception honoring past presidents of the International Operating Engineers union. "It happened in each instance after the lackeys and henchmen of a powerful Texas politician had lobbied with other senators against me."

U. S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., got the Appropriations Committee job.

"I did not go to the United States Senate with a ring in my nose," Yarborough said, "and nobody has one in it now. None will be placed there."

Yarborough said members of the Senatorial Steering Committee "are fine gentlemen, but it is very difficult to achieve a committee when support from your home state is divided, and interests from your own state fight your advancement in Washington."

Washington Readies for Big March

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Preparations to handle the greatest mass demonstration in this city's history are nearly complete, with up to 200,000 whites and Negroes expected for the big anti-discrimination march Wednesday.

Federal and local authorities worked on last-minute details of an elaborate, military-like logistical plan to provide needed food, shelter, medical care and police protection for the marchers and also to halt mob violence should it occur.

The White House announced Saturday it will stay open an extra two hours Wednesday to accommodate any additional visitors. And President Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will be at the White House at 5 p.m. EDT to receive the 10 leaders of the march, led by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

WITH HOTELS and motels sure to be packed, sleeping quarters were sought in area universities, church parish halls and private homes for demonstrators who may have to spend the night.

Among those trying to line up sleeping accommodations was Secretary of State Dean Rusk's son, David, a University of California student.

More than 10,000 policemen, federal troops, National Guardsmen, firemen and deputies will be on hand to keep the peace, although local officials and the march leaders say they do not expect any violence. The demonstration's organizers are providing 1,500 civilian parade marshals themselves, most of them recruited in New York City.

GEORGE Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi Party in nearby Arlington, Va., said Saturday he plans to bring at least 200 followers to Washington for a "counter-demonstration."

Police said the Rockwell adherents could join the march if they do not try to incite riot.

Although Congress will be debating emergency legislation to avert a nationwide railroad strike, leaders of both houses will meet civil rights leaders at 9:30 a.m. EDT. The mass demonstrators will begin a half-mile march from Washington Monument to Lincoln Memorial two hours later.

MARCH leaders in New York, who are moving their headquarters here on Monday, said at least 43 members of Congress would attend the Lincoln Memorial rally. They said 75 legislators had rejected invitations to attend, and 64 others said they would be there if business permits.

VIN SMITH, 75-year-old Fullerton broker, leaves Long Beach for Catalina Saturday at the "controls" of his kayak.

'I'LL NEVER RETIRE'

Fullerton Broker, 75, Returning From Catalina Paddling Kayak

By VINT MADER

A 75-year-old Fullerton real estate broker and former lawyer who says "I'll never retire," successfully completed his third lone kayak trip to Catalina Saturday, fighting choppy seas and strong winds all the way.

VINCENT Smith, of 226 W. Union Ave., hauled his kayak ashore at Avalon at 4:30 p.m., ten hours after he paddled out of Long Beach Marina.

"I've had a big steak dinner and I'm fit as a fiddle and ready to dance a jig," said Smith Saturday evening.

He said he would put out to sea on his return trip to the mainland at 5:30 this morning and "try to arrive when the first outrigger in the race arrives."

The outriggers are six-man canoes from Hawaii and California taking part in an annual race.

"I'm going to give myself a handicap because there are six men in those outriggers and only one of me," he said.

Smith is escorted by a power boat, but he said he had no trouble on the outward voyage except leg cramps that pained him during the latter part of the trip.

HE MADE previous canoe trips across the channel in 1950 and 1952. And "I expect to go canoeing on my 100th birthday."

"I did it because I wanted to show senior citizens that rocking chairs are not as healthy as they're cracked up to be."

Starlight Serenade Singer Mixes Domesticity, Art

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Red-haired, svelte soprano Marni Nixon, who will be guest artist for Long Beach's free Starlight Serenade pop concert Tuesday,

8 p.m., in Bixby Park, thinks women can mix careers and marriage successfully.

That is, if they arrange their lives properly.

She's been a successful spouse for 13 years, a dedicated mother for 12 and a career gal since age 10.

Says she: "A woman is a more complete person if she fulfills her own drives and ambitions."

"I've long since come to the conclusion that if I fulfill myself, I can give a more enriched life to my children, culturally and otherwise, and that they will benefit by that."

DOES HER husband concur? "Ernest and I have never had any contentions about whether a woman should choose between a career and a home," says Marni.

"My husband is a composer, I am a singer. Neither of us ever thought of being anything else. It was only natural to continue our careers after marriage."

Her husband is Viennese musician Ernest Gold, Academy Award-winning composer of "Exodus" and nominee for another Oscar for his "Judgment in Nuremberg" musical score.

THERE'S NO conflict in their careers.

James Kirkwood, 80, Veteran Actor, Dies

WOODLAND HILLS (UP)—Veteran actor James Kirkwood, 80, died Saturday at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital.

Cause of death was not disclosed.

Kirkwood began his career in stock companies in 1900. He moved to Broadway where he played in David Belasco productions with such favorites of the day as Blanche Bates, Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin.

When filming of movies began on the East Coast, Kirkwood turned director for Jack Pickford in "Bill Apperson's Boy."

Kirkwood moved on to Hollywood where he played opposite Mary Pickford in the old Biograph Company.

Aid Teams Drilling on Into Mine

HAZLETON, Pa., Sunday (AP)—Work on enlarging the escape hole to David Fellin and Henry Thorne resumed early today after a 13-hour delay that set back their rescue hour until sometime Monday.

Most of the delay was caused because a special 30-inch bit had to be flown here from Dallas, Tex. Also, the 65-ton drilling rig had to be raised by hydraulic jacks to a height of four feet from the ground to accommodate the larger bit.

With a mighty roar, the giant drilling rig, as tall as a 10-story building, began churning the 30-inch bit into the section it had enlarged to 26 inches before noon Saturday.

THE AIM was to smooth out this portion so steel casing could be fitted down to the 38-foot depth to prevent cave-ins.

Thorne and Fellin have been trapped 331 feet underground for 12 days—since 9 a.m. Aug. 13. Also trapped is Louis Bova, 42, who has not been heard from since Tuesday and is separated from the others by about 25 feet of debris.

A smaller rig is drilling a three-inch hole aimed in Bova's direction. Three previous tries failed.

After the 30-inch drill cuts to the 38-foot level, workmen will change to a 17½-inch bit while the casing is inserted in the hole. Then plans call for using the 17½-inch bit the remainder of the way.

Once this is completed, it is hoped that in the early morning hours Monday, Thorne and Fellin will be pulled to the surface in a steel capsule that is almost as wide as the escape hole.

The escape capsule, which has been here for days, is made of rolled steel and is pointed at both ends, to cut down the possibility of becoming wedged in the shaft. It is about 15 inches in diameter.

WHEN ITS use first was suggested, rescue officials doubted a full-grown man could fit inside. But then a five-foot-eight miner, who weighs 285 pounds, showed he could. Neither Thorne nor Fellin is that big. Thorne being of average build, Fellin slight and wiry. In addition to the timbers Thorne and Fellin used to close the 12-inch opening and brace the walls, a giant "plug" also was sent down from the surface and sealed with concrete before enlarging began.

As the roar of the giant drilling rig pierced the dawn, Saturday, a state mining inspector, got in touch with Thorne and Fellin over the six-inch lifeline hole—completed last Sunday when they had been given up for dead by all but close relatives.

Truck Crushes Norwalk Boy

A Norwalk boy Saturday was crushed to death near his home by a Good Humor truck, according to sheriff's deputies.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Studebaker Hospital was Terry Lee Smith, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Eugene Smith of 13918 Longworth Ave.

"HOW ARE you today?" asked the inspector, Art Joyce.

"I'm all right," answered Fellin.

"How's the plug, all right?"

"Yeh, fine."

Then Fellin had a question.

"How long's it going to be?"

"It won't be long now," said Joyce, not mentioning Monday.

ALBACORE RANCHES?

Sea Roundups Eyed as Sources of Food

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A population expert proposed Saturday that man domesticate dolphin and other sea animals to help feed the rapidly rising number of hungry people in the world.

The suggestion was made by Ritchie Calder, professor of international relations of the University of Edinburgh, at the 16th International Congress of Zoology. He foresees sea farms the size of Texas.

"I can see us employing that highly intelligent and apparently loquacious creature, the dolphin," he said, "as the sheep dogs or even the farm managers of our submarine ranches."

Calder participated in a symposium on the world's population growth and its consequences. He said the population is bound to grow from three billion now to four billion or more by 1950.

THE FOOD supply, he said, must be doubled by then not merely to feed the new mouths but to improve currently inadequate diets.

There are many ways in which food production might be increased, but "the greatest opportunities," he said, lie in the seven-eighths of the globe which is covered by water.

In Washington, Equality Depends on The View

WASHINGTON, D.C., is a dual symbol to the tens of thousands of Negroes who will descend on the city Wednesday in a mass demonstration for civil rights. As the nation's capital, it is a repository of that noble philosophy which is the breath and blood of the American republic. But as a municipality, it contains one of the nation's most dismal Negro ghettos (right), where the squalor produced by apathy and poverty combine explosively with the anger and anguish of the new generations of Negroes. This civic split personality has produced a surface picture which makes it seem that the issue of racial equality is being resolved. In Federal Washington, Negroes have equal employment rights under civil service. They are welcomed on guided tours through the White House (above, left), and they may now register at the best hotels—thanks in part to the influx of foreign delegations—and eat at the finest restaurants. Even the district-built swimming pools are integrated. But these Negroes who taste equality by day have an entirely different view when they return to their ghetto at night. And day by day, along with their brethren in almost every major American city, their resolution grows to hurl down the walls of residential segregation until not a stone remains upon a stone. To many observers, Wednesday's mass march seems a perilous affair, which may lead to violence and hurt the cause of civil rights by alienating the sympathies of moderates who feel the Negroes are "going too far." But in Washington, where the dome of the Capitol overlooks the Negro slums, "going too far" nearly means going the long way around—because it seems to be the shortest way there.

THESE NEGRO boys have only a short walk to visit the Capitol and view the statues of America's great men.

PUBLIC SWIMMING pool built by District of Columbia at Haines Point is fully integrated without problems.

CONDITIONS ARE worse than Harlem in Washington's Negro slums, where many have despaired in ignorance and poverty.

Vocalist Successful as Wife and Mother

Marni's words: "They're different enough to complement one another. Ernest enjoys being in the audience when I sing, even if it means Mr. Marni Nixon, just as I enjoy being Mrs. Ernest Gold when listening to his musical accomplishments and sharing his successes."

The musical Golds live in a sprawling, modern-style home in Laurel Canyon, built four years ago, now being remodeled to accommodate their expanding family.

They have three children—a son, 12, daughter, 10, and an 11-month-old baby.

Gold does his composing in a studio on another hill behind the house, where he is connected by an intercom system or can cut himself off from the world if his artistry calls for complete isolation.

FOR MARNI and Ernest, the living hasn't always been so easy.

Back in the days when they were getting started, often they collected Coke bottles "just to have enough money to eat on," she recalls.

And when their first baby was born: "We had to borrow money to get him out of the hospital. They wouldn't release him until the hospital bill was paid."

But, according to Marni, that's just part of the game. "We weren't worried, we were having a gay old time. Now when I look back, those were really precious times."

"Sharing these problems only brought us closer together."

MARNI was conversationally turning back the years between rehearsals for her leading role in "The Marriage of Figaro," which played Friday and Saturday nights in Laguna Beach's Irvine Bowl.

The role was quite a contrast to her first onstage venture when, at the age of 10, she played an angry child who, with a lasso around her neck, was yanked on stage by a mischievous neighbor boy.

She didn't have to hit any high notes THAT night, she just had to cross her eyes convincingly.

AT THE SAME age, she broke into the movies via the violin.

"My mother was the most un-Hollywood mother in the world," recounted Marni. "I insisted on a violin."

"Once I got it, mother insisted I practice. There was a bit part in the movies for a child playing the violin. I got that."

"Then came some brat parts I had bright red pig-tails and big red freckles and a role in the 'Lum and Abner' series."

The same year, quite by accident, she won the sweepstakes prize at Pomona Fair.

"I didn't have my violin," she recalls, "so my sister (she has three) suggested I sing while she accompanied me on the piano."

Marni did "Blue Danube" and walked off with the honors.

THEN CAME a succession of musical-acting pursuits.

She played with the Los Angeles Symphony for Children, sang with the original Roger Wagner Chorale, did light opera at Pasadena Playhouse when in high school (Dorsey High, '47), studied at Los Angeles City College, at USC on a scholarship and at Stanford.

Then came marriage, children, a move to New York, prize-winning performances on Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" and "Chance of a Lifetime," also a part in the Broadway musical, "The Girl in Pink Tights."

A MULTI-TALENTED singer, Marni Nixon this year has come into her own.

Her versatility makes her valuable whether heard on the operatic stage, on records, in musical comedy or in concert.

Says one critic: "Miss Nixon's seemingly artless delivery of crystalline sound and her vibrant personality make for superb artistry."

Few singers can boast a voice of such unusual timbre. Often called the human flute, she has the voice behind everything from cartooned music to a woman falling into a volcano.

She swells the family bank account, also, by dubbing musical notes for movie stars whose voices do not fit the part. Most recently she sang for Natalie Wood in "West Side Story." She was Deborah Kerr's singing voice in "The King and I" and in "An Affair to Remember." Once she even sang for Margaret O'Brien.

Her lilting high notes have

Big Seawater Plant Asked in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A large-scale seawater conversion plant that would serve San Diego County under a partnership plan has been proposed by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

Vice President W. A. Zitlau proposed that local government agencies build the plant at an estimated cost of $14 million.

The new facility would be operated by the gas company, which would supply it with excess steam from existing generating plants, he said.

"Based on the quantity and quality of steam available, we find that we could accommodate a sea water conversion plant with a daily maximum output of 25 million gallons," Zitlau said. This amount, he said, was about 31 percent of San Diego's average daily requirement.

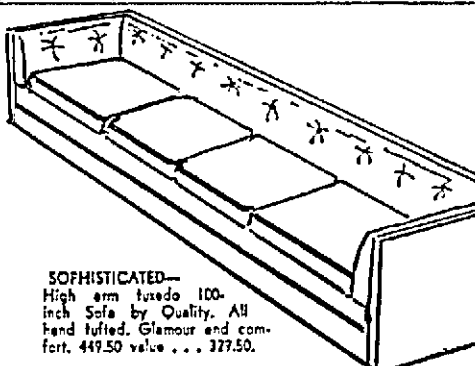

Zitlau said the cost of water from the plant would compare "favorably" with that of water from other sources.

Moslems Protest Giraffe's Name

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — "Mohammed," a giraffe born in the Amsterdam zoo, was renamed "Farhat" (joy) after the Institute for Islamic Studies in The Hague sent the zoo a "shocked protest" letter.

Dr. Schweitzer Backs Nuclear-Test Ban

HYANNIS, Mass (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday threw new ammunition into his fight for Senate ratification of the nuclear-test-ban treaty by making public an emotional endorsement from Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the 1952 Nobel Peace Prize winner.

The President, spending a rainy weekend with his wife and children, also released a report from his science advisory committee which commended the treaty as "an important step toward a safe and secure peace in the world."

Schweitzer, writing from his medical mission at Lambaréne, West Equatorial Africa, penned his brief letter in French. He congratulated the Chief Executive for "having had the foresight and the courage to inaugurate a world policy toward peace." The elderly scientist, physician and humanitarian commented on the treaty:

"Finally a ray of light appears in the darkness in which humanity was seeking its way and gives us hope that the darkness will make way for light."

Schweitzer called the limited test-ban treaty "one of the greatest events, perhaps the greatest, in the history of the fight against atomic weapons," he said. "He died in Princeton in despair. And I, thanks to your foresight and courage, am able to observe that the world has taken the first step on the road leading to peace."

Veteran Units Hail Hosmer for Military Veteran Aid Work

Eleven plaques and scrolls were presented to Congressman Craig Hosmer at Mottell's Chapel Saturday afternoon in a military dedication ceremony staged by the Civic and Veteran Committee of Southern California.

The veteran's groups participating expressed appreciation to the Long Beach legislator, for his long-time work in behalf of the Veterans Hospital, Navy Shipyard, new Navy hospital and toward military men and their families.

Some 400 persons attended the dedication of "Adoration of the Shepherds," the huge new mosaic in Mottell's Chapel, then witnessed presentation of the plaques and scrolls to Hosmer at a ceremony in Mottell's Garden Room.

HOSMER delivered the dedication address, pointing out the mosaic was created "in memory of all the veterans who gave their lives for our country."

"The mosaic, depicting the adoration of the shepherds at the birth of Jesus Christ, is especially fitting," Hosmer said. "For God and country are particularly significant words in connection with our country. Perhaps never in history has this been so important to our nation as now in these crucial years."

Gang Stealing Explosives Blown to Bits

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Four and possibly five men were feared killed Saturday night when an estimated three tons of dynamite exploded on the east side of Butte, rocking an area 10 miles in diameter.

Sheriff's officers and police, acting on a tip, were in wait at the Pittsmonth mine slag dump for men who allegedly were going to steal the dynamite which had been unloaded at the dump Friday.

Observers said the bodies were blown to bits.

Four or five cars were seen arriving at the scene shortly before the explosion. The men in those cars were believed involved in trying to take the explosives.

It was not immediately determined what set off the dynamite.

country, led off the ceremony. They were Maj. Sidney Goldstein of Westminster, state commander; Cmdr. D. Gary of Garden Grove, state senior vice-commander; and Lt. John Lang of Long Beach, state service officer.

THE PLAQUES and scrolls presented Congressman Hosmer were from:

Capt. William Sullivan, American Legion Post No. 617 and Auxiliary, presented by John Miller.

Fleet Reserve Association, Tom Davis.

United Veterans Council, Rolland Bach.

Scrolls from Navy Wives of America, Club 123 of Long Beach, and Retired Officers and Wives Club of Long Beach, both presented by Mrs. Louis H. Murray.

Operation Is Interrupted by Surgery Room Fire

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Some 50 patients, some critically ill, had to be evacuated from the Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital Saturday.

"Everybody is crying from the smoke, but nobody was hurt," one fireman said.

The patients were moved back inside the hospital from the 80-degree heat outside after 15 fire units extinguished the flames within 45 minutes.

UC Scientists Favor A-Test Ban Treaty

BERKELEY (UPI) — Seventy-seven of 79 University of California scientists favor Senate ratification of the partial nuclear test ban treaty, according to the local chapter of the Federation of American Scientists.

The remaining two opposed the treaty in answering the questionnaire. The survey was conducted among UC chemists, physicists and biologists.

Dr. George Klefgen said he was just completing a major operation when he saw flames push through the ceiling of the operating room.

The patient was rushed to safety and "is doing fine," a hospital spokesman said.

"WE CAN'T use the surgery room now," the spokesman said, "until it's rebuilt." The sudden blaze disrupted scheduled operations for the day but resulted only in postponed surgeries.

Smoke fumed through one of the hospital wings housing four major wards — the recovery room, orthopedics, periatrics and the general medical ward.

Set 'Comprehensive' NROS Program

Reserve officers in the Long Beach-San Pedro-Orange County area this fall will be offered the most comprehensive program of instruction in the nine year history of the Naval Reserve Officer School 11-4 which maintains central offices at Long Beach State College.

A total of 23 classes taught by specialists from business, industry, and higher education will be offered to reserve officers from all branches of the armed services when the new school starts Sept. 12, according to Capt. Harry B. Frishman, USNR, commanding officer.

Newest of the courses to be added to the reserve officer curriculum will be "National Strategy in the Cold War." This thorough examination of threats to American freedom will be studied in classes held at State College, the Santa Ana Naval Reserve Training Center and the San Pedro Naval Reserve Training Center.

Renew Attack on Child Killer Cystic Fibrosis

By BEN ZINSER
Medical Science Editor

A new research attack on the childhood killer cystic fibrosis will begin in Long Beach late this fall with the establishment of a drug-treatment, cystic fibrosis clinic in Memorial Hospital.

One of drugs to be evaluated is an exciting new compound reported on early this year to the American College of Physicians.

The clinic, first of its kind in this area, has just been given a $1,500 grant by the Long Beach Chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

The clinic will be open to all CF victims in the Southland. In charge will be three Long Beach physicians, Drs. Jack Lieberman, Harry W. Orme and Myrvin H. Ellestad.

CYSTIC fibrosis is a chronic children's disease of the glands of external secretion. Its complications involve the lungs, digestive system and sweat glands.

The ailment, which is inherited, occurs in about one of every 1,000 babies. It is usually fatal, but research findings are increasing life expectancy for victims. There is no cure.

The most serious complications are caused by the abnormal mucus produced in various organs. Normal mucus secreted by the lining membrane of the organs is thin, clear and slippery. But in CF, mucus is thick and sticky, and may obstruct the intestines, block the ducts of the pancreas and liver and plug up the air passages of the lungs.

DOCTORS at the new clinic will concentrate on evaluating drugs that can thin the gummy mucus that clogs the lungs. At present there is no compound that can do this adequately.

A promising new drug called mono-iodotyrosine, or MIT for short, will be one of the first to be evaluated. It is a chemical relative of another new drug — DIT or di-iodotyrosine — which is already being used on six Long Beach CF victims.

DIT is being used currently because it is easier to produce in the laboratory, it was explained. The children will be switched to MIT when it becomes available. Both compounds are available for research only.

DR. LIEBERMAN calls the new drugs "exciting."

"DIT is clearing the lungs, enabling these children to breathe and sleep better at night," Dr. Lieberman said. "The exciting thing is that MIT has been shown to be twice as potent as DIT."

Both compounds, thyroid-like agents, are administered as a mist in a face mask.

MIT, he said, is set to get its first widespread trial in the Long Beach cystic fibrosis clinic.

Meanwhile, the Long Beach Chapter of the CF research foundation plans to hold its annual fund-raising drive Sept. 8, 9 and 10. Volunteer workers will conduct a door-to-door canvass on those dates.

State Legion's Officers Call for Expulsion of Hill Post

established that the post was being used by at least some of its members as a front for the supersecret California Rangers, an armed underground guerrilla group.

George Joseph King, 30, of Long Beach, a member of the Rangers arrested earlier this month for selling automatic weapons to Federal agents, is a member of the Signal Hill Legion Post.

Col. William Gale, who as Constitution Party candidate for governor in 1958, received 2,301 votes of 5,255,777 cast, is head of the Rangers. He transferred his Legion membership from a Beverly Hills post to the Signal Hill post earlier this year.

AT A MEETING held in Signal Hill City Hall, across the street from the Legion post's modest quarters, post officers hastily got the regular order of Legion business out of the way, "ad-journed," then listened to a speech by Gale.

On the table in the rear of the meeting hall was literature, including some issued by the National Renaissance Party, a neo-Nazi organization based in New York.

Members of the Renaissance Party, headed by Vincent Madole, were arrested in New York recently when it was discovered they carried an arsenal with them while harassing an integrationist picket line.

OTHER literature made available from a contact within the post included the National States Rights Party "Thunderbolt," one of the more virulent hate sheets in the country, "Common Sense," considered by some as the worst of the nation's hate sheets, and a potpourri of other hate literature including some written by agents for foreign countries.

COL. WILLIAM GALE

The California Senate fact-finding subcommittee on un-American activities calls the NSRP "more potentially dangerous than any of the American Nazi groups."

THIS WRITER was told by one Signal Hill Post member—who was recruiting members—that the Post accepted only "White Christian Americans." The spokesman also was a member of the Rangers. He said each prospective member was investigated by the post to determine his religion.

At least some members of the post wear small gold crosses to specify they will deal only with "Christians."

The member who attempted to recruit this writer professed an admiration for the Rev. Wesley Swift, onetime lecturer for the Ku Klux Klan and more recently a factor in the California Rangers.

BASED ON attendance at

post meetings, many of the members could be unaware of the activities of the extremists in the post.

C. Eunice Monroe, who became the post's first woman commander and served two terms from 1956 to 1958, recently was re-elected. She replied angrily to the State Legion resolution.

"People have been heckling us for three years. If you ever find out what the charges are, would you let us know?" she asked.

"We want to be brought to trial. We want to know what the charges are before we go to court and who made them."

"I did hear by way of the grapevine," she said, "that we were too far to the right."

MRS. MONROE and Robert R. Collins were listed as commander and adjutant of the post respectively by Stockman. He said that, contrary to custom, names of other Signal Hill officers were not placed on file with state headquarters.

Mrs. Monroe refused to reveal their names when asked.

Stockman said under Legion procedure the post has 30 days to reply to the executive committee resolution.

Security Cut Deplored by Gen. Clay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, a prominent advocate of less spending for foreign aid, said Saturday the hefty cut voted by the House could badly damage free world security.

Clay joined forces with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk in deploring Friday's surprise House decision to hold overseas aid this year to more than $3.5 billion.

REPUBLICAN Clay is the retired general who headed a presidential advisory committee which reported last March that it had found deficiencies in the administration of the aid program. The 10-man group recommended cuts in the scope of the program, saying that "We are indeed attempting too much for too many."

After the committee made its report, Kennedy reduced from $4.9 billion to $4.5 billion his request for money to run the program in the fiscal year which started July 1.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

7 Demos Attack Rail-Peace Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seven Democrats on the Senate Commerce Committee Saturday attacked a key provision in an emergency arbitration bill designed to block a nationwide rail strike at midnight Wednesday.

They called for unlimited negotiations to settle secondary issues in the four-year-old work-rules dispute instead of arbitration if no agreement is reached on the so-called minor matters by a fixed deadline.

This represented the basic position taken by five rail unions on the legislation and appeared certain to touch off a Senate floor fight Monday when the bill comes up for passage. The House also hopes to pass the measure before the strike deadline.

K in Burying Mood Again

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev dusted off an old threat Saturday and pledged that communism would bury capitalism—with assembly-line production.

Pointing a finger at Western reporters covering his 15-day visit to Yugoslavia with President Tito, Khrushchev shouted, "I say we will beat you, and beat you with better-organized production. We will not bury you with a shovel, but the working class will bury you."

"Why the devil should I bury the capitalists?" the Soviet leader asked a group of more than 1,000 shipyard workers he addressed under a hot sun in this port of the Adriatic Sea. "Their own working class will do it."

Khrushchev's speech was a variation on a theme he played Wednesday in off-the-cuff remarks to assembly line workers at a tractor factory near Belgrade.

Viet Police Search U.S. Official Cars

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Vietnamese police, in a mounting wave of anti-Americanism, have begun searching official U.S. cars. They arrested three American newsmen and photographers Saturday with a shout of, "To Hell with Americans!"

Student unrest against the government mounted hourly and 1,000 of them, led by Buddhist ex-Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau, demonstrated against the government for the second consecutive day. Police did not interfere but the government closed the schools.

The U.S. Embassy protested to the government against the search of cars which was concentrated on those of the U.S. Aid Mission next door to the ransacked Xa Loi pagoda, stormed early Wednesday by police and soldiers at start of the Buddhist repression.

JFK Orders A-Tests Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy has ordered a sharp expansion in U.S. underground nuclear testing which is not banned by the tri-power treaty now awaiting Senate ratification, the Defense Department revealed Saturday.

Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric made the disclosure in a 10-page letter giving the Senate Armed Services Committee "extensive assurances" that every possible safeguard will be observed against risks which the treaty admittedly entails.

The pact—signed by the United States, Britain and Russia and more than 75 other nations—bans only tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space.

Venezuela Terrorists Kidnap Athlete

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Terrorists kidnaped an international soccer star from his hotel room Saturday—hours after snipers fired shots at police guards at a soccer game attended by President Romulo Betancourt's wife and daughter.

Argentine-born Alfredo di Stefano, center-forward on the Real Madrid soccer team of Spain, was said by a hotel concierge to have been taken from his room at 6 a.m. by men posing as narcotics agents.

Newspapers reported later they received anonymous telephone calls saying the seizure of Stefano was another publicity effort of the Armed Forces for National Liberation (FALN), which seeks to topple the Betancourt regime. FALN is a pro-Communist, pro-Castro organization which also has been carrying out sabotage against U.S. business interests in Venezuela.

Socialist Rule in Norway Ends

OSLO, Norway (UPI)—Eighteen years of uninterrupted Socialist rule in Norway ended Saturday when Premier Einar Gerhardsen presented his resignation to King Olav V in the wake of the Storting's (parliament) nonconfidence vote.

Olav promptly called on Conservative Party Leader John Lyng to form a new government and Lyng accepted. He is expected to present his new cabinet to the king next Tuesday.

New Office to Enforce Realty Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state real estate commission has established a four-man office here to administer new laws aimed at crooked—or overenthusiastic—subdivision promoters.

The office will go to work Sept. 20, when the laws take effect, checking applications and credentials of promoters who propose to sell land—located in or out of the state—to Californians.

The real estate commissioner, Milton G. Gordon, was given new powers by the 1963 legislature after an investigation by lawmakers into complaints of fraud.

ONE LAW allows the commissioner to determine whether an offer of subdivision land has been fairly represented to prospective buyers.

Another gives him power to check promises by promoters for additional developments, such as golf courses, at subdivisions to determine whether they could be carried out.

In either case, he could block the sale if fraud were detected, or the property misrepresented, or the promoter or seller could not live up to his promises.

PREVIOUSLY, the commissioner simply could give his opinion, which had no legal force.

"This will put no burden on the responsible subdivision," said Gordon's assistant, Jack Hempel. "But it will make sure he has made adequate arrangements."

"Unless the whole story is told, they could be considered misleading," he said.

Ocean Roundups Eyed for Feeding of Humans

"As far as the seas are concerned," Calder added, "we are still at the cave-man stage, hunting our food instead of husbanding it."

"SEA-RANCHES," sea-pastures, sea stud farms are not absurdities. We ought to be able to domesticate the sea-creatures. At least in this generation of zoologists we ought to catch up with our neolithic ancestors (late Stone Age people) who provided us with every domesticated animal we have."

He recommended for domestication, in addition to dolphins or porpoises, the so-called sea-cows, the manatee and the dugong. These related mammals grow to giant size and constitute "a pretty substantial hunk of protein" food.

THEY ALSO feed on the water-hyacinth, a pestiferous plant which clogs the rivers and estuaries of Asia and Africa. Perhaps, Calder suggested, these sea animals could be trained to keep water-hyacinth under control while they are being fattened for the human food supply.

Calder noted that the sea bottom is rich in fertilizer. Even in so-called marine deserts, this sea-bottom compost could be stirred up by mechanical means to enrich the ocean levels where fish can thrive, he said.

"WE COULD fence off great arms of the sea and turn (each of) them into an oceanic Texas by putting mild electric shockwaves across the entrances to discourage fish from migrating, just as strands of electric wires restrain farm animals."

BEACH COMING
With MALCOLM EDLEY
SHAVER LAKE, Fresno County—Have you ever longed for an electric blanket on a chilly night in a mountain outdoor camp? The thought, until now, has been ridiculous and futile, because there was nothing to hook the wires to in such places—unless one had an awfully long cord stretching to the next town or some distant wired building. But Southern California Edison has done it—it has brought electric outlets to every campsite (there are 100 of them) in a tree-studded public campground it opened Friday morning on the shores of jewel-like Shaver Lake.

IT'S BILLED as an "all-electric camp" and in addition to the outlets, set on trees or posts, there are electric cooking centers, lighted buildings with modern plumbing facilities, hot water showers, dressing rooms for men and women bathers, barbecue grills and a boat and swimming dock.

All of this is almost embarrassing to an old rough and ready camper like me, but for parties with women-folk, or anybody who likes his "roughing-it" not quite so rough, it would be great.

In fact, this is such a beautiful spot, and the campground so conveniently laid out with secluded separate camps, it wouldn't be too difficult to embarrass me with these modern facilities for a few nights and days.

SOME of us were up from L.B. and L.A. for the dedication ceremonies of Camp Edison, 50 miles northeast of Fresno on Hwy. 168.

That was on Thursday. The camp wasn't opened to the public—it's operated on a first come, first serve basis—until Friday at 8 a.m.

When we left camp Thursday about four, 15 camping parties were already lined up at the entrance. They were going to stay right there all night to be the first to use the camp. When we passed by again Friday morning, 50 or more trailer and car parties were in line.

It's obvious Camp Edison is going to be mighty popular with the camping public.

HOW COME So. Cal. Edison is doing all this?

Well, the company owns 20,000 acres or so around Shaver Lake, which is a part of its big complex of reservoirs and power houses scattered over one of the most beautiful sections of the Sierra.

It has decided to increase the development of the public recreation facilities in its Sierra realm as part of a general stewardship of the region compatible with good public policy.

So Camp Edison was projected for a 250-acre site on the lakeshore and Edison, being in the business, just made it an exemplary electricity-using project. At the same time, it decided to charge only a nominal fee for campers, with a two-week limit on any one party.

There are 100 campsites and 100 trailer sites, in addition to some public picnic grounds and day-camp set-ups.

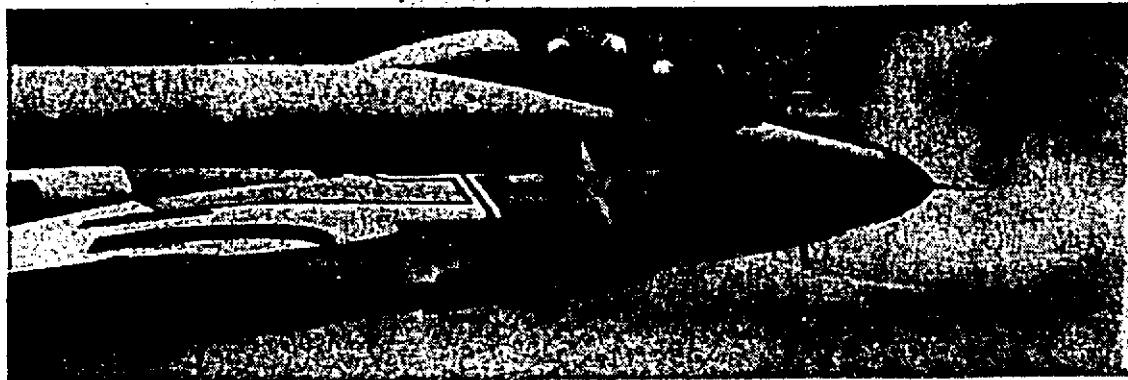

For any of my readers who may be interested in a trip up that way—remember, it's a first-come, first-served situation. No reservations are taken. But it's a big country, with a lot of forest camps, etc., and if you happen to find Camp Edison full, there'll no doubt be some other good spot close by.

But not one with power outlets at every campsite. That, for the time being, is an Edison exclusive.

IN ADDITION to the camp development, Edison is running a reforestation project on its land, growing seedlings in a nursery and planting ponderosa pine, sugar pine and Sequoia trees. It also has a fish hatchery and steadily plants the several big lakes which are a part of its operation. Running a power company involves a lot more than generating and distributing power and sending out bills.

THE NEXT MOVE for this pilot at Oxnard Air Force Base may be a "scramble in his F101 interceptor—130 seconds after alert.

There's a New Breed of Flying Tigers On Guard in California's Skies

By LEE CRAIG

Aerospace Editor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Independent, Press-Telegram Aerospace Editor Lee Craig recently spent two days living and flying with the fighter pilots of the 437th Fighter Squadron at Oxnard Air Force Base which is charged with the aerial defense of the Southland. The following is his first-hand account of their activities.)

A stocky, dark-haired United States Air Force captain, frowning in concentration, is playing checkers with a young, crew-cut first lieutenant. Their bright orange flight suits lend a flamboyant touch of color to the drably curtained second-floor quarters at Oxnard Air Force Base.

Two minutes later, they are in the air, and two minutes after that they are 40,000 feet, streaking faster than the speed of sound in their jet interceptor toward what could be a flight of enemy bombers heading for Southland targets.

They are members of the 437th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, whose emblem is a snarling tiger and whose mission is the defense of this area from air attack by any aggressor nation.

These second-generation "Flying Tigers" have aircraft and weapons far surpassing those of their famous namesakes.

They fly the F101 Voodoo, a two-seat, twin-engined, long-range interceptor, one of the fastest and most powerful aircraft in the world.

Capable of speeds greater than 1,200 miles an hour, the bullet-shaped fighter carries Falcon missiles and nuclear-tipped Genie air-to-air rockets.

Radar-equipped, the Voodoo can find its target at night and in any kind of weather.

Although top military officers realize the main menace to this country is the ballistic missile and space threat, they feel that manned bombers would play an integral role in an attack on the United States.

Probable order of assault, they believe, would be a sudden and devastating rain of nuclear bombs on coastal targets from offshore submarines, timed to coincide with intercontinental ballistic missiles thundering down on key defense centers throughout the nation.

Next would come wave upon wave of supersonic bombers, hoping to fight their way through defenses weakened by the first attacks.

To minimize this possibility, the North American Air Defense Command has carried through a program of dispersing counterforce aircraft to a variety of civilian and military airfields throughout the country to help insure their survival in case of a sudden, unannounced war.

One of these fields could be Long Beach Municipal Airport with its 10,000-foot runway, where this city's 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group would be standing by, ready to refuel and rearm the interceptors so they could return to the battle.

Eye of the Voodoos in their search for an unseen enemy is SAGE, for "semi-automatic ground environment," a lightning-quick command-control system.

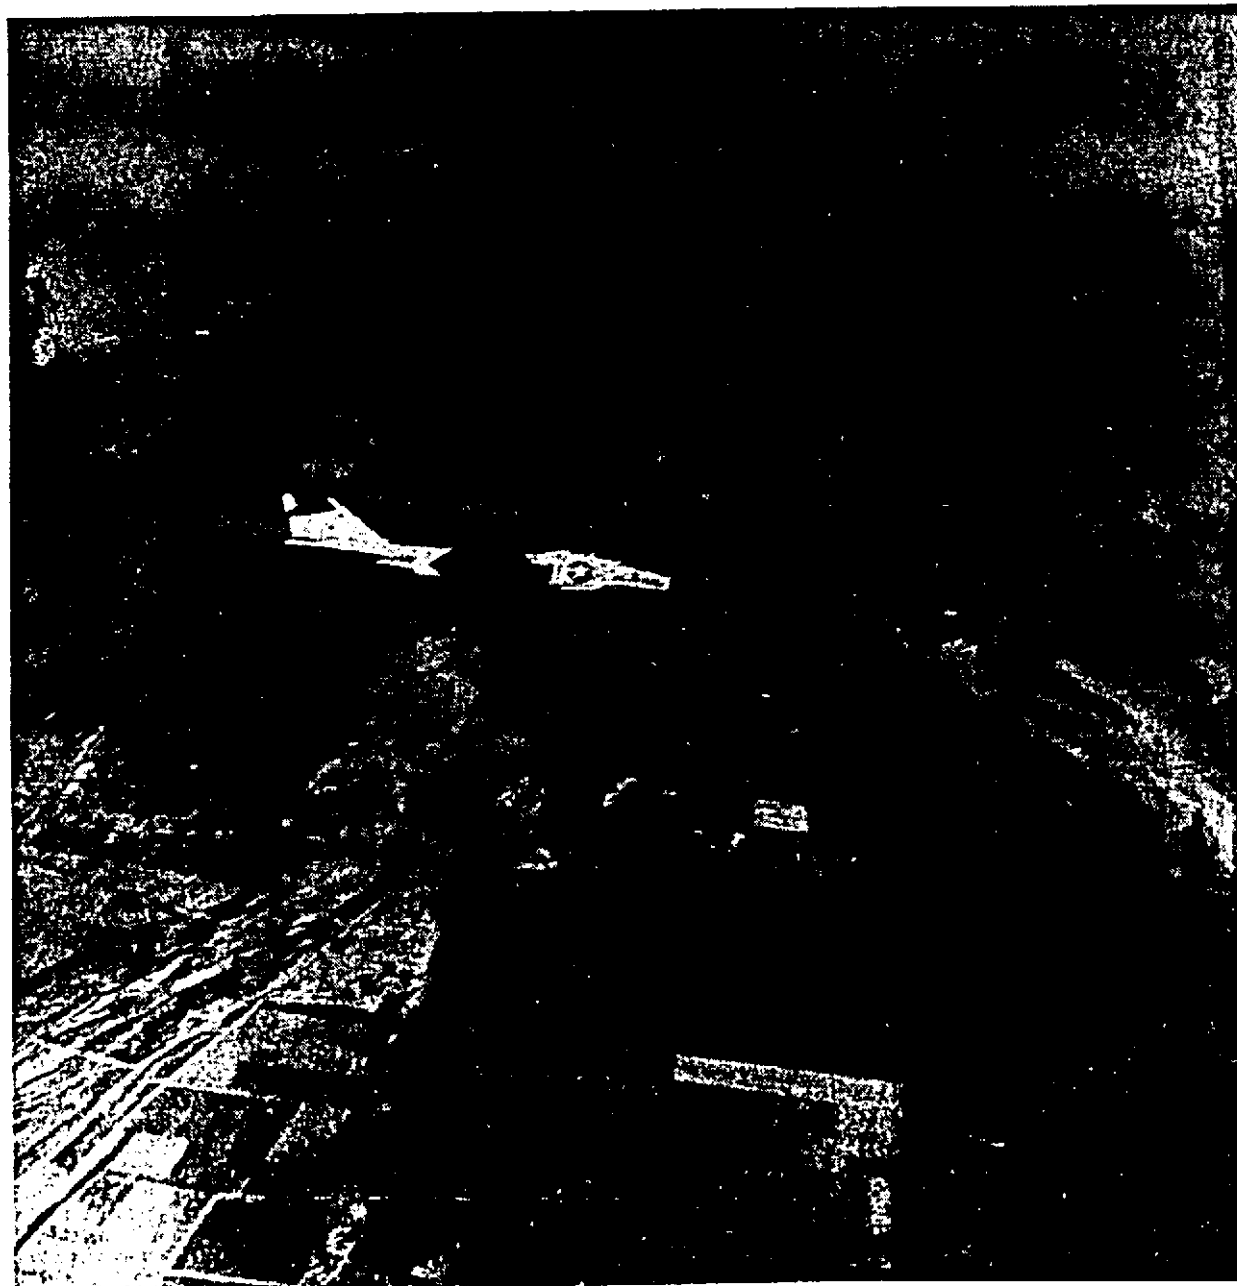

SAGE equipment and its installation around the country is worth its $2 billion price tag, military strategists feel.

The system draws information from radar early warning aircraft and picket ships and other sources, considers the defense capability at the moment, then, if given the command, can select the proper manned or unmanned interceptors for the mission.

SAGE's computers digest mountainous quantities of data continuously, absorbing it within millionths of a second, and can direct interceptors unerringly to their targets.

In attempting to keep pace with the postwar threat, air defense has gone from piston-engine fighters and manual warning and control systems to supersonic interceptors and missiles carrying atomic weapons and controlled through fantastically complicated electronic systems.

And even after an effective method of dealing with the ballistic missile menace is found, the dedicated crews who man the 437th's interceptors still will play a vital role in this nation's balanced air defense.

SCREAMING over the California countryside, Voodoo of the 437th Fighter Squadron returns to base after practice alert.

SLEEPY TIGER, nestled in arms of Capt. Sam Melvin, is squadron mascot—and usually as alert as his masters.

A Day for Scrambled Eggheads

YOUNG DEMOCRATS from 13 western states ended a three-day convention in Berkeley, Calif., last week with the adoption of a group of 52 resolutions. We have searched hopefully for another word besides "radical" with which to describe certain of the resolutions.

We haven't found it.

POLITICAL PARTIES look to their younger members for progressive ideas—but this is ridiculous.

Perhaps Berkeley had one of those hot August days which sometimes come along to scramble the eggheads in that locale.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRATS resolved, for example, that the United States should resume diplomatic relations with Cuba. Somehow they succeeded in ignoring the fact that Communist Castro had stolen millions of dollars worth of American property, given his country over as a Russian base, and announced his intentions of extending Communist influence to Cuba's neighbors.

The Young Democrats suggests that the United States withdraw its forces from South Viet Nam. The U.S. has dispatched more than 10,000 men and millions of dollars in supplies and equipment to South Viet Nam in a major commitment to see the Communist guerrillas defeated. Viet Nam is thus an important point of confrontation with communism. The Young Democrats want the U.S. to back down from that confrontation.

They want to abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities. They also want to repeal the Internal Security Act, which guards against the employment of subversives in American defense facilities.

WHAT THESE resolutions amount to is an abject policy of retreat, defeat, humiliation and stupidity.

If this is the sort of promise these young men give us for the future, frankly we look toward that future with more than a little concern.

CAPITAL CAPERS

Liberty's Torch or Nikita's Shoe?

I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Dr. Edward Teller, the famed nuclear physicist, is also a keen student of politics. A few weekends ago, he was cruising about New York harbor in a friend's boat. As they passed the Statue of Liberty, one of the passengers suggested in jest that perhaps the old lady should come down inasmuch as she is a Gaullist symbol. Warning to his subject, he also noted that since the United States seems more warmly disposed toward Russia than France at present, perhaps a statue of Khrushchev should replace it. But what, he asked, should Khrushchev hold aloft in his hand, as the statue now brandishes the torch of liberty. "That's easy," replied Dr. Teller, "he should be holding a shoe."

IT'S A BRAVE POLITICIAN who dares to publish a book on politics, or any subject for that matter, in an election year. But that's what Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is doing. His manuscript of "The Liberal Response to the Conservative Challenge" has gone to the publisher for appearance next fall. This places McCarthy in the company of another courageous profile. We refer to President Kennedy, who will have a book on the history of immigration in the United States, in the bookstalls this winter.

THE NEW FRONTIER is beginning to show the strain. A White House staffer, identified as Donald Rogers, recently placed a phone call to the Minnesota state capital in care of "Gov. Andersen's press secretary." Andersen of course was deceased last spring by Democrat Karl Rolvaag. A quick-witted operator switched the call to Tom Roser, the former governor's press aide. Roser informed the White House caller that Andersen no longer is in office. There was a whistle of surprise on the other end of the phone. "You mean they've got a Republican governor out there now?" the voice said incredulously.

WASHINGTON IS BRACING itself for the big civil rights march on the capital scheduled for this coming Wednesday. Washington police are being outfitted somewhat like paratroopers on D-day. Some legislators are making sure they'll be some other place. Mothers are warning children to stay away from the expected mob; others are urging their children to take part in the show. Not since the days of Coxey's Army or the Bonus Marchers has the city made such preparations for a demonstration. An aura of optimism now pervades the atmosphere. Where as it had at first been feared that the demonstration could turn into an all-out riot, the general feeling now is that the whole affair will be peaceful enough. Nonetheless, the citizenry of Washington and the city's officials will breathe a sigh of relief when Wednesday, Aug. 28, is past history.

A Rough Stretch in the Road

Who'll Pay for the Losses Caused by Capital 'March'?

WASHINGTON—Millions of dollars will be lost to merchants of retail goods and to businesses of various kinds on Aug. 28 in this city because of the fear of area residents to come to downtown Washington on that day during the "demonstration" which will bring from 100,000 to 250,000 persons to the streets of the national capital. Who is to pay these losses? Why should innocent citizens be penalized?

LAWRENCE

The mayor of a city usually decides whether a permit to parade or demonstration will interfere with a city's normal operations, and a permit is granted or refused on the basis of what the impact will be on the commerce of the community. This city has no mayor because the residents are not permitted to vote for their local government. A commission of three is appointed by the President to manage the affairs of the District of Columbia. So, for all practical purposes, the President is virtually the mayor here. The responsibility, therefore, for the losses incurred by private citizens rests with the federal government.

"Will Congress now pass a bill permitting all businesses to claim not just a deduction but a tax credit for the entire loss incurred? Most corporations pay a 52 per cent tax rate, which means that the company itself bears 48 per cent of a loss. Why shouldn't the government take care of 100 per cent of the loss when the government is responsible entirely for the granting of an official permit which allows a "demonstration" to be held that frightens the populace and causes it to avoid the stores that day?

Many companies will find that their employees will be too scared to come to work.

It will be argued that this "demonstration" is for a good cause. But the government provides that charitable contributions to worthy causes are deductible for income-tax purposes. No such provision, however, has been made to cover "contributions" to the demonstration made involuntarily by employees as well as employers. Since Congress is virtually the "board of aldermen" for the District of Columbia, it is contended that Congress should take care of the losses incurred by innocent bystanders.

Whether the "demonstration" will be peaceful is anybody's guess. There are church organizations of white people in different parts of the country which are sending so many of their members by buses and special trains to participate that it looks as if the "demonstration" will be only partly composed of Negroes. The odds would seem to be in favor of its being a peaceful affair. But, as the time for the "March" approaches, the fears of local residents have by no means been dispelled.

NO MATTER how peaceful it turns out to be, the "demonstration" will set a significant precedent. How can the District of Columbia government now refuse a permit to any organization, no matter how unpopular its cause may be, to carry on a "demonstration" involving 100,000 or more persons? The Constitution, of course, recognizes the "right of petition," but this can be exercised as effectively by 60,000 people seated in a football stadium, with a television broadcast of the speeches made there, as it can be by a street parade or gathering of mobs.

There is nothing in the Constitution which says that the "right of petition" includes the right to disturb somebody's business, even for one day. But there is a clause in the Constitution which says that no person "shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

JACK ANDERSON

JFK, Nikita Have Wary Mutual Respect

WASHINGTON—After nearly three years of crisis and confrontation, a grudging admiration has grown up between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev.

No two adversaries could be less alike. One is young, handsome, born to wealth, who has become the elected leader of a free people. The other is old, ugly, a self-educated peasant, who rose from oblivion to become master of the Kremlin.

Yet intimates assert these two opposites have developed a respect, amounting to liking, for each other.

Khrushchev has joked to visitors that if Kennedy had been born under the hammer and sickle, he would have made a good Communist. Kennedy has remarked that if Khrushchev had been born in Iowa, he could have become an Iowa politician.

But the President constantly reminds his aides: "never forget Khrushchev's aim is to bury us."

And Khrushchev, talking to a White House man in Moscow, said of Kennedy: "He's no relative of mine. He is a big capitalist. I am a Communist. I have a very definite attitude toward capitalists."

From intimates who understand the unique relationship between Kennedy and Khrushchev, here is a thumbnail sketch of the great poker game for peace and the two principal players who face each other across the globe.

The dialogue between them began with an exchange of cables in January, 1961, over the release of two U.S. pilots from Soviet prison. When the men were freed, Kennedy was encouraged. He had established communication with Khrushchev, and it had paid off. With persuasion and reason, perhaps wider understanding might be possible.

The new President took pains not to disrupt this delicate dialogue. More than once, he toned down statements which he felt might needlessly offend Khrushchev.

Kennedy went so far as to sound out the Kremlin, indirectly and unofficially, about calling off the cold war for six months during his administration's shake-down.

Apparently Khrushchev regarded this as naive, decided to find out whether it might also be a sign of weakness. He started bearing down on the East-West pressure points to test the young President's mettle.

As the tension tightened, the opponents' curiosity about one another grew.

BY THE SPRING of 1961, each was impatient to look the other over. Khrushchev dropped the first hints that it might be a good idea to get together. For Kennedy's part, he felt a personal encounter might also reduce the risk of miscalculation. So a meeting was set for Vienna.

The weather was sparkling as champagne, and so was the opening mood. Khrushchev was at his jovial best, Kennedy at his most charming.

When the talks reached the subject of Berlin, however, the temperature plummeted to zero. Khrushchev repeated his determination

JIM M'CAULEY

Lt. Gov. Anderson—a Man With Eye on Bigger Things

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Some past California governors reportedly have been reluctant to leave the state.

They feared that the lieutenant governor, who becomes acting governor when the governor is absent, might fire the governor's appointees and reshuffle the administration. Other possible monkey-wrenches a lieutenant governor could throw at an absent governor: signing into law the wrong bills and wholesale prison pardons.

Under California constitutional law that gives the state's No. 2 man the full power as California's top executive when the governor is away, a mutiny by a lieutenant governor could occur.

But such a remote possibility did not deter Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown from taking a six-week European trip. Brown left California a week before the special session of the legislature concluded.

That placed the state at that key time in the hands of Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson. Anderson, though he has tangled with Brown about national political personalities, has been a loyal aide on state policy matters. Brown obviously felt he could rely on Anderson to carry out his policy on the special session bills.

There probably is less rivalry between Anderson and Brown than existed between the capitol's two top men in any administration in modern California history.

ANDERSON

The last Brown-Anderson clash was at the Democratic National Convention in 1960. Brown tried unsuccessfully to deliver the entire California delegation to John F. Kennedy. But Anderson plumped for Adlai Stevenson and delivered a seconding address for the Illinois governor.

However, Anderson's recent role as the loyal aide brings to mind to some capitol observers that Anderson is credited with being an astute politician.

The capitol woods are full of would-be gubernatorial candidates if Brown decides to vacate the governor's mansion. By becoming the loyal Brown aide, Anderson is likely to be in line for support from Brown admirers when the day comes for the governor to step aside.

TRADITIONALLY, a lieutenant governor is seldom heard and even less seen—though he shares the morbid distinction with the vice president of being a heartbeat away from a major office.

However, the lieutenant governor's office has been an often-used catapult to bigger things in the political whirl. Eight California governors served out an apprenticeship first as lieutenant governor.

And though Anderson isn't in a spot where he attracts the headlines of a Gov. Brown, he still is in a key position for making top-level political friends and wooing future political support.

ANDERSON IS presiding officer of the Senate. Also, he is one of three members on the powerful State Lands Commission, the state agency that is boss over the oil-rich tidelands.

Anderson was a political longshot when he toppled Harold J. (Butch) Powers from the lieutenant governor's office in 1959. Anderson, former mayor of Hawthorne, generally is regarded as a man who has his sights on bigger political offices in the late 1960s.

NAACP Asks More Than Equal Rights

EDITOR:

Our government talks about law and order but it appears it is more for law than order. The leaders of the NAACP have taken things in their own hands and it is time the people of this country wake up to the fact that we are being intimidated by the leaders of the NAACP. They now say they not only want equal rights, but they want more than equal rights. They say they want the best school teachers, the best in housing, the best in everything. All this in the name of Christianity. They demonstrate loudly and disorderly in the streets and pray and claim this a Christian effort.

Yet their leaders are demanding injustice and widening the gap between the races and causing hatred that was never there before. They demand preferential treatment; not equal treatment. They demand better school teachers, better social treatment. Now they have presented their grievance, why don't they leave their problems to the law of the land?

Thanks God for Billy Graham

EDITOR:

I wish to reply to the letter from a person who walked out on the Billy Graham crusade.

I feel very sorry for anyone who can listen to a dedicated man of God like Billy Graham without knowing that he is spending his life trying to save souls from being eternally lost. I believe that our Lord has a job for every Christian whether it be to clothe and feed the body or to save the soul.

As a Christian, I thank the Lord for Billy Graham. Mr. Farrett also states that Billy Graham gets wide coverage from all the newspapers. This is not true. I feel lucky if I can find over six lines on the back page of the Press-Telegram.

Offers Information on European Negro

EDITOR:

I have been a subscriber to your paper for a good number of years and I have seen a lot of articles which I knew were chopped-up truths, but when I read the article on Europe's criticism of the Negroes I thought it was about time somebody straightened you out.

With regard to the Negroes in Britain, every one of them came of their own free will and accord. If they don't like it, nobody or nothing is stopping them from going back to where they came from. In the USA the Negroes were all brought forcibly to this country by your forefathers so that makes you directly responsible for them, which in my opinion, is why Europe has the right to criticize.

Britain, at one time, had a lot of colonies including quite a lot in Africa. Now just for the record would you like to inform your readers just how much it is costing the USA to take care of them since USA prodded Britain out to give these poor, unfortunate people their independence.

1886—John Bixby laid out the townsite for Alamitos, and the then Long Beach eastern boundary at Alamitos Ave. North-south streets were given names in alphabetical order—Alamitos, Bonito, Cerritos, etc., many of which are still in use. Alamitos was later to join Long Beach.

1897—With "wets" fretting over Long Beach's anti-liquor ordinance and some residents angry about taxes, disincorporation of Long Beach was voted. After a few months, and before the year expired, residents decided they'd missed city services long enough and reincorporated.

1902 — The dry-vs.-wet battle broke out in fury and was the subject of a hot election fight. The Prohibition Party won but sale of liquor continued in the city, resulting in the arrest of the proprietors of a place called the "Social Club." They were fined $100 but jail sentences were suspended. Citizens and the press still continued sharp criticism of the presence of "blind pigs" in the little town.

Irvine Bowl 'Figaro' Said Magnificent

By RACHEL MORTON
 Opera in English got a great boost in a magnificent performance of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" presented by the Festival of Opera in the Laguna Irvine Bowl Friday night.

The singers were carefully selected and the diction of each one was excellent, with the result of long and frequent applause from the audience.

From the sparkling overture to the beautifully sung finale by the entire cast, the performance moved with pace, lightheartedness and professional expertise.

THE MARRIAGE OF Figaro, is a comedy and hearing it sung in understandable English, the audience got a great kick out of the laughable situations, points that are entirely lost when the opera is sung in a foreign language.

Maralin Niska was a regal Countess, gorgeously gowned. Her rich soprano voice filled the bowl in voluptuous sound, especially in the difficult aria, "Where are the Happy Moments?" (Dave Sono).

Mami Nixon, who will be heard next Tuesday in our Long Beach Pops Concert, was a splendid Susanna. Pert, pretty and petite, she held the stage. Her floating soprano topped well the ensemble's singing, but the aria "Why So Long Delay?" (De Vieni, non Tardar) was a bit too big for her light voice.

COMBINING great artistry, unusual acting ability and professional proficiency with a wonderful bass voice, John Macurdy was a superb "Figaro." "The Marching Song," "Play No More" (Non Più Andrai) was rousing sung and received warm applause.

A very handsome Count Almaviva, gorgeously attired Alan Gilbert, gave a very fine performance and his warm baritone voice was good to hear.

A singer to watch is Margery Mackay, who sang the role of Cherubino. Her lovely soprano was expertly handled in the well known arias, "Ah What Feelings Possess Me" (Non so Più) and "You Who Know" (Voi che Sapete) and her acting was irresistible.

HIGHEST comedy was displayed by Mary Mackenzie and Charles Gonzales as Marcellina and Bartolo, and their singing was equally experts. Also intriguing was the stuttering Antonio as sung by Jack Vanderlaan, and Marilyn Interlandi made a charming Barbarina.

The sets were very fine and the costumes beautiful. The large orchestra played well under the really inspired direction of Eugene Ober.

Opening Bids on Drains

Bids will be opened Friday for construction of the $500,000 Harbor City storm drain. Four separate drainage lines are to be built. The Board of Supervisors is expected to award the contract about Sept. 10.

One of the lines will run from Bixby Slough west of Figueroa Street to Eudora Avenue, then to Lomita Boulevard, and finally to termination between Van Tress and Frigate Avenues.

A second line connects with a completed drain at 259th Place and runs southwesterly to Western Avenue near 262nd Street.

LINE THREE starts near the intersection of 263rd Street and Bell Porte Avenue and runs to Anaheim Street, then to Frampton Avenue, north about 500 feet, then east to Vermont Avenue.

The final line extends south in Frampton Avenue for about 250 feet from the line to be built under Anaheim Street.

Plans for the drain were prepared under direction of Lyall A. Pardee, Los Angeles city engineer. Construction, operation and maintenance will be supervised by the County Flood Control District.

The project, financed by the $225 million bond issue of 1958, is due for completion next May.

IN MEXICO

Bermuda Shorts Get Wolf Whistle

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dave Taylor, Independent Press-Telegram staffer and his wife Carleta are honeymooning in Mexico—via motor scooter. Here is another of his letters from Mexico.)

By DAVE TAYLOR

GUADALAJARA, Mexico—I can't qualify as the "ugly American" here.

While I may be a natural for the title at home, I suspect that Presidente Adolfo Lopez Mateos, chief executive of the Mexican Republic, would be the first to testify that in his country I'll never pass the physical.

The Presidente and I haven't met, but it appears that my knobby knees peeping out of a pair of threadbare khaki Bermuda shorts leave him absolutely speechless.

If you're motor scooting through Mexico, your wardrobe consists of the lightest clothes you can find that will roll into the smallest possible space in a duffle bag. For wife Carleta, Capri pants seemed like a cinch and for me, Bermuda shorts, of course.

HOW WAS I to know that in Mexico men just do not wear short pants?

We were warned that women here don't wear pants either, but Carleta brought a light shift dress for big city life, and she's been able to get away with scooting through the country in her Capris.

But I believe I have been whistled at over every mile of road along the west coast of Mexico. I say, "believe" because it's gotten to the point where when we hear a whistle, both Carleta and I look back to be sure which one of us is getting the attention. When it comes to beauty, after all, there's no accounting for taste.

OUR FRIEND, David Octavio Martin, a law student at the University of Guadalajara, invited us to the graduation of cadets from the Mexican Air Force Academy at which Presidente Mateos was to officiate and deliver an address.

I was anxious enough to see the Presidente, but a little shy about showing up in my abbreviated pantaloons. David, however, assured me that I looked swaggin'.

We were late and the Presidente was already in the midst of handing out diplomas to the grads as about a dozen cadets roared overhead in a jet air show that might well have the "Blue Angels" turning green.

THE WHOLE SHOW was to culminate with the Presidente's address, but as we approached the bleachers, the attention of 4,000 spectators was suddenly distracted. They were looking at my legs!

The graduates were forgotten. The air show was forgotten. The Presidente was forgotten!

In a single breath the crowd let loose a long, shrill whistle followed by a mighty cheer, and the Presidente looked displeased.

He seemed even more uncomfortable when we took up positions near his own box and the whistling continued, because, being too late to get seats, naturally we had to stand!

The presentation of diplomas got to moving along pretty fast after we arrived and, when the last grad had his sheepskin, Presidente Mateos hopped out of his box, waved to the crowd and made straight for his plane on the field without so much as a "Friends, Mexicans, Countrymen."

DAVID CLAIMS the Presidente didn't make that speech because the crowd was too small. I'll probably never know the truth of the matter, but I will always wonder whether it was the crowd or my pants that was too small.

Dave's comment on the mystery wasn't too reassuring. "Don't worry, Tokoya," he said, "at least you're not the 'ugly American'. You are the pretty legs American."

L.B. Pupils to Receive Route Maps for Safety

More than 45,900 safe route maps will be distributed to Long Beach children on their first day back in school, Clifford Boutin, president of the Long Beach Safety Council said Saturday.

He said the maps will go to children in the Long Beach Unified School District and in many of the parochial schools.

They are part of a "Back to School" safety program sponsored by the Allstate Foundation in cooperation with the school district, Parent-Teachers Association, parochial schools and the police department, Boutin said.

Mrs. Fern Travis, school safety chairman for the Safety Council, said parents and children should learn the safest routes. This is the 11th year the city Engineering Department has prepared the maps.

CORE Pickets Don Wilson Housing Tract in Compton

Congress of Racial Equality pickets Saturday moved from builder Don Wilson's Southwood Riviera Royale housing tract at Torrance to another of his developments — the Centervue subdivision in Compton — where about 30 demonstrators were on hand to demand desegregation.

CORE spokesmen said the picket lines in the Torrance tract were called off in a show of good faith before bargaining sessions begin between the Torrance City Council and CORE concerning recent mass arrests at the project.

More than 200 CORE pickets have been charged formally or still face charges for earlier demonstrations in Torrance.

Most of the complaints allege trespassing while others charge violation of the city's new curfew ordinance.

RIFLE CLUB FOR JUNIORS

The Long Beach Junior Rifle Club will resume shooting on Sept. 21, Jack M. De Alba of the sponsoring police department announced Saturday.

Formed in 1951, the club has seen 6,000 youths from 12 through 19 go through a complete training program.

U.S. Asked to Quit Messing Up Weather

By United Press International

The United States came under attack from European newspaper editors last week over the "chicken war" and messing around with British weather.

Paris MATCH said the pre-war "primitive isolationism" of Americans has been replaced by a "sentiment of irritation, frustration and anger which shows itself in the form of patriotic touchiness."

It named the "chicken war" over Common Market tariffs against U.S. chickens as one of the causes for this "new sentiment."

Writing in the Belgian newspaper DE STAND-AARD, Belgian farmers' union adviser C. Bonn said, "the U.S. threats to recuperate through increased customs duties about twice as much as they will lose in foreign exchange because of the slowdown of chicken exports makes a grotesque impression."

"Moreover their game becomes all too transparent when one goes through the list of products which would be hit by these measures," he said. "Nearly all of them

JFK Pressing for Tax Cut

By HARRY SHARPE

President Kennedy made another strong plea to Congress last week for early enactment of his $10.7 billion tax-cut bill. Next year may be too late, he said.

Once again he tied lower taxes to the national economy, saying he was concerned that the present business recovery cannot be prolonged through 1964 without such a pump-priming stimulus.

ANTI-SPENDING Republicans and conservative Democrats are demanding the bill be sidetracked until next year, an election year. But the President said this was no time to gamble with national welfare. He described the economy as "slightly better" than in January but warned of soft spots that bode ill for 1964.

In furtherance of his campaign, he wrote to chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, declaring "the budget could be cut despite the proposed tax reduction. He pledged also that spending would be curtailed wherever possible.

In related developments, Congress sent the President a bill extending the $309 billion temporary national debt ceiling to Nov. 30 to give the administration time to study the overall fiscal situation. Secretary of the Treasury C. Douglas Dillon warned Congress that there was "a compelling need" for swift action on Kennedy's bill to tax sales of foreign securities in U. S. markets to help stem the critical drain of gold abroad.

THE PRESIDENT also made an urgent plea for his revised $4.1 billion foreign aid authorization bill, but it fell on deaf ears in the House where members resent the continued outpouring of taxpayer dollars. The House passed the bill after lopping off $585 million and writing in unwanted curbs.

The chief executive called the action "short-sighted, irresponsible and dangerously partisan." He added that for the first time the program had been subjected to "a shocking and thoughtless attack" by Republicans.

Kennedy must now rely on the Senate to salvage the program. He challenged critics to show the country it could buy more world-wide defense for less money. He also stressed that 80 percent of the money would go to U. S. industry, not overseas.

THE PRESIDENT clashed headon with Dr. Edward Teller, so-called father of the H-bomb, in defense of his nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia and Britain.

Teller asserted to three Senate committees in pre-ratification hearings that the pact has dangerous loopholes, especially regarding missile defense, and that Kennedy had halted vital atmospheric tests pre-

Drop Obscenity Charge in Sale of Miller Book

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Obscenity charges against employees of a Syracuse book store have been dropped because of the difficulty in proving they realized the novel "Tropic Of Cancer" was obscene.

City court dismissed the charges of selling obscene literature on the recommendation of Assistant Dist. Atty. J. Richard Sardino. The State Court of Appeals had ordered the three, fined $150 each last year on the charges, retired on the question of their knowledge of the book's contents.

At the same time, the Appeals Court declared the Henry Miller novel to be obscene.

MARTIAL LAW DOESN'T STOP window shopping as a couple of youngsters peer into a store in Saigon, Viet Nam, despite the armed Vietnamese soldier standing guard nearby. The country last week was placed under martial law because of violent battles between government forces and Buddhists.

maturely for political reasons.

The chief executive took sharp issue with this and reiterated that this country already has the necessary atomic power to obliterate Russia. And once again he said the United States would not relax its guard—that its laboratories and weapons would always be ready to protect national security should Moscow break the treaty. He added bluntly that Teller's charge "is not valid."

Kennedy said he had no plans for a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan when the three major powers jointly register the treaty with the United Nations. He did say he might address the General Assembly.

MOSCOW castigated Red China for not joining more than 75 other nations, including Nationalist China, in signing the pact. It also warned the Peking regime to abandon its plans for mass production of nuclear arms. This was regarded as a strong hint that Khrushchev might cease military cooperation with Peking which had charged him with "selling out" to the United States in the test-ban negotiations.

Khrushchev widened the ideological split further by visiting Yugoslav President Tito whom Peking has branded the number one traitor to world communism.

ON THE turbulent racial rights front, the President declared it would be a mistake to assign job quotas to Negroes or any other group of citizens on the basis of race, religion or nationality. "We are too mixed in this society of ours to begin to divide ourselves on the basis of race or color," he told newsmen.

AT BIRMINGHAM, Ala., police fired guns into the air to end an angry demonstration by 2,000 screaming Negroes who were angered by the bombing of an integration leader's home.

In Oakland, Calif., Negro leader Donald Warden, 27, chairman of the Afro-American Association, warned Negroes they will not get far in the battle for equal rights until they acquire racial pride. "Throw away your bleaching creams and your hair-straightener, quit dropping out of school, quit flunking out—and get off welfare," he told them. "If you won't accept the challenge then admit you are inferior."

In other news spheres, Kennedy said U.S. intelligence officials estimate that there has been a drop in the number of Soviet troops in Cuba in the past two months. He did not give any figures but said the primary emphasis of personnel still there is on

"training" rather than concentrated military units. But he said even their presence was cause for concern.

The Senate Commerce Committee approved a bill providing for arbitration of the crisis-ridden railroad work rules dispute by an independent seven-man board.

THE BILL and a companion House measure may be rushed to passage early next week to head off a nationwide strike set for 12:01 a.m. Thursday. The board would hand down its findings within 90 days, but no arbitration edicts would be issued until all disputed issues are resolved through arbitration or negotiation.

Kennedy disclosed that babies in Utah had been exposed to radioactive fallout from nuclear tests, but that the extent of the hazard must be studied. He doubted, however, the health of any had been impaired.

Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee named Herbert S. Walters, 71, a conservative Democrat, to fill the Senate vacancy caused by the death of Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Walters will serve until next year's election. Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., fell heir to Kefauver's chairmanship of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee which under Kefauver had given big business a bad time.

At Edwards AFB, Calif., X15 space plane pilot Joe Walker, 42, set a new altitude record of 66 miles.

The President chatted by radio telephone through 44,000 miles of space with Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria via the Symcon II space satellite. It took only three-tenths of a second for their voices to cover the

3RD STRAIGHT LOSS, 2-1

Braves Defeat Dodgers

By GEORGE LEDERER
The Dodgers might be wise today to adopt a slogan, "end the waste or tighten the wa st."
Saturday was another evening of wasted opportunities and performances by the league leaders, who dropped a 2-1 decision to Milwaukee.
The loss was the Dodgers' third in a row and enabled the Giants to move into a tie with St. Louis for second place, 5½ games back.

Down the drain went 5½ shutout relief innings by Bob Miller and three outstanding defensive plays by second baseman Jim Gilliam.
The Dodgers failed to score with two on, none out and the count 3-and-0 on Maury Wills in the seventh inning and muffed their final chance when Ron Fairly tapped into a game-ending double play on a first pitch by reliever Bob Shaw.

The Dodgers have scored only six times in their last 47 innings while leaving 35 runners on the bases.
Denny Lemaster (10-8) was the winner and the seventh lefthander to conquer the Dodgers in their last eight outings against southpaw pitching. It was Shaw, however, who turned back the Dodger threat in the seventh.

Doug Camilli opened the seventh by reaching base on a strikeout and Lemaster's wild pitch. Both runners were safe when first baseman Gene Oliver made a wild throw to second on Miller's sacrifice attempt and Lemaster left after running the count to 3-and-0 on Wills.

Shaw succeeded in retiring the side without damage as Wills fouled off two bunt attempts, then bounced into a double play and Gilliam fled out.
While this situation was serious for the Dodgers, there was some comedy relief for the ladies night audience of 41,918, including 36,479 paid.

Catcher Joe Torre and Braves first base coach Dixie Walker were ejected by plate umpire Stan Landes during a rhabarb in which Shaw and Torre claimed Landes made a strike-3 call on Gilliam.
Manager Bobby Bragan replaced Walker in the coaching box and, in turn, drew a warning from Landes when the Braves' bench kept up its heckling in the eighth. Bragan silenced his bench and drew laughs from the crowd with a "shhh" sign.
Dodger bats were silenced earlier by Lemaster, who allowed but five hits. Each came after two were out.
Miller helped himself with a single in the fifth inning and scored on Wills' double to left-center. Only one more Dodger reached third base.

Finals Today in Water Ski Spectacular
More Division Titles for Grabs
By JIM McCORMACK
The National Water Ski Championships wind up today, but it will take some doing to better Saturday's show.
Over 2,500 delighted spectators, sitting in the Marine Stadium bleachers, found out what it takes to be a member of the U.S. world team.
One team member captured her division crown and two others just about sewed up theirs in the most impressive day yet.
Dickie Ann Hoyt, a winsome 16-year-old from Fair Haven, N. J., carded a two jump series of 94-95 feet to capture the girls overall championship.
CHUCK STEARNS of Long Beach State and Bill Spencer of Sarasota, Fla., flashed impressive form to almost put the lock on their class titles.
Dickie stood third in overall standings when she began jumping, but her two efforts propelled her past Jeannette Brown of Cypress Gardens and Nancy Schnering of Sarasota into the top spot.
The 95 foot leap tied a pending world mark set by Miss Brown, also a member of the world team. Dickie's 95er was five feet better than she had ever done.
Stearns successfully defended his slalom crown, and then was one of only three overall contenders to make it through the trick event without falling. Stearns, Larry Pencho of San Diego and Mike Ambrosy of Orange were the only title challengers to travel both 20-second legs without a spill.
Results of the tricks were not released Saturday, but Stearns stood head-and-shoulders above the field with only the jump to go today. Pencho, the world's best jumper, was the only serious threat to Stearns title defense.
SPENCER jumped 107 feet to capture the boy's jump. Spencer, who at 14 is the number one man on the U.S. world team, also won the boy's slalom, and has only his best event, the tricks, standing between him and his boy's crown.

Baker Goes All the Way, Rams Beat Dallas, 20-17

By JERRY WYNN
I, P-T Staff Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. — A day of drenching rain in Terry's town turned into a night of sunshine for the Rams.
Hometown hero Terry Baker sparked the Rams to a 20-17 victory over the Dallas Cowboys before a pro football record crowd of 29,349 at Multnomah Stadium Saturday night.
It was the first win for the Rams in three pre-season games and the first for coach Harland Sware since assuming command of the club late last season. To add to the impact, Sware's parents watched the exciting contest as did Baker's mother.
Baker, the Heisman trophy winner from Oregon State, played all the way at quarterback, and passed his first major test as a pro splendidly. An adroit signal-caller, he completed 12 of 20 passes for 192 yards and his first touchdown pass as a Ram was the game winner. It was a 44-

yard strike to Pervis Atkins in the final quarter.
The Rams had trailed 17-10 at halftime as Dallas' Don Meredith had picked apart the Ram defense with consummate ease. But it was a different story in the second half and the fired-up Rams limited the Cowboys to a net gain of 30 yards.
Rookie fullback Ben Wilson was another Ram hero. Playing in the same backfield as Jon Arnett, the Trojan twins gave the Rams ball control through most of the second half.

"Baker played a marvelous game, and called 99 percent of his own plays," said Sware, who was given the game ball in the dressing room.
How the game unfolded:
FIRST QUARTER
Cowboys 7, Rams, 0: Dallas drove 80 yards in nine plays to score the first time it had possession of the ball. So masterfully did quarterback Don Meredith mix his plays and so perfect was their execution, that the Cowboys never were faced with a third down.

There were passes from Meredith to Frank Clarke for 17 and Pettis Norman for 11 and runs by Amos Bullocks for 10 and Amos Marsh for 10. The touchdown came on a five-yard pass from Meredith to Bullocks after Meredith had pulled two nifty fake hand-offs. Sam Baker kicked the extra point.

Cowboys 7, Rams 3: Dick Bass broke loose on a 45-yard run to give the Rams a first down on the Dallas 26. On third-and-eight, Terry Baker hit Bass for 12 on a flare pass and a first down on the 12. Bass ran for 2 and Art Perkins for 4, but on third down, Baker was spooled in the muddy infield for a 15-yard loss while attempting to pass.
Danny Villaneuva kicked a 28-yard field goal.
The Rams had another opportunity to score in the final seconds of the quarter when Al Hall recovered a fumble by Bullocks on the Cowboy 28. A 15-yard holding penalty against Frank Varrichione set the Rams back, and a long touchdown pass from Baker to Jim Phillips barely missed its mark.
SECOND QUARTER
Cowboys 10, Rams 3: A 52-yard pass from Meredith to Norman, in which the receiver outran defender Bobby Smith in a chase down the sideline, gave

Peterson Nine Begins Bid Today for Nat'l Jr. Title
KEENE, N. Hamp. (Special to I, P-T)—Terry Roe, a right-handed curveball specialist who has lost only once all year, will start today when Long Beach Peterson Post opens its bid for the National American Legion junior baseball title.
Coach Gale Taylor said he would follow the same pitching rotation of Roe, Bob Wiswell and Jerry Flynn which proved so effective in getting Peterson to the nationals. Flynn still has a sore arm, however.
Somerville, Mass., the region 1 champion, provides Long Beach with its first opposition today at 11 a.m. (PDT). Radio station KFOX will broadcast at three-inning intervals, with the first airing between 11 and 11:30.
LONG BEACH, win or lose Sunday, will not play on Monday. It will play every day after Monday, or however long it remains in the double-elimination tourney.
The other six teams entered are Omaha, Roseburg (Ore.), Greensboro (N.C.), Memphis, Evansville (Ind.) and Washington, D.C.

Hurrying Pennel Crashes 17-Foot Barrier

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI)—John Pennel, hurrying to beat a thunderstorm, cracked the 17-foot pole vault barrier Saturday with a world record leap of 17 feet, ¾ of an inch.
"I've been looking forward to this. I felt relaxed and now I feel great," the former Coral Gables high school track man said after his feat in the Gold Coast AAU track and field meet at the University of Miami.
He broke his own world record of 16 feet, 10 and ¼ inches, set in London Aug. 5. Pennel helped lead the U.S. track team to victories over Russia, Poland and Great Britain in this summer's European tour.

An unknown before he began breaking world records as a vaulter for Northeastern Louisiana State, where he is a senior, Pennel soared easily over the bar at 15 feet and then 16 feet in working up to the record try.
His mother and father and dozens of hometown friends were watching him.
He cleared the bar the first time at 17 feet

¾ of an inch, hustling to make his try when he saw a thunderhead bearing down on the field and heard thunder rumbling.
"Let's get it over with before it rains," Pennel told officials. As it turned out, the storm passed over.
After authorities measured the bar and accepted the vault for formal submission as a world record, the 23-year-old Memphis, Tenn., native tried three times unsuccessfully to clear the bar at 17 feet, four inches.

"He had just cooled off while they were measuring the record," said University of Miami coach Robert Downes, a longtime friend and tutor of Pennel. "But I predict he's good for 17 feet, six inches."
Pennel used a fiber glass pole for his vault.
In Seattle, former record holder Brian Sternberg exclaimed "great" when informed of Pennel's feat. "I knew he would do it."
Sternberg had held the record of 16-8 and had been Pennel's chief rival until an accident July 2 left him paralyzed.

Luck of the Draw

CHICAGO — A night's stop here—en route to DuQuoin and the $130,000 Hambletonian, harness racing's version of the Kentucky Derby—proves one thing: A person can be luckier 2,000 miles away from home than in his own backyard.

An unofficial "line" was established here on the Hambletonian, which really doesn't have waning because of an outmoded Illinois law regarding racing ventures held in conjunction with state fairs, and the 4-5 favorite turned out to be a nifty trick named Speedy Scot (tagged after Long Beach's Johnny Hadden).

The luck of the newspaperman's draw (winner of which will receive a case of ice cold pop—and in this territory that's worth more than money) fell to this correspondent. Whether or not Speedy Scot will triumph Wednesday, only the good Lord and the DuQuoin natives (who, fortunately, never have heard of the Racing Form) can predict.

Howsoever, I'll bask in my glory 'til Wednesday. The only other odds-on favorite I ever drew was a glorious creature called Citation. Big Cy must have heard of my reputation. The day I drew his name in the backshop pool he folded like a pup tent before a lightweight visitor from Ireland named Noor.

Yet, for the benefit of hometown sportsmen—Wayne Bryson, George Hastings, Richard Broderick, Miles Sines, Bob Hines, Jimmy Judson, Willie Walsh, Abe Azar, Jack Besse, Oscar Contratto Sr. and Jr., Canadian Copeland, Eddie Cardenas, Steve Kral, T. W. Shaw, et al—let it be said we'll give it a big try. If any of the curbstome bookmakers on Pine Ave. still have doubts, let it be noted that "our" horse recently bagged the $135,127 Yonkers Futurity, then immediately thereafter was tagged the "Kentucky Cannonball."

In itself, that's a fat compliment. Especially since the horse was bred in Illinois and his closest relationship to the Blue Grass State came when a groom in the next stable viewed the Kentucky Derby on television.

THE HAMBLETONIAN, truly, is a race one has to "sweat out." After a racing day in Illinois, one considers the recent Long Beach humidity as delightful as a vacation at the Arctic Circle.

A fellow traveler, Jim Murray, once said the only reason a person stays in Illinois is because he doesn't have bus fare to Missouri.

Be that as it may, watch out for that little trotter, Speedy Scot, on Wednesday. A local paper completely KO'd the odds the other day when it ran this brief item on Scotty:

"After Speedy Scot's smashing victory (in 1:59 2/5) at Vernon Downs, it would appear that his opposition has about as much chance as Caroline Kennedy vs. Sonny Liston when the Hambletonian is decided."

That's an odious comparison. Caroline hasn't yet been in harness.

AN AMUSING THING to Californians is the attitude of Chicago writers towards the baseball Cubs. The usually forlorn Cubbies gave a 500 per cent better run for the N.L. pennant this campaign than their fondest scribes ever dreamed during those dusty spring training days in Arizona.

I recall vividly last March in Mesa when the horde of Chicago writers ridiculed round-the-clock the Cubs' gesture of hiring an "athletic director" to supervise the club's activities. The word "farce" was the kindest term applied to Phil Wrigley's radical movement.

The Chicago scribblers weren't alone—for whoever heard of baseball fostering an athletic director?—but they were the most vicious. To his credit, the athletic director (an Air Force man) retained his dignity, went about his rounds and strung his beads in the process.

Suddenly—as quick as a missile off a launching pad—the Cubs lurched into the first division and made like the Yankees. They startled the baseball world by challenging for first place as late as July 4th. What these Windy City reporters wrote during those days I can't recollect. It had to be glowing because the Cubs during the first half of the National League season were a bigger upset than Mr. Meredith getting his degree from U. of Mississippi.

WHAT THEY'RE WRITING NOW—when the Cubs are sinking to the level everyone designated for them in March—is something else.

One fellow here urged the New York Mets to secure an athletic director next spring with the admonition "fire him on Firecracker Day, because that's when all the skyrockets come down."

Another wrote that the Cubs' principal problem today was their athletic director, "acting" manager and "eight little coaching stooges."

Yet another claimed if Wrigley fired all his "excess baggage"—meaning the athletic director and unlimited supply of managerial brains—we'd have a ball club in Chicago.

Time wounds all heels. Not a few of us hope Time catches up with our fickle Chicago writing brethren real soon.

Cincy Hurler Fined, Giants Win in 12th

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Manager Freddie Hutchinson of the Cincinnati Reds said he would appeal the fine that will be levied on pitcher John Tsitouris for hitting three batters in the game with San Francisco Saturday.

Tsitouris was warned by plate umpire Bill Jackowski after he hit two consecutive batters in the 12th inning of the game won by San Francisco, 4-3. Tsitouris had hit another batter in the game.

"It was obvious that Tsitouris was not aiming at the batters," said the unhappy Hutchinson. "If Jackowski hasn't better judgment than that he'd better hang 'em up."

A warning to the pitcher by the umpire is supposed to draw an automatic $50 fine.

Chuck Hiller lined a bases-loaded single into right field to score Felipe Alou from third base and give the Giants the victory.

The loss went to Tsitouris who pitched 11 and one-third innings of fine ball before he became wild in the bottom of the 12th.

After striking out Ed Bailey, Tsitouris hit Alou and Jose Pagan and walked pinch-hitter Norm Larker.

Al Worthington was called in and fanned Harvey Kuenn. But Hiller came through with the clutch blow to give the Giants their third consecutive victory.

Mickey Mantle's Greatest Day

We were sitting with the veteran New York baseball writer, Tommy Holmes, at the final game of the Yankee-Angel series week before last at Dodger Stadium when Mickey Mantle was called on to pinch-hit. As Mickey slowly walked to the plate, Tommy said, "You know, despite optimistic statements by the team doctor, there are valid fears that Mickey will never play regularly again."

"An operation definitely is needed on his knee this fall. And some believe it will be at least mid-season before he returns to the team — if then. It would be no surprise if Mickey never played again after this season."

Just then, Mickey drew a walk. "Even though he can barely walk, let alone run, they're still afraid to pinch-hit him. There's a man who should be in the Hall of Fame right now. He's one of the real all-time greats."

Holmes and the other New York scribes agree that even if Mickey plays for several more seasons, he still reached the pinnacle of his career the week before—Sunday, Aug. 4, in Yankee Stadium.

Mickey had been out of the Yankee lineup for 61 games spanning two months. Suddenly, in the eighth inning of the second game of a twin bill with Detroit, Mickey came out of the dugout, picked up a bat and walked to the plate.

To a man, the crowd of more than 40,000 rose and gave the Mick one of the greatest ovations in sports history. Bob Sheppard, the veteran public address announcer, said that the tribute was the loudest and longest he had ever heard for an active player.

MANTLE'S APPEARANCE caught everyone by surprise, especially the New York press. Just two days earlier, Mickey had revealed there was no telling when he'd be back. He was not so much concerned with the left foot he had broken two months before in Baltimore when he hit the fence trying to field a ball. It was a floating cartilage in his left knee that was troubling him.

But in between games of the twin bill, Mickey told manager Ralph Houk he thought he was ready to pinch-hit. Houk said he would let him, but only with the stipulation that under no circumstances would he run hard. "I couldn't even run at half-speed if I wanted to," Mickey later revealed.

Til Ferdenzi, another top New York writer, said that "the fans stood and cheered every step Mickey took to the plate." In fact, it was a full two minutes before things quieted down enough for George Brunet to pitch.

BUT TO KEEP the crowd yelling even longer, Mantle did just what everybody hoped he would do. After watching the first pitch go by for a strike, he swung at the next one and slammed it into the stands for one of the most dramatic home runs in baseball history.

It tied the score, 10-10... and Yogi Berra won it for the Yanks in the 10th when he hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded.

"There were tears in Mickey's eyes and his face was dead white as he crossed the plate," Holmes was saying. "I've never seen a ballplayer so visibly moved by such a demonstration from the stands, especially one who is used to accomplishing great feats on the field."

"I'm sure that as the years go by, Mickey will look back to that moment as his greatest in baseball."

ASKED ABOUT IT, Mickey revealed "it certainly was the biggest hand I've ever got. You know, I'm used to boos... not cheers," he grinned.

Why have New York fans booed Mickey so vigorously down through the years?

"Well, New York fans are funny to begin with. But it all started during the Korean War when Mickey was called several times before the draft board... and each time was classified 4-F."

"Well, people with relatives fighting in Korea would come to the park and see a big strapping fellow like Mickey belting home runs and making spectacular catches while their fathers, sons and brothers were in the service. They resented this and began booing him."

"EVEN AFTER THIS was forgotten, it had become sort of a custom and it just continued... that is, up until last season when Roger Maris took the heat off Mickey."

"It wasn't Mickey's fault. He was ready to serve. But the osteomyelitis he had as a kid automatically disqualified him physically."

After he had been called before the draft board for the umpteenth time, a special directive was sent from Washington instructing the board to quit harassing him... that he couldn't meet the physical standards of the armed forces even though he could play baseball."

Holmes said that the booing Mickey once attracted was switched to Maris last year.

"Roger's 'unfortunate personality' made them forget about booing Mantle. The ungracious way Maris accepted fame and glory after hitting 61 home runs in 1961 has made him the No. 1 target the past two seasons. Mickey is now the fans fair-haired boy."

Arnie Slices Pott's Lead to 1 Stroke

Makes Comeback With Sizzling 66

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Johnny Pott withstood one of Arnold Palmer's late putting charges to keep the lead by one stroke in the American Golf Classic Saturday.

The 27-year-old Missouri-born Pott shot a 36-35—71, one over par, which enabled him with his total of 206 to hold a one-stroke lead over Palmer, who had six sensational birdie putts that put him back in contention after starting off the third round six strokes behind Pott.

But Pott kept the lead when the chips were down. When Palmer sank a 30-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th, Pott was only on the 15th green and knew he had to "par in" to hold his lead. He did just that.

PALMER carded a stunning 34-32—66 over the 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course and called it "one of my better rounds of golf, especially my putting."

Palmer, the defending champion, sank three birdie putts of 10 feet on the first nine and three birdie putts of 15, 20, and 30 feet on the back nine as he charged back from what he called "two mediocre rounds."

He had carded a 70 and 71 in those two rounds.

Pott, who complained, "I didn't sink any long ones today as I did yesterday"—on Friday he sank birdie putts of 60 and 55 feet—was happy he stayed in the lead for it gave him another $1,000 in bonus money which brought him to a total of $2,333.33 for three days play.

TWO STROKES off the pace was 27-year-old Bobby Nichols, who shot an even par 70 for a total of 208.

Then came U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, also with a par 70 including birdies on the last two holes, for a total of 210, even par for the Firestone course.

TOP MEXICAN MATADORES TO PERFORM

TIJUANA, Mex. — Three of the most active Mexican matadores this year, Jose Olivar, Antonio de la Oliva and Jaime Bravo, make up today's card at the old downtown plaza of El Toreo de Tijuana.

In his only performance locally Aug. 4, Olivar used his vast knowledge of the trade to cope with his two mansos from La Punta and still hear ovations.

Seal Beach—125 passengers on 5 boats caught 83 barracuda, 130 bonito, 47 bass, 2 white sea bass, 28 sculpin, 44 halibut, 411 anthers on barge sacked 322 barracuda, 243 bonito, 29 bass, 2 white sea bass, 4 sculpin, 122 halibut, 1,172 mackerel.

Pacific Landing—248 passengers on 3 boats caught 245 barracuda, 1 white sea bass, 422 barracuda, 11 halibut, 14 sea bass, 65 bonito.

Bonnet Pier—113 anglers on 3 boats caught 347 barracuda, 337 bonito, 70 halibut, 130 passengers on barge caught 407 bonito, 277 barracuda, 37 halibut, 42 bass.

Pierpoint Landing—249 passengers on 3 boats caught 345 barracuda, 341 long fins, 304 anthers on 2 boats caught 192 barracuda, 254 bonito, 1,442 bass, 4 black sea bass, 15 yellowtail, 2 halibut.

Hambletonian Wednesday

DU QUOIN, Ill. (Special) — Wednesday's Hambletonian harness racing classic will draw a field of about a dozen 3-year-olds headed by Speedy Scot, a powerful and playful colt, and Cheer Honey, a big tomboy of a filly.

Makeup of the field will come today in final posting of entries, followed by a blind draw for post positions. The number going in the premier event of harness racing may be as few as 10 or as many as 16.

If 16 tier up on the record-inducing clay mile oval at the betless Du Quoin State Fairgrounds — where the race has been held since shifting from Goshen, N. Y., in 1957—the 38th Hambletonian would gross $120,435 with $59,013 to the winner. It would be the fourth richest total purse for the fixture.

Seldom has there been such an overwhelming favorite as Speedy Scot of Castleton Farm, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Van Lennep of Lexington, Ky.

The top 2-year-old of 1962, with 14 victories in 19 starts, has won 5 of 6 this year. They include the $135,127 Yonkers Futurity Aug. 15, first leg of trotting's triple crown. Unofficial odds made him a 4-5 choice.

The Hambletonian and the $55,000 Kentucky Futurity at Lexington Oct. 4 are the other jewels in the crown.

Only one horse, Scott Frost, and one driver, Joe O'Brien, ever won the triple crown. That was in 1955.

Speedy Scot, son of Speedster, a third-place divisional finisher in the 1957 Hambletonian, will be piloted by Ralph Baldwin.

The big colt, richest ever to enter Hambletonian competition with more than $180,000 in earnings, has the fastest mile heat this season of all rivals — a 1:59½ over the three-quarter mile track at Vernon Downs, N. Y., July 18.

SPEEDY SCOT, who will be making his first start on a mile oval this year, suffered his only 1963 defeat July 29 in the U. S. Harness Writers' Trot at Roosevelt Raceway, N. Y. He went off stride, threw a shoe, and finished last as 3-5 favorite.

The winner of that one was Cheer Honey, whose lifetime earnings are over $100,000. The daughter of Florican, owned by the Donner Stable of Milwaukee, is listed on the unofficial future book line as a 3-1 second choice.

She has won five of eight this year and her 2:01½ at Vernon Downs July 16 stood as the fastest until Speedy Scot's sizzling mile. Frank Ervin, who won the 1959 Hambletonian with Diller Hanover, is her driver.

Only other eligible to crack a winning two-minute mile this season is Glidden Hanover. Owned by K. D. Twen and R. D. Ricketts of Houston, Tex., and driven by Eddie Wheeler, Glidden beat Cheer Honey in the Review Futurity on the mile oval at Springfield, Ill., last week with 1:59½.

Other likely starters Wednesday are B. F. Coal-town, Captain's Boy, Careless Hanover, Elmer, Filter, Florin, Fred Wilker, Lucy's Victory, Star Act, and Valid Hanover.

WHAT THE HECK DO WE CARE?

Two Little League players don't worry whether game gets under way in Williamsport, Pa. Rain delayed play in consolation bracket of LL World Series so these youths frolicked barefoot around home plate. Granada Hills, Calif., won title, 2-1.

California Nine LL Titlist Again

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI)—Jim Wailer singled home Fred Seidly from second base in an overtime seventh inning Saturday to give Granada Hills, Calif., a 2-1 victory over Stratford, Conn., for the Little League World Series championship.

The victory marked the third year in a row that a California team won the series. San Jose did it last year and El Cajon in 1961.

Walker's winning single climaxed a fine pitching effort by southpaw Dave Sehnem, who racked up his second series triumph by limiting Stratford to two hits. The only run off him came in the fifth and it was unearned.

CATCHER Ken Kinsman, who had homered in the fourth for Granada Hills' previous run, opened the seventh with a single. Seidly, a grounder to pitcher John Slosar, who tossed to shortstop Harold Smith for a force. Smith, attempting to complete a double play, threw wildly past first and Seidly advanced to second.

Salt Flat Trials Had 32 Records

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI)—The 15th annual Bonneville national speed trials ended here Saturday afternoon with six new records set as grease monkeys, drivers, car owners and spectators packed up their gear and returned home.

The auto and motorcycle jockeys called it quits for another year after a hard and hot day on the salt. A total of 32 new records in the 74 classes available were set during the trials.

IN THE fastest time clocked Saturday, Nolan White of San Diego, Calif., hot-rodded his class C sports racer to a speed of 210.47 miles per hour — knocking the old record of 188.162 off the books. New records:

Nolan White, San Diego, Calif., C sports racer, 210.47 mph, old record 188.162 mph.
Noel Black, Sacramento, Calif., a gas roadster, 191.541, old record 182.360.
The 25th Bonneville National Speed Trials, 1961, Aug. 20-22, and 1962, Aug. 23-25, will be held on the salt. The 1962 trials will be held on the salt. The 1962 trials will be held on the salt.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Biggest Marlin Season in Years

This year has all the appearance of a record-breaking marlin season for all of Southern California, but particularly for that section of the Pacific ranging southward from Dana Point to the Coronado Islands.

A late check Friday with the Marlin Club of San Diego showed that 149 billfish had been weighed in there since the start of the run more than a month ago. The 200-fathom bank was one of the favorite places, and has been for several days. Also, the 43-fathom bank where the albacore were so prevalent for more than a week has been terrific for marlin.

Most of the billfish are being caught by private charters and by yachtsmen who specialize in that type of fishing. However, some fish have been caught from live-bait sportfishing boats and by owners of small outboard cruisers.

The largest fish weighed at San Diego was 270 1/2 pounds, caught by Homer T. Main, San Diego, on medium tackle Aug. 15. The Marlin Club weighed 11 fish Wednesday and eight on Thursday.

The Balboa Angling Club had weighed 107 fish through Wednesday, with most of the fish coming from waters off Dana Point, Laguna Beach, Oceanside and Catalina Island.

The Long Beach weighing station in the Marina has counted six fish. Lee Rainwater, Lakewood, got one weighing 144 pounds, and Jerry Chrisman, Long Beach, took another that weighed just four ounces more than Rainwater's fish.

THE TUNA CLUB OF AVALON had weighed in a total of 20 marlin through Thursday, with Milt Shedd getting the largest—264 1/2 pounds—on heavy tackle. The heavy run of fish around Catalina seems to be just starting.

In all of 1962 only 12 fish were weighed in at the Tuna Club. This year's present figure remains a long way behind some of the Tuna Club's record years. Here are some of those figures: 1959—356 fish; 1960—160; 1961—33.

The Tuna Club's greatest year of all time was 1940 when 401 fish were weighed at the famous Avalon clubhouse. It is interesting to note that a 60-year total of the Tuna Club—1903 to 1963—shows 6,459 marlin and 146 broadbill.

Long Beach anglers who have been trolling between Dana Point and San Diego, sometimes as close as five miles to shore, report that the water seems to be filled with billfish. They even compare the sights of feeders, jumpers and tailers to those off the tip of Baja California.

On my trip aboard the Pacific Queen a week ago I saw two marlin fins. One angler tried baiting a fish with a bonito but never saw any action.

I'M ALMOST AFRAID TO MENTION albacore; they are so darned unpredictable. In an earlier column last week I said that the boats were taking from 100 to more than 200 fish each per day. The day that column appeared the longfins almost disappeared. Some boats even drew dry runs.

However, on Friday, Pierpoint Landing's Freedom reported 105 fish at midmorning. The boat was only eight miles off the east end of San Clemente Island. A sister-ship, the America, was fishing farther south and east, along with many boats of the San Diego fleet, and getting fewer fish.

Even with the albacore playing hide-and-seek, the large boats are filling with capacity passenger loads almost every day. The anglers seem to sense that time may be running out and they want all the fish they can get.

In answer to a request that I clarify my position on sportfishermen selling albacore, I hardly think that's necessary, inasmuch as I have always opposed such a practice. The suggestion was made in Andy Anderson's column, FISHIN' ALONG THE COAST, which appears every Tuesday.

I have a high regard for Andy, but on that particular subject we disagree. I believe in strict fish limits and feel that sportfishermen should never have the right to sell their catches.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Colorado fish and game officials inform us that the western Colorado season for deer hunting begins Oct. 19 for a two-week run and Oct. 26 in the eastern part of the state. In addition, there are special hunts ranging from mid-August to late December. If you wish full information, write Colorado Game and Fish Department, 6060 Broadway, Denver 16, Colo.

Hermosa Beach is going to match the Wildlife Conservation Board's $300,000 and start construction of a $600,000 public fishing pier. Three cheers for that city, and let's hope that Long Beach gets a start soon on its new Belmont Pier.

Calexico is going all-out to get its share of the dove-hunting crowd Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. That city is calling it a Dove Hunters' Fiesta and even Mexicali across the border is joining in the fun with a live pigeon shoot on Aug. 31.

There also will be trapshooting on the day before dove season opens, a dove hunters' dance, a dove hunters' breakfast, plus giving away an automobile.

Dove shooting should be terrific throughout the entire Imperial and Coachella Valleys. The population is estimated at a much higher figure than in 1962 and even that figure set an all-time record. Large numbers of Long Beach hunters will be taking part in Sept. 1 opener.

Quast Beats 16-Year-Old for Third Amateur Crown

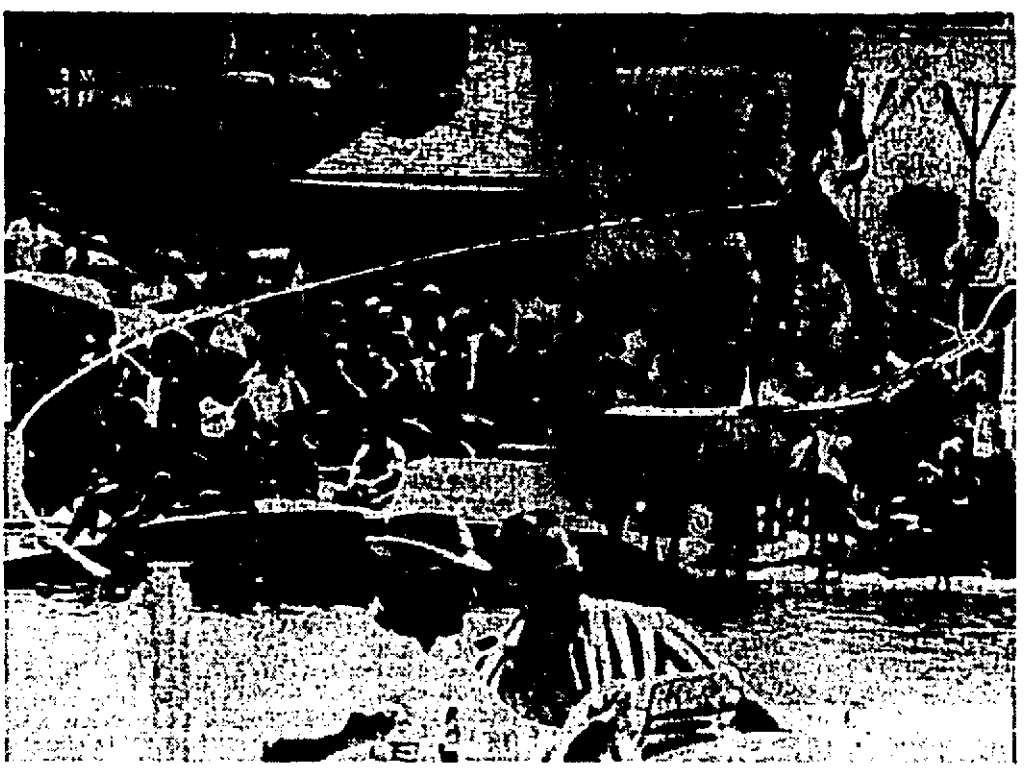

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass.—Steady-playing Anne Quast, Welles, a Mt. Vernon, Wash. schoolteacher, won her third Women's National Amateur golf title Saturday, beating spunky little Peggy Conley of Spokane, Wash., 2 and 1.

Mrs. Wells won the first hole of the 36-hole match from her 16-year-old opponent on Taconic Golf Club's 6,195-yard layout, then had to battle through 26 more holes before taking the lead again—this time for keeps.

Turnabout--Yanks Picked in U.S. Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—The No. 1 world's ranking in amateur tennis will be the prize in the national championships starting here Wednesday, and for the first time in a decade a couple of Yanks—not the Aussies—are favored to grab it.

Chuck McKinley, the Wimbledon champion, and Dennis Ralston, the hottest commodity on the courts at the moment, are expected to sweep through their respective halves of the draw and set up the first all-American men's final since 1953. Tony Trabert was the last U.S. winner in 1955.

McKINLEY, the butterfly ball bomber from San Antonio, Texas, and Ralston, the rangy stylist from Bakersfield, Calif., have comparatively easy roads to the semifinals while dangers lurk for their chief rivals, Roy Emerson of Australia and Rafael Osuna of Mexico.

McKinley is seeded No. 1, followed in order by Emerson, the 1961 winner; Ralston and Osuna. By an ironic twist, the pendulum in women's tennis has swung from the United States to Australia just as the men's division has taken the reverse turn. There appears no stopping Margaret Smith, the tall, muscular star from Sydney, seeded No. 1.

A total of 224 of the world's best players, including more than 100 champions from overseas, begin qualifying eliminations on Wednesday at the West Side Tennis Club prior to official opening of the tournament proper Friday.

Miss Smith drew an opening bye, but other top-seeded women players have first round matches. Darlene Hard of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2, plays Etta Herdy of Australia; Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, No. 3, faces Almut Sturm of Germany, and Maria Bueno of Brazil, No. 4, takes on Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis.

YANK TEAM EXTENDED Top Tandems Vie in Nat'l Doubles Finals

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Defending champions Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox of Mexico and the U.S. Davis Cup pair of Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston swept into the men's final for the third straight year at the National Doubles Tennis Championships Saturday.

Although they're top seeded, Osuna and Palafox will be the underdogs in Sunday's title match. The Mexicans outbattled seventh-seeded Ronnie Fisher and Cliff Buchholz Saturday, 5-7, 8-6, 8-6, 6-4 while Ralston and McKinley were extended to five sets by British Davis Cuppers Bobby Wilson and Roger Taylor.

THE AMERICANS finally prevailed 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2. Earlier, they had completed the last two games of a 7-5, 8-10, 6-4, 7-5 quarter-final triumph over Don Dell and Frank Froehling.

In the women's competition, Australians Margaret Smith and Robyn Ebbenn easily turned back England's Deirdre Catt and Liz Starkie 6-3, 6-4 to join Darlene Hard and Maria Bueno in the Sunday final.

In the senior men's finals, 49-year-old Gardner Mulloy collected his 25th national championship but first while paired with longtime partner Bill Talbert, 45, in the senior section.

Five L.B. Golfers Eye U.S. Amateur Berths

Five Long Beach golfers will compete in 36-hole Southern California sectional qualifying at California CC Tuesday for the National Amateur Championship.

Included in a field of 76, which will vie for eight berths, are Julie Bescos, Jim Ferrie, Jack Gates, Roger Cleveland and Earl Svenning-sen.

Wright Garners 1-Stroke Lead

OGDEN, Utah (UPI)—Veteran Mickey Wright, in quest of her 10th tournament win this year, fired her second consecutive round of 71 Saturday to grab a one-stroke lead in the Utah Women's Open golf championship.

Miss Wright moved into the one birdie on the front nine lead when first round leader Kathy Whitworth of Jal, N.M., Whitworth when Kathy pulled soared to 75 after firing a three-under-par 68 Friday to gain a three-stroke lead at the end of 18 holes.

The final 18 holes of the tournament will be played today on the well-manicured Ogden Golf and Country Club course.

Miss Wright, a long ball hitter from Dallas, Tex., made

So He Can't Act!

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD, July 27 (AP)—In status-happy Hollywood, Gene Autry rates socially someplace between the Bowery Boys and Tarzan.

That's not because Gene wears cowboy boots and draws in a friendly, homespun Oklahoma twang. Gene, you see, never has made a movie that cost more than $200,000.

No Gene Autry movie ever had a gala Hollywood premiere. Few ever played the town except on the bottom end of a double bill.

But at the bank Gene is a star. He can buy and sell half the movie tycoons in Bel-Air and Beverly Hills.

Each performer got $500 extra pay.

MUSIC PUBLISHING
—Golden West Melodies and Western Stars Music Publishing Co.

TV PRODUCTION — Flying A Productions, sole owners of the Range Rider, Annie Oakley, Gene Autry, Champion and The Buffalo Billy Jr. series. There are 336 shows that will be shown for years because the kid audience turns over every few years.

HOTELS—Hotel Continental, Hollywood, and Ocotillo Lodge, Palm Springs. The Gene Autry Hotel Company plans to build or buy another dozen or two hotels, Autry says.

His holdings also include cattle ranches and "some scattered oil interests."

Actually, oil helped create the Autry fortune. Once two of his movie friends drilled for oil in Texas and got dry holes. Autry sank 17 wells within 10 miles of the dry holes. Each became a major producer.

Autry seems surprised when people express amazement at his business acumen.

"Actually, it's the thing I do best. What I do worse is sing, act and play a guitar."

BUT IT was the guitar and country voice that hatched the golden eggs. From his movies and recordings came Gene Autry shirts, Gene Autry six-shooters and all the other

GENE AUTRY
Tycoon

paraphernalia from which western stars draw royalties.

Columbia records claims he is the only singer who ever made five records each with a sale of more than 5 million. One, "Rudolph the Red-Nose Reindeer," is nearing 8 million.

The others are "Here Comes Santa Claus," "South Of The Border," "Be Honest With Me," and "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine."

Gene looks more like perfect casting for a Texas tycoon nowadays than a romantic singing cowboy. He's added poundage but his personality has never changed. "I learned years ago I never would be a great actor," he says. "So I figured the best thing to do is to stay natural."

OF ALL the Autry interests, which gives him the greatest satisfaction? "The Angels," he answers with no hesitation. The onetime Oklahoma semi-pro ballplayer adds: "I've loved baseball all my life. I'd have given up everything I've ever made to be a big leaguer."

'FIVE FINGER EXERCISE'

Solid Match of Play and Players

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

If you can stick out the player. first few minutes during which the play climbs out from under the pile of English blankets smothering the lives of its protagonists, Chapel Theater's production of Peter Shaffer's "Five Finger Exercise" will reward you with one of the finest community theater projects available this season.

Directed with fine control (and a sharp eye to giving the actors something to do at all times) by Ed Long, and set-designed by Phyllis Palmer to keep the limited action flowing cleverly, the Torrance production scored as a "solid match" of play and players (unlike the "dream" wedding of the play's mother, Louise Harrington).

British playwright Shaffer's play catches the Harrington family of four in an uneasy reunion in one of those country-houses so peculiarly suited to the "crosssex" British weekends which insist on inheriting them. The entrance of the fifth finger in the family—Walter, a rebellious son of a Nazi—sets up the fulcrum of the play's action. Engaging him as a tutor, the Harringtons end up by placing him under a sort of emotional occupation, each "finger" of the original family in its own delightfully fiendish way: Pamela (the daughter) in her own bouncy, teen-ager way, straying hands and all; Mother Louise at once dangling dalliance and devouring her superior "play-Empress" culture; son "Jou-Jou" Clive straddling the dying echo of latent homosexuality and the croak of emerging manhood; and Father Stanley charging with Colonel Blimp brusqueness in all directions and at all parties.

LIKE ALL good directors, Long paces his players through this maze with a cultivated "ear" to the playwright's intentions. And this is the only way to handle a Shaffer play. The writer hardly wastes a line, is delightfully stingy with physical action, the play gaining its slowly rising momentum from its interlocking intestines of character grinding "off-tackle" from the action implicit in the dialogue itself.

Fortunately available are the services of all-pro Margaret Middleton as Louise, an actress who knows how to remain on-stage and participate in the exit of a fellow-that they do NOT try to become so "AWFULLY" British (and thus frightfully unintelligible) in a play in which people beat each other with words, not with senseless weapons.

"Five Finger Exercise" continues for five weekends at the Chapel Theater, 4164 Pacific Coast Hwy., "in Smith Bros. Fish Shanty country." If lost, call FR 2-9636.

Night Sights

DRIVERS, HERE'S WHERE TO GO NOW

New Department of Motor Vehicles headquarters for Long Beach is now ready at Pacific Avenue and Willow Street. Motorists will be serviced from north side of building.

AT PACIFIC AND WILLOW

Motor Vehicles Dept. in New Location

Long Beach offices of the State Department of Motor Vehicles will open for business Monday morning in a new building at the northwest corner of Pacific Avenue and Willow Street, it has been announced by Howard R. Link, manager.

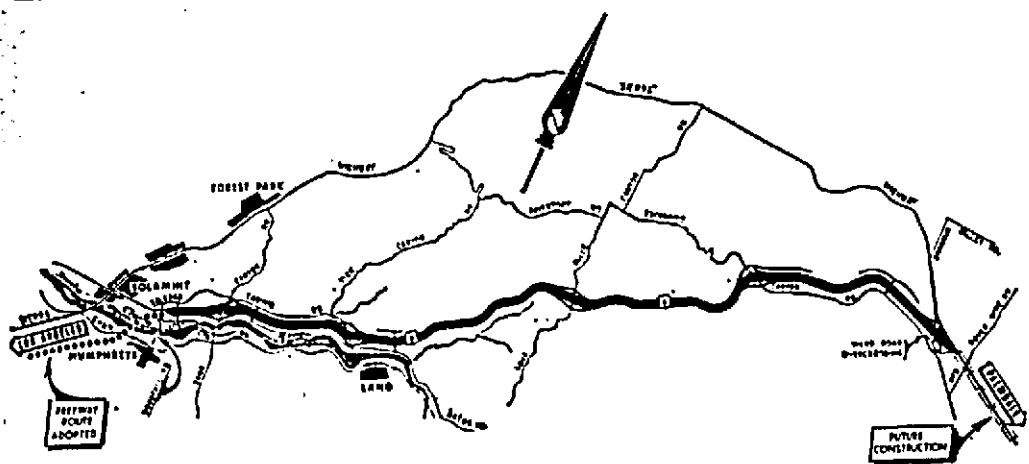

This rings down 22 years of service in the offices at 700 E. Broadway.

Equipment from the old office, Link said. The building was constructed on state-owned land by J. E. Burrell & Sons, Inc., and represents a $500,000 investment.

"THE NEW BUILDING will give us 12,000 feet of working space to provide better service to the public and is in keeping with the growth of the area. We will have parking space for 120 cars on sub-lots adjacent to the new department's driver improvement program."

ANALYSTS working from the new headquarters will serve all of Long Beach, San Pedro, Compton, Hawthorne and Torrance. Sixteen additional personnel are being assigned to Long Beach, bringing the total staff to 47.

Official dedication is set for 2 p. m. Tuesday.

THIS PORTION OF ANTELOPE VALLEY FREEWAY NOW IN USE

Heavy line shows section of Antelope Valley Freeway officially opened to the public Friday. Elaborate dedication ceremonies were held at the west end and a big motorcade made the "first ride" over strip.

SP Opens New Freight Depot, Razing Old One

Southern Pacific and its subsidiary, Pacific Electric Railway, have announced opening of their new air-conditioned Long Beach freight station and district office at Eighth Street and Pico Avenue.

The old freight station, several hundred feet away, has been vacated and will be razed shortly to make way for straightening a curve in the Long Beach Freeway.

RAILROAD officers on hand to host civic and Chamber of Commerce officials at the ribbon-cutting ceremony included J. H. Long, superintendent of the SP Los Angeles division; D. R. Lewis, vice president and general manager of Pacific Electric; and Frank M. Guerin, general freight and passenger agent.

N. L. Smith is district freight and passenger agent at Long Beach and Henry Clark is agent in charge of the new freight station.

Superintendent Long was host to the group at a luncheon served in his private railroad car spotted near the station.

AMONG THOSE present were Mayor Edwin Wade; City Mgr. John Mansell; Councilmen Bert Bond and Emmet Sullivan; Harry Krusz, executive vice president of the Chamber; Henry Jordan, Bureau of Franchises and Public Utilities; Paul McKenzie and Glenn Irvin of the Chamber; and Diane Olson.

Escrow Association to Hold Conference

Long Beach area escrow company representatives will be among those present at the California Escrow Association's 1963 Educational Conference Wednesday at Los Angeles.

Sessions will be held at the Biltmore Hotel.

ON THE UP AND UP

Construction workers on the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway enjoy a free ride up pine-topped Mt. San Jacinto. They commute daily from the desert floor, where summer temperatures often soar above 100, to the tram's mountain station, more than 8,000 feet above Palm Springs, where it is a pleasant 70 degrees. World's biggest and longest single-lift mountain skyway opens to the public Sept. 14.

Pay $1,000 for Inaugural Ride on Sky Tramway

By VERN ANTHONY
 Southland Progress Editor

Anyone for a 15-minute ride, cost $1,000?

It won't be half-way around the globe. It will be for the official inaugural trip of the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway scheduled for Sept. 12.

Eighteen presidents and six vice presidents of top California companies are among those who have paid $1,000 each for the honor of making the first trip with Gov. Edmund Brown and other national and state dignitaries.

SHOW BUSINESS notables such as Bob Hope, honorary mayor of Palm Springs; Bing Crosby; Dinah Shore and Art Linkletter have been invited to take part in the dedication ceremonies.

Effective Sept. 14, the aptly named "Golden Ride" will be much less expensive. Rates to the public will be at $3.50 weekdays and $4 on weekends. Fares for children will be $2.25, but 50 cents more on weekends.

THE TRAMWAY, two years in the building, is the largest and longest of its kind in the world.

From a canyon location six miles from downtown Palm Springs two Swiss-made cable cars will lift 400 passengers per hour to the 8,516-foot level of Mt.

San Jacinto. Object — cool temperatures, dining, winter sports, hiking and spectacular sightseeing.

The tramway will open up previously inaccessible state park areas for year-round recreation.

THOSE MAKING THE $1,000 trip will include:

O. N. Miller, president of Standard Oil of California; Fred Oldendorf, president of California Electric Power Co.; Hulsey Lokey, president of Interstate Hosts, Inc.; Leland Kaiser, chairman of the board of Insurance Securities, Inc.; Sam Banowitz, president of National Properties in Chicago; Al Hart, president of City National Bank; John Chudacoff, partner in Davidson-Chudacoff Meats; Willard Keith, president of Marsh & McLennan-Cosgrove and Co.; Irwin Schuman, president of the Palm Springs Riviera Hotel; W. A. Knight, vice president of Tanner Gray Line; Herb Samson, vice president of Security-First National Bank; Dewey Metzendorf, vice president of Western Hotels; Walter Smith, vice president of Pioneer Aluminum Inc.; and Fred Ingram, vice president of the Bank of America.

A few spaces on the inaugural run still are available. Anyone want to be taken for a $1,000 ride?

RAIL EXECUTIVES AT NEW STATION

Code Hails Increase in All-Electric Construction

The number of Gold Medalion (all-electric) homes and apartments built in the Southland during the first six months of this year is nearly double the number constructed during the comparable period last year, according to figures just released by Southern California Edison Co.

A significant increase of 192 per cent in total electric residences completed and connected to Edison lines was reported by A. L. Code, district manager.

ments made the most spectacular gains as the number constructed soared 210 per cent over the corresponding period of 1962. Homes meeting Gold Medalion standards increased by 74 per cent, Code said.

He added that the number of Bronze Medalion homes and apartments—those meeting high electrical standards but not completely electrified—built during the first six months of 1963 increased by 54 per cent.

TOTAL IMPACT of the Medalion program—both gold and bronze—has shown a 94 per cent increase over last year's January-through-June figures, Code said.

"What gives special significance to these statistics," he pointed out, "is the fact that we've had comparable dramatic gains each year since the Medalion Program was launched in 1958."

"The electric industry's program to upgrade the electrical quality of residential construction is making a vivid impression on builders and homebuyers, particularly in Southern California."

Ellis-Schrader Continues July Business Gains

Ellis-Schrader, Inc., Realtors, did it again in July. Its salesmen sold 93 houses, an increase of 21 per cent over July in 1962 and 48 per cent above the July, 1961, total.

J. Tyson Ellis, president of the real estate firm, credited the increase to two factors: Southern California is a fertile field for the real estate industry. Secondly, the firm's special training school is giving the sales staff a more professional quality. The school is conducted for the company's licensed real estate salesmen.

Permit OK'd for 27-Story Apartment

A permit for construction of an $16,515,700 27-story apartment building in Century City has been approved by the Los Angeles Building and Safety Department.

The new structure will be owned by the Century City Co. and will consist of two rectangular towers containing 308 dwelling units and 33 guest rooms.

FEMININE SPEAKER WINS

Map Submitted for 16-Unit, Two-Story Condominium

A tentative map has been filed with the City of Long Beach for the construction of a two-story, 16-unit condominium apartment development at Las Lomas and Anaheim streets, according to Jack Spahn of E. L. Pearson and Co., civil engineers and condominium consultants.

The project, by Bernard Solomon, builder and developer, will have the units placed in a two-story, high rise configurations.

"This will have the effect," Spahn explained, "of dividing the high cost of land among a group of individuals, thereby reducing the overall cost per unit."

Spahn was chairman of a recent condominium conference attended by 1,100 of the Southland's leading builders and developers.

THE DEVELOPMENT, units of which will be priced from $19,500 to $23,500, is designed for adult living. The location places it near Marine Stadium and Long Beach State College.

BY BANKERS Management Education Emphasized

Educational factors in banking as vital to management progress were emphasized by three speakers at a managers' conference held Thursday night at the Edgewater Inn Marina Hotel.

More than 100 banks in the Harbor District Chapter, American Institute of Banking, were represented at the dinner program. Presiding was one of the few women to hold such an office, Mrs. G. Bernadine Kepka, chapter president.

SPEAKERS were W. J. Breen, Bank of America; Robert B. Kemble, First Western Bank; and Thomas B. Perry, Security First National Bank, all vice presidents in personnel departments.

Training class plans were discussed in detail and stress was placed on self-development for advancement in management jobs. Banks help defray costs of training courses for their employees, it was explained.

A musical program by two singers and a pianist from the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Co. concluded the program.

Open $12 Million Industrial Tract

SANTA FE SPRINGS—Development of a $12 million industrial tract is under way on a 100-acre site in Santa Fe Springs.

The land, valued at more than $4.5 million, is located near Slauson Avenue, one-half mile east of the new San Gabriel River Freeway, and five minutes from the Santa Ana Freeway. The tract is being developed by the John B. Kilroy Co.

New Barker Store Will Open Monday

LA MIRADA—Barker Bros. will open a new 40,000 square foot store here Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the La Mirada Shopping Center. This will be the 13th branch unit operated by the 83-year-old home furnishings concern.

A preview showing was held Thursday, with Richard Gold, president, and William R. Williams, store manager, as hosts.

Counseling Firm Opened by Shaheen-Hodges Co.

Another step in the age of commercial, industrial, business opportunity and larger residential income properties. In these fields they will specialize in land use, cost and investment analysis, economic feasibility studies, architectural renovating and tax-free exchanges, sales, lease-backs and syndications.

This occasion marked a new trend in professionalization by syndicating the talents of leaders from many areas as a consultant team for client counseling in the commercial, industrial and investment fields.

The newly formed corporation is headed by Edmund F. Shaheen, president of the Thomas Shaheen Co. of Compton, and Robert C. Westmyer, president of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co.

Both Shaheen and Westmyer said they have long recognized a growing need in Long Beach for a highly specialized commercial, industrial and investment firm.

The firm will handle only

High Award to L.B. Man

William J. Hogan, 1956 Montair Ave., has received one of the highest awards which can be given at the U.S. Naval Ordnance Test Station, Pasadena—Sustained Superior Performance Award.

Hogan is an ordnance test mechanic in the Underwater Ordnance Department with duty at Seal Beach. He has been with NOTS three years. Other federal service was with the Naval Air Station, Seattle, and the Naval Weapons Station, Seal Beach.

Realty Education Authority to Talk

Facts about the Long Beach City College fall classes pertaining to real estate will be told to members of the North Long Beach Realty Club at their breakfast meeting Thursday.

Speaker at the 8 a.m. session at the Midnight Sun, 5925 Cherry Ave., will be Richard "Dick" Jones, of the college's Business and Technology Division. The school's educational program in real estate matters is reputed to be one of the outstanding of its kind in the nation.

Development Slated at Manhattan Beach

MANHATTAN BEACH—The city's last available large vacant plot for commercial use, a 20-acre parcel on the northeast corner of Sepulveda and Manhattan Beach boulevards, is to be developed this fall.

Plans have been disclosed by the architectural firm of Stiles and Robert Clements. A discount store will occupy half of the site. Other tenants will include a bank, loan association, etc.

INITIAL EMPHASIS

will be on the downtown area of Long Beach. A complete study of land occupancy and use already is under way.

Both Westmyer and Shaheen have been active in the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, the California Real Estate Association, the Brokers Institute and the National Association of Real Estate Board.

VIRGINIA MAY
Department Manager

Woman Gets Escrow Post

E. Tennyson Moore, president of Moore Realty, has announced appointment of Virginia May as escrow manager of the firm's Escrow Department, located in the Administrative Office at 4151 East Carson St., Lakewood.

The department is the center for closing of sales for Moore Realty's nine offices in Long Beach, Lakewood and Orange County.

Mrs. May is well known to Southlanders. She has served as president of both the California Escrow Association and the Long Beach Escrow Association.

She received her training with the Bank of America, and until coming with Moore Realty, was vice president and Long Beach manager for Western Mutual Escrow Corporation.

Moore Realty's future expansion plans call for a separate Escrow Division under Mrs. May's supervision in the that area and the expanding Orange County area with the opening of two new offices in coverage in Long Beach.

CPAs Will Hear Bradley Tuesday

"Accounting for the Investment Credit" will be discussed by Louie M. Bradley Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Long Beach-Orange County Chapter of the California Society of Certified Public Accountants.

There will be a 6:30 social hour, followed by the dinner program at the Jolly Roger restaurant in Anaheim, according to Roger Sturgis, chapter president.

Bradley is a partner in the firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery.

Solomon Emcees at Exchange Club Event

ANAHEIM—A quadri-in-stallation of officers for Orange County Exchange Clubs was held here last week in the Magnolia Room of the Disneyland Hotel.

Al Solomon, governor of District 16, was the master of ceremonies. Solomon is president of Alco-Pacific Construction Co. and a civic leader in Orange County.

California State President Paul Marsh presided, and installed the officers.

Cal Meekins, newly elected president of Garden Grove's Exchange Club, Jean Solomon, new head of the Exchange-ettes from that city, Chuck Reynolds, Laguna Beach's new president, and Bill Finley of the Central Orange County group, led the installation list.

OTHER OFFICERS installed were Ray Michener, first vice president; Les McDaniels, second vice president; Chuck Eras, secretary, and Shelly Solomon, treasurer, of the Garden Grove club.

During the coming year, Mrs. Solomon will be assisted by Dona Michener, vice president; Mary Ameden, secretary, and Eileen Fricke, treasurer. Board of control members are Joan Olds, past president; Camille Drey, Adele Needle, and Beth Carlson.

Laguna Beach's new officers are Charles R. Reynolds.

Dr. Wilbur Wagner and John Sheehan, Central Orange County and Finley's fellow officers are Dewey Shuliy, first vice president; Gene Montgomery, second vice president; Carl Peters, secretary; and Ralph Carmen, treasurer.

CONTRIBUTING to the convention atmosphere at this unusual event was Dennison Jackson, grand sweepstakes winner of the state's Search for Talent Contest.

Jackson, a talented drummer, is an art major at Pasadena State College.

The first meeting of California's State Board of Control members was another highlight of the installation.

Grove Building Nears $22.5 Million Mark

A 59-bed convalescent home valued at $158,000 pushed new construction in Garden Grove this year toward the $22.5 million mark.

The permit was issued during the week to Dr. Raymond W. Conn, Beverly Hills, with co-owners listed as Ida Conn, Harold and Dorothy Shrier.

The 13,630-square-foot facility will be erected at 13392 Taft Ave.

New construction thus far this month has totaled $1.7 million. The year's total as of August 1 stood at $20.7 million.

Permits for major construction were issued to the following during the past week:

E. A. Ahlin, 15425 Alhli Drive, fresh home at 17777 Gilcrest St., $21,920; Elaine Canant, 17233 Elmwood St., remodel bath room, $423; Edward J. Dubowski, 13377 Adland St., service and room porch addition, $1,000; Sam Camarata, 11441 Garden Drive, $318 cover, $330.

Robert L. Visher, 9272 Chasman Ave., dental building at 133141 Chasman Ave., $20,000; Jack Wineland, 12311 Center St., swimming pool, $1,100; C. E. Barga, 12515

Robert McWilliams, 8771 Alhli Ave., swimming pool, $2,700; H. Dale Hall, 12211 Greenway Ave., new garage to replace fire damaged one, $1,250; Helen Bullock, Inc., 12221 Brookhurst St., 6-unit apartment at 12919 Standard Ave., $9,100; Joe Gacil, 9308 Kahala Ave., repair fire damage to restaurant, $1,000.

The Clary Bn. Inc., 7732 Acadia Ave., brick wall, $1,000; S. Monemmus, 12741 Brookhurst St., relocate detached garage on 16141 15th St., $1,400; Philip Hoot, 1141 Anthony St., block wall, $314; Garden Grove Masonic Building Assn., 17416 15th St., 10-unit lodge, $2,000; R. P. Shalamberger, 11312 Stratford St., new garage, $1,400.

Lyle Richards, 13791 Riata St., swimming pool, $2,200; Tascos Inc., 11611 Brookhurst St., revolving door sign, $400.

11,400 TONS OF STEEL UNLOADED IN PORT

Freighter Antonios Coulouthros, Greek vessel under charter to Saugus Marine, is shown unloading huge cargo of 11,400 tons of wire, pipe, sheet and rod steel she had brought from five Japanese ports. Unloaded cargo covered five acres at Pier 208, Long Beach Harbor.

L.B. Firm to Build Plant at Oxnard

Arcturus Manufacturing Corp. has purchased 10 acres of land under annexation by the City of Oxnard from Martin V. Smith for $120,000, in a transaction handled by Coldwell, Banker & Company, Realtors.

Arcturus will build a $4-million three-building complex to house the largest forging hammers west of the Mississippi River.

Tri-Cor, Inc., of Long Beach is building contractor for the project.

Oxnard will annex the property, which is located south of Hueneme Road and east of Perkins Road, and zone it M-2, according to Paul Wolven, city manager.

Land preparation is under way and the plant is scheduled to be operational in six months.

North Long Beach Club to Hear Mould

President Melvin Mould of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors will address the North Long Beach Realty Club at its breakfast meeting Thursday.

He will discuss "Recent Legislation Affecting Housing."

The club meets at 8 a.m. at the Midnight Sun, 5925 Cherry Ave.

Data Processing Speeds L.A. Airport Hotel Construction

"Computerized" construction of the International Hotel at the entrance to Los Angeles International Airport is 21 days ahead of schedule, and is setting a building speed record, Robert Carre, general manager of the hotel and vice president of International Airport Hotel System, Inc., has announced.

The electronic brain that is programming the construction now predicts that the 14-story hotel will be completed in January, 1964.

The speedy construction job has been scheduled by the Critical Path Method first developed for the federal government in the Nautilus submarine and Polaris missile programming, he explained.

SINCE WORK BEGAN in February, the 8.5 acre site has been excavated, 70,000 cubic yards of earth were removed, 1,256 pilings were driven, 5,200,000 pounds of steel were erected and 28,000 yards of concrete placed.

The 630-room structure is the largest and one of the first non-defense "computerized" buildings in the world.

An IBM 1401 data processing machine has been fed data and has scheduled the work. The programming was done by Robert Little, project manager and vice president of Fred Howland Co., general contractor. Jerry Doyle of Adams Associates, Anaheim, has served as consulting engineer.

"ANY MAJOR JOB consists of an accumulation of small pieces of work, and the scheduling of one piece of work hinges upon the completion of another," Carre explained. "Initially, the contractor analyzed the entire job and broke down all pieces of work under 6,000 item headings. Data on each item was fed into the electronic brain—how long it would take to complete, and what work goes before and after. The machine then programmed each job.

"After the initial draft, the contractor analyzed the critical items, those that may impede the work, and reviewed more advantageous ways of doing the critical jobs."

Interior Design Contract Awarded

Contract for interior design, decoration and food service installation of the Gourmet dining room, cocktail lounge and coffee shop of Pacific Holiday Towers in Long Beach has been awarded to the commercial interiors division of Barker Bros.

Robert W. Craig, head of the division, said that the new high rise apartment project at 1900 Ocean Blvd. is expected to be completed by year-end. Barker Bros. is working in cooperation with the Walter Minskoff Construction Co.

$6,200 Fire Damage Repair Permit OK'd

STANTON — Eight building permits for construction totaling $20,455 were issued during the past week by the Stanton Building Department.

Jack Seal, 7712 Davmor St., took out a $6,200 permit to repair fire damage. Monroe Realty, 8431 Monroe St., took out permit for a $6,500 air-conditioning and remodeling project.

Other permits were issued to Irvin Black, 8281 Cederline St., garage, $2,400; W. J. Construction Co., Inc., 8413 Monroe St., office partitions, $300; John Gilmore, 7356 Cody St., patio, $1,300; George Felt, 10440 Dale St., room divider, $175; John Warrick, 7340 Bock St., swim pool, $3,000; and H. E. Marshall, 13431 Ashbury St., patio, $250.

BECAUSE the contractor and each sub-contractor know just how much material and how many workmen will be required at any given time, the work has been proceeding faster than the original schedule.

Frequent IBM re-drafts of the program have kept it up-to-date. The "computerizing" has saved not only time, but money, according to Carre because it has enabled the contractors to maintain a steady work load.

The hotel is being built and will be operated by the International Airport Hotel System, Inc., a Miami-based firm specializing in airport hotels.

HOTEL MODEL ON DISPLAY

This Los Angeles "hotel" was built in six weeks by two men. It is a model of the 14-story International Hotel at the entrance to Los Angeles International Airport, and has just been installed in offices at the site of construction of the real hotel, at the corner of Century and Sepulveda Boulevards. Construction of the real hotel is setting a speed record. The building will be completed in January, 1964. It will be the largest airport hotel in the world, and first major hotel to be built at Los Angeles in more than eight years.

Most Electronics Groups Optimistic Over 'Outlook'

Electronics manufacturing companies in the West are optimistic about the outlook for business in the third quarter of this year, a survey conducted by the Western Electronic Manufacturers Association (WEMA) indicates.

Despite more cautious forecasts earlier in the year, 72 per cent of the companies surveyed now predict third-quarter increases in order bookings over the comparable period a year ago, while only 21 per cent look for a decline. The remaining 7 per cent expect no significant change.

The same trend also is apparent when comparing anticipated third-quarter order bookings with the just-completed second quarter. WEMA figures show that 74 per cent of the companies look for an increase.

Firm Names New Sales Director

George C. Otto, long-time real estate sales executive, has been named sales director for Douglass Construction Co. of California.

San Clemente, John C. Douglass, president of the firm, announced Saturday.

Prior to joining Douglass Otto was divisional sales manager for a large Southern California home building firm and directed sales in the communities of Hacienda Heights, Palm City, La Habra and North Tustin.

As sales director for Douglass, he will be in charge of marketing and sales for the firm's subdivision developments of Bay Cliff Village, Colony Cove (San Clemente) and Pacific Island Village within the Laguna Niguel area of South Laguna.

Plant Maintenance Costs Rise in U.S.

Increases in labor costs and the price of materials in the United States, combined to boost the cost of plant maintenance in June. The climb is expected to continue in July.

The June index, as compiled by Factory, McGraw-Hill publication, hit 188.3, compared with 187.5 in May (1947-100). The estimate for July is 188.5.

The equipment component of the index rose 1.1 points, while costs in the building and facilities section edged ahead 0.2 of one point.

Petrolane's Revenues Up

Revenues of Petrolane Gas Service, Inc., for the 12 months ended June 30, 1963, were $28,558,000 compared to $24,242,000 in the 1962 period. Net income was $2,162,000 against $2,049,000 in the prior year.

Based on average number of shares outstanding, earnings were $1.30 per share in the 12 months of 1963 as compared to $1.25 on a fewer number of shares in the prior year.

R. J. Munzer, president, also announced from his offices at 1600 E. Hill St. the establishment of company-operated LP-gas marketing outlets at Fairbanks and Juneau, Alaska.

"These moves assure the continued favorable marketing position of Petrolane in this region of excellent long-term LP-gas potential," he added.

$10 Million Paid for Land Bought at $3.2 Million

SAN RAFAEL (UPI) — Hawaii fancier Chinn Ho has announced sale of the Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club and surrounding lands to the Draper Companies of San Francisco for $10 million. Ho's firm had bought the entire acreage in 1956 for $3.2 million.

Ho, president of the Capital Investment Co. of Honolulu, and Jerome G. Draper, Jr., president of the Draper Companies, described last week's transaction as one of the largest of its kind in Northern California.

The overall development, known as Marin Bay and located in Marin County on the northwest shores of San Francisco Bay, was a project of Latipac, Inc., and Latipac-Perini Co.

Latipac is a subsidiary of Capital Investment Co. and Latipac-Perini was a joint venture. Latipac bought out the Perini interests on March 31 this year.

The Draper Companies bought the golf course and clubhouse, perimeter lands and the China Camp along the bay shore, a total of approximately 1,000 acres, for $10 million.

In addition the Draper Companies have a two-year option to purchase adjoining North Valley, also approximately 1,000 acres, for $3.4 million.

Carloadings Drop

Total carloadings moved over Santa Fe System lines for the week ending Aug. 17 were 30,479 compared with 31,721 for the same week a year ago.

On-line loadings were 19,990 compared with 20,982 for the corresponding week last year.

Buena Park to Get New Apartments

BUENA PARK—Two apartment developments totaling $273,127 boosted construction in Buena Park to $302,369 during the week, according to records in the office of H. A. Chamberlain, building superintendent.

Permit for construction of a 21-unit apartment development with cabana and carports, at 6851 Dale St., was issued to Dale Terroce Inc., 6420 Dale St. The valuation was listed at $187,660.

Permit for a 10-unit apartment and carport costing $85,467 was issued to G and K Co., Anaheim. The structure will be erected at 8252 California St.

R. Costa, 8505 Waverly Pl., took out permit for construction of a $22,835 single family dwelling.

Other permits were issued to Jack Dornell, 3178 Larch Circle, Buena Park, for a room addition, 9775 James St., for a swimming pool, 1437 Holder St., swimming pool, 12020 Frontier Motel, 7601 Beach Blvd., 52,000; and J. Scarborough, 7431 Edison Circle, aluminum signs, $1,350.

Rigoli Joins New American Building Center

Gus Rigoli, former general sales manager of Build 'n Save Stores, has resigned his position there to join with Bob Marks in the new American Building Center, 3626 E. Cerritos Ave., Los Alamitos.

For the past four years Rigoli was one of the pioneers of the mass merchandising concept in Southern California. He is a graduate of Woodbury College and was associated for several years with Fuld, Johnson & Co., Certified Public Accountants, in San Pedro.

As the American Building Center plans unfold, he will be in line for the second store. Rectrizing that bigness is not always best, Rigoli helped formulate the plans for American Building Center, which will turn back toward service and high ticket consumer selling.

Katella Realty Opens Office in Elsinore

ANAHEIM — Melvin R. Schantz, president of Katella Realty, Inc., has announced opening of a fifth office at 17975 Grand Ave., Elsinore.

Mike Pawlick, a captain in the Marine Corps and retiring after 20 years, will manage the new office.

As part of Katella Realty's expansion program, the Garden Grove Boulevard office last week moved into a larger building at 8470 Garden Grove Blvd.

BIG HOMES PRICED FROM $20,950

The second unit of Lark Village offers large homes such as this priced from $20,950 to $25,900 and may be purchased for as little as $395 down. The homes are in the new community of Fountain Valley.

Lark Village's Second Unit Appeals to Buyers

The second unit of Lark Village is proving to be just as popular as the first, states Charles W. Hester, developer of the Fountain Valley community.

According to Hester, the first unit sold out in less than 30 days and if present sales continue the second unit will be sold out in about three weeks.

Lark Village offers one and two-story homes of three, four and five bedrooms, family rooms and two full baths. The homes are priced from $20,950 and can be purchased for as little as $395 down, plus costs.

AMONG THE interesting innovations in Lark Village is a "Future" room in the two-story models. This 19'x26' room can be used as a rumpus room now and as the family grows it can be converted into two bedrooms, or two smaller bedrooms and a playroom. This area has a bath plumbed for future use.

Lark Village lists among its outstanding features block-wall fencing for the rear and side yards, underground sprinklers in the front, built-in Westinghouse range and oven, wall-to-wall carpeting, sunken living room, massive wood-burning fireplaces, mantle over fireplace and distinctive ash paneling. There is a wide variety of floor plans and exteriors.

Lark Village can be easily reached from Long Beach by driving east on Seventh St. to Brookhurst, then right to Edinger and then left to

Ethics Ban Realtor Use of Stamps and Premiums

BELLFLOWER—Use of trading stamps and premiums to attract business, while regarded as ethical and acceptable in many fields, is considered unprofessional in real estate and damaging to the dignity of the calling, according to Bob Prigmore, president of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors.

Realtors are charged also to present a true picture and avoid exaggeration, in their advertising. Prigmore said, referring to interpretations of the Code of Ethics recently issued by the National Association of Real Estate Boards of which he and the local board are members.

This book presents practical applications of the association's Code of Ethics by the Realtor to his client, the public and his colleagues.

IN ONE CASE CITED, the book points out that the offering of a "free" refrigerator, television set, automobile, or trading stamps as an inducement to the public to contact a Realtor is unprofessional and in violation of Article 3 of the NAREB Code of Ethics to which all Realtors subscribe.

This Article reads as follows: "It is the duty of the Realtor to protect the public against fraud, misrepresentation, or unethical practices in the real estate field."

"He should endeavor to eliminate in his community any practices which could be damaging to the public or to the dignity and integrity of the real estate profession. The Realtor should assist the board or commission charged with regulating the practices of brokers and salesmen in his state."

IN ANOTHER CASE the book points out, however, that the presentation of a courtesy gift, such as a rose bush, as a gesture of good will after the closing of a transaction is not a violation of this article.

Prigmore pointed out that the book contains several illustrations cautioning Realtors against exaggeration in advertising.

Violators of the Code are subject to a range of penalties from the real estate board, Prigmore said, ranging from a reprimand and direction to desist from certain unethical practices to suspension or expulsion.

HOUSEWIVES' DREAMS COME TRUE

Record Adoptions

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Child Welfare Department placed 367 children for adoption during the last fiscal year, a record for the agency.

Abundance of Storage Space Provided in Troy Hills Home

"It's not easy to keep ahead of feminine requirements for closets and storage, but the Troy Hills '700 Plan' comes pretty close," maintains Jim McCarthy, vice president of The McCarthy Co., co-builders with Sant Construction of the popular Fullerton community, offering homes for immediate occupancy. On the opposite side of the house, separated from the master suite wing by living room, dining room, entry hall, and kitchen, is another bedroom wing, with hallway, two bedrooms and family bath. Bedrooms have large wardrobes; there's a linen closet in the hall; and a guest closet is located in the front entry foyer.

"Women are delighted by this plan's big walk-in closet, with built-in drawers, double shelves, and cedar-lined blanket storage—just one part of the luxurious, full-wing master bedroom suite," he added.

More storage is provided in the attached double garage, just outside the kitchen-garage door, by an extended storage-utility area, with an outside door to the side yard.

OTHER FEATURES popular with homemakers, according to McCarthy, include the suite has a dressing room and private bath, with built-in double basin pullman. Its bedroom "view corner" has a big garden window facing a recessed outdoor planter court, and right-angled to the window are sliding glass doors, which open to the rear terrace.

Seven three and four-bedroom, two bath plans are offered at Troy Hills, in 33 variations. Homes are set on choice of level or rolling hillside lots, up to one-third acre.

Priced from $20,950, terms offered include no down payment to veterans, FHA financing from $1200 down, conventional, or Cal-Vet financing. Troy Hills may be visited by taking Riverside Freeway to Harbor Blvd. Fullerton turnoff, north on Harbor through Fullerton to Bastanchury Right to Brea Blvd., then left to the furnished models, open daily until dusk.

Precaution

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—As a precaution against fire, the Kentucky pioneer built the chimney of his log cabin so that if it caught fire he could pull out a log and collapse the burning chimney.

son, noted throughout Tustin and Orange County for building fine custom homes. "We built Enderle Gardens," the Nelsons said, "to fill a long wanted need of small but expensive homes for those adults and adults with older children who no longer wanted the expense of large homes with heavy upkeep."

In keeping with the desire of those clients interested in smaller but fine homes, the builders rearranged the floor plans to eliminate unneeded bedrooms and family rooms but emphasized the large living rooms with fireplaces, large master bedrooms, formal dining rooms, and large cov-

FHA Selling More Homes to Negroes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) is selling more homes to Negroes under a policy which it feels is not only consistent with the dictates of human dignity but with good business practice.

The homes have been dumped in the lap of the government because the owners were unable to make the payments. As the insuring agent, the FHA had to make the mortgage good.

The FHA is passing the word around that these homes—many of them in all-white neighborhoods—are available to all buyers, regardless of race.

IT IS GETTING the point across by using a little muscle and then seeing that its action gets as much attention as possible.

The FHA recently called in an area broker in Ohio to answer charges that he was reluctant to show these government-owned homes to representatives of Negro real estate firms.

The government acted after receiving several complaints from Negro prospects.

The broker vigorously denied any discrimination, but he resigned rather than face a showdown with FHA over the issue.

Sales Exec Named by Zinc Corp.

The Howard Zinc Corporation has appointed Gil Gusland sales manager for its Home and Recreation Products Division.

Howard Zinc, with plants in Long Beach and Fremont, Ohio, is the world's largest manufacturer of auto seat covers and convertible tops.

The nationwide Sure-Fit auto top and seat cover retail stores also are a franchised division of the company.

According to N. G. Zink, vice president and general manager, Western Division, Gusland will be sales manager for hassocks, clothes hampers, decorator pillows, cushions, patio furniture pads and related items which the new Home and Recreation Products Division now is marketing.

Gusland was formerly merchandise manager of the Electric Sprayit and Wright Saw Division of Thomas Industries and had been with Montgomery Ward.

The transaction has been approved by the boards of directors of both companies, but remains subject to the approval of the stockholders of Virginia, whose shares are listed on the American Stock exchange, and to certain other conditions.

One of the terms of the agreement is that the management and operation of the Santa Monica amusement park remain unchanged under Morehart, who four years ago acquired it from Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., and the Los Angeles Turf Club, Inc.

Vet Needs Only $90 for Down Payment

A PREMIER HOME

Shown is one of the many homes now on display at Premier Homes, Westminster, a new residential development by William Rousey located on Hazard Avenue in Westminster.

William Rousey, builder of Premier Homes in Westminster, announced that veterans may purchase one of the quality homes with only $90 down. He further stated that conventional financing is also available with minimum FHA down payment and 35-year loans.

Priced from $17,750 to $21,500, these attractive homes offer the home buyer a choice of 14 elevations including two-story homes with three bedrooms, two baths, oven, Hotpoint garbage disposal, ash cabinets and ceramic tile.

Located in smog-free Orange County, Premier Homes are close to schools, churches, and shopping centers and within easy driving distance to the Southland's finest beaches. Furnished model homes are open daily for inspection and may be seen on Hazard Ave., east of Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39) and west of Brookhurst.

Finishes Course

William T. Toy, 2618 E. First St., has been awarded a diploma from Vale Technical Institute at Blairsville, Pa. Toy, claim representative for State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. in Torrance, has just returned from a three-week advanced training course in auto damage estimating and repair techniques at the institute.

35 Courses for Bankers

Bankers throughout the harbor area will again be going to school this fall under the AIB program.

The Harbor Chapter of the American Institute of Banking will conduct 35 classes in banking and business subjects in 19 locations throughout this area. This was announced by Forest Emard of the First Western Bank who is second vice president of the harbor group of bankers.

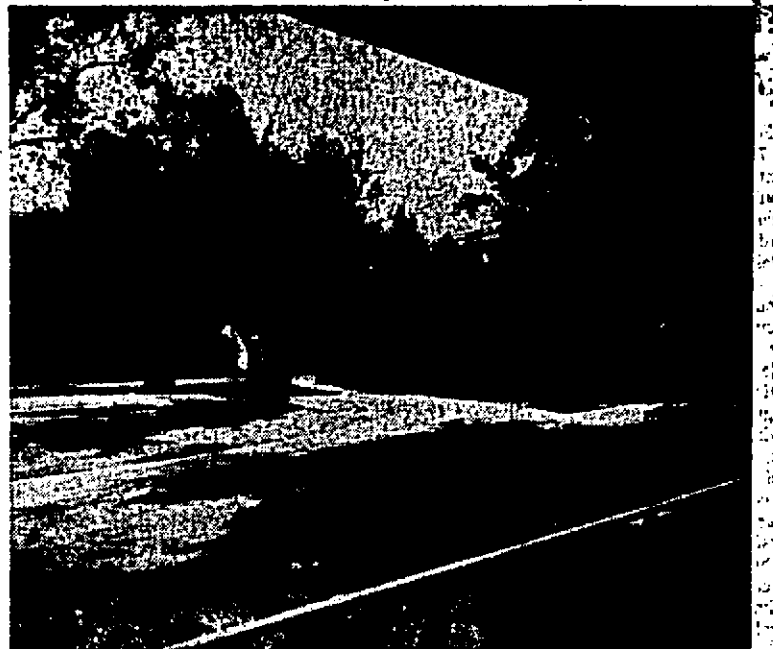

The harbor area extends from Hawthorne to the Orange County Line and north to include Compton and Norwalk.

Expensive Vandals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Replacing school windows smashed by unruly students will cost the American taxpayer $40 million this year, according to a survey by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

Choosy Thief

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—A used car was stolen during the night from an automobile dealer's lot. The following night the auto was returned and a newer model was taken.

OLD WORLD CHARM

Combining the new with the old in charm of decor is illustrated here in this picture of one of the four major courts at the new Meredith Manor townhouse apartments in Fullerton. This scene illustrates the beautiful surroundings beneath 60-year-old Mission olive trees and winding walks around the sculptured pools that the residents enjoy looking out upon from their private patios and balconies.

Townhouse Apartments Now Leasing

Elegance, quiet classical beauty and the best of the modern design are the keynotes to the $3.5 million luxury Meredith Manor Townhouse Apartments built by Eddy Meredith, well-known Orange County builder.

The expensive apartments, three years in the planning stage, are located between Harbor and Lemon on Orange-fair Ave. and consist of 160 units of one, two and three-bedroom, all-electric, air-conditioned apartment homes for adults. The new apartments were opened in July and are now leasing.

Meredith Manor apartments are all planned with private patios and balconies with facades of lacey ornamental wrought iron overlooking the year old Mission olive trees, courts and screened for winding paths for strolling privacy by the giant Mission and four sculptured pools/olive trees.

Two Fashion Home Units Selling Fast

FEW REMAIN TO SELL

Only a few homes remain to be purchased in both Fashion Homes communities in Huntington Beach and Westminster. A choice extra bonus and immediate occupancy are incentives to inspect the big three and four-bedroom, family room homes.

Immediate occupancy is being offered by the Fashion Homes developments in Westminster and Huntington Beach. Both are very near the sold-out stage with home buyers receiving their choice of an extra bonus at no additional cost at both communities.

Models remain open daily from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. during this closing out period, according to the builder, Marvin B. Johnson.

...THE BIG three and four-bedroom, family room homes have received the Bronze Medallion award for their all-electric kitchens featuring Hotpoint built-in range, oven and dishwasher. Hardwood floors on raised foundations are a feature at the Westminster development; while block fencing is included at Fashion Homes—Huntington Beach.

Contract Awarded to Long Beach Firm

The Engineering Materials Company, a small business firm located at 2055 Cowles St., Long Beach, has been awarded a defense contract for 425,700 plain hexagon nuts in the amount of $63,129 by the Defense Industrial Supply Center of 700 Robbins Avenue, Philadelphia, an activity of the Defense Supply Agency.

The contract was awarded after competitive bidding. Ninety-nine firms were invited to bid for the contract and five firms submitted bids.

VA and FHA financing are available with full prices from $21,950 at Westminster and from $19,250 at Huntington Beach.

To visit both Fashion Homes in Orange County from the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh Street to one half mile east of Bolsa Chica Ave. to Fashion Homes in Westminster.

To inspect the Huntington Beach community, continue on Garden Grove Blvd. to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39), turn right 1 and 3/4 miles to Sugar Avenue, then right two blocks to Fashion Homes.

Gas Industry to Spend $7.1 Billion in Next 4 Years

The nation's gas industry expects to spend $7.1 billion on construction in the next four years, John E. Heyke, Jr., president of the American Gas Association, has announced. "Just this year our industry expects to spend nearly $1.7 billion building new facilities to better serve the nation's 35.3 million gas customers," said Heyke, who is president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co. The construction survey is made annually by the A.G.A. Bureau of Statistics and covers transmission, distribution, underground storage, production and storage projects.

Huntington Continental Has 17 Town Houses Available Now

Following an initial sellout of 760 homes in 5 weeks, 17 "extra" new homes are now available at Huntington Continental Town Houses, according to Jack Scougall, sales and marketing manager for the new community. Scougall said that unexpected business transfers have made the additional homes available for immediate purchase.

Huntington Continental, originator of "Town House Living" in Southern California, is located at Brookhurst and Adams, near Pacific Coast Hwy. in Huntington Beach. One of the most successful forms of living ever to be introduced in this area, it combines the benefits of ordinary ownership with the carefree aspects of renting.

AN OUTSTANDING advantage at Huntington Continental is its exterior maintenance feature that relieves purchasers from the burdensome aspects of home ownership. This feature includes full care and upkeep of building exteriors, as well as management and maintenance of landscaping, lawns, parking areas, walk areas and recreational facilities.

Prices at Huntington Continental range from $9,990 total price for a one-bedroom Town House to $14,990 total price for a four-bedroom. Two and three-bedroom models are available, some including custom-designed fireplaces.

LOW FHA terms are available at Huntington Continental, with down payments from $334 including all closing costs. Monthly payments start at $74 for the one-bedroom model, covering principal, interest, taxes and insurance. Monthly maintenance is an added $8 per month.

Among the luxury features included are underground utilities, built-in counter-top range with hood, oven, refrigerator, washer, dryer, disposal, private fenced-in patio, covered carport, forced-air heating, "Wife-Saver" kitchens, copper plumbing, color-coordinated interiors and cultured marble tops on bathroom pullmans.

Huntington Continental Town Houses are a development of Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., one of the nation's largest and builders.

Furnished model homes are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily. To visit Huntington Continental: Drive south on Pacific Coast Hwy. to Brookhurst, left on Brookhurst to furnished models.

TOWN HOUSE LIVING

Here is an interior view in a Huntington Continental Town House showing the charm built into the homes. Under the buying plan, the owner is relieved of care and upkeep of building exteriors.

Much Insurance Money Invested in California

California ran far ahead of every other state as a mortgage borrower from American life insurance companies in 1962, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

About $6,169,396,000 of policyholders' funds was invested in mortgages throughout California at the end of the year.

This was greater than the combined total of life insurance mortgages in 25 other states and was equal to nearly 13 1/2 cents out of every dollar of the overall $46,009,083,000 in life insurance mortgages throughout the United States.

This money, which comes from funds set aside to meet life companies' future obligations to policyholders, plays a big role in helping Californians keep pace with their state's booming population, the institute said. Life insurance funds have financed hundreds of thousands of California homes and apartments, as well as new commercial and industrial facilities. Earnings from such investments help to keep down the cost of insurance to policyholders.

Fountainhead Is 'Family Ready'

Thanks to Fountainhead's new family-ready concept, the old saying, "It takes a heap 'o livin' to make a house a home" is as out of date as the Gibson Girl, according to a spokesman for Mesa Realty, director of sales.

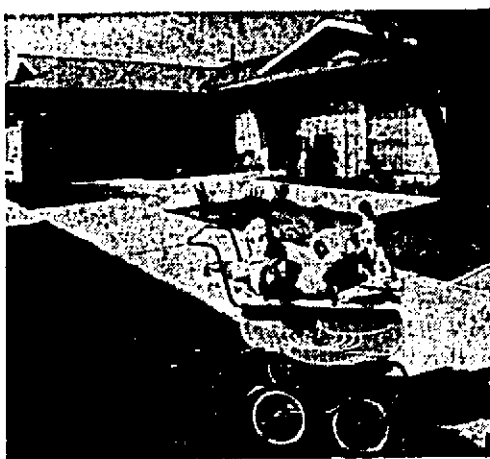

Built as a family community, Fountainhead was conceived and built for the family that likes the idea of a brand new house, but shies away from the work, worry and additional expenses normally associated with the purchase of a new home.

"THE JOY of a new house can wear mighty thin when after the hard work of moving the new homeowner still has to face months of work and additional expense before his new house becomes a home," said Lowell Evans, president of Evans Building Company, builders of the Fountainhead community.

Fountainhead's family-ready concept is based on the fact that the new homeowner and his family can move into their new home and relax and enjoy it right from the start. The yard is ready for outdoor living; fences up, lawn in and growing, shrubs and trees planted. Inside the house carpeting is installed and drapes are hung so that once furniture is placed it doesn't have to be moved.

In addition to the convenience, the builders have included all these family-ready extras in the low $195 move-in costs.

Located on the corner of Warner and Cannery in Fountain Valley, Fountainhead when completed will consist of 250 homes.

NO ADDED COSTS

"Immediate Livability" proving popular at Fountainhead. All Fountainhead homes are family-ready; lawns, shrubs, trees and fences in; carpeting and drapes installed; a built-in GE kitchen which includes a family sized dishwasher.

Elevated by Walker-Lee

Walker & Lee, Inc. announce the promotion of John Johnson, Bud Bennett and Wes Lohrey to sales managers, according to Bill Cheney, vice president of sub-division sales.

"Sales activity of the Walker & Lee organization reached a new peak during July," said Cheney.

"Their large share in this increased business coupled with their outstanding ability of these three men have more than qualified them for their new positions." John Johnson will be in charge of all new sub-division homes in the Torrance area; Bud Bennett will handle builder Mervin Johnson's three sub-divisions in Orange County and Wes Lohrey heads up Ray Watt's development in Corona.

Garden Park Estates Listing Many First-Time Home Buyers

"Property ownership is fundamentally one of the most satisfying experiences in life," officials of Garden Park Estates in Garden Grove feel "and we've tried to provide that opportunity for as many qualified buyers as possible."

From the continuing and successful growth of their attractive community, many people are now the proud owners of sturdy, good-looking homes.

"Some of the homes we've sold here were first-time purchases for growing families and you can tell by the glow in their eyes what a good feeling buying a home can produce" they stated.

BUILT IN a location attractive because of its nearness to exceptionally outstanding schools; a diverse number of nearby recreational facilities; temperate climate and close proximity to freeways, Garden Park Estates continues as one of the leaders in home sales.

With several good-looking one and two-story floor plans available, the "look-alike" feeling is eliminated and a feeling of individuality retained.

Quality-plus appointments in a Garden Park home include sparkling, fully-automatic kitchens; baths with pullman lavatories, finished with decorator-planned color schemes and sliding glass window walls.

FINANCING is tailored for the individual buyer, with prices ranging from $18,800 to $25,950 complete. VA terms of nothing down except interest rates from 5 1/2%.

Garden Park Estates' furnished model display is open for inspection until dark, at choice of 30 to 35-year FHA loans make these durable Freeway.

Gas Industry to Spend $7.1 Billion in Next 4 Years

The nation's gas industry expects to spend $7.1 billion on construction in the next four years, John E. Heyke, Jr., president of the American Gas Association, has announced.

"Just this year our industry expects to spend nearly $1.7 billion building new facilities to better serve the nation's 35.3 million gas customers," said Heyke, who also is president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co.

The construction survey is made annually by the A.G.A. Bureau of Statistics and covers transmission, distribution, underground storage, production and storage projects.

Final Leisure World Units Are Now Selling

FOR LEISURELY LIVING

Here is a view in a living room of a Leisure World apartment. The final unit of the senior citizen community in Seal Beach is now selling.

The final units are now open for sale at Rossmore Leisure World, 6470-apartment senior citizen community in Seal Beach, reports William G. Brangham, general sales manager.

Over 5,700 of the total number of apartments have been sold in less than a year and a half of selling, he added. Sales at Rossmore Leisure World have mounted to over $70,000,000 so far.

This unique community, one of the nation's largest senior citizens' projects, includes in-home nurse calls, calls to the doctor's office (whether at medical center on premises or to one's own doctor), all drugs, medicines, diagnostic tests and physical therapy treatment in the monthly payment.

THIRTEEN FULL-TIME plus two part-time doctors and 24 full-time nurses are already on duty in the project's medical center. Additionally, various specialists conduct clinics there every week. The $500,200 medical center opened in December.

Included in the down payment of approximately $1,000 is $374 to $419 for a share of stock in Seal Beach Mutual No. 12 and 14. The purchase of this share of stock carries with it the right to occupy a one or two-bedroom apartment of the buyer's choice.

Monthly payments—including principal, interest, taxes, insurance, maintenance, as well as medical care—range from $116.00 to $139.50.

ANYONE 52 years of age or over is qualified to purchase at Leisure World, with no physical examinations necessary for acceptance.

From Long Beach to Leisure World go east on 7th Street to Los Alamitos Boulevard, then right to the sales office and model apartments.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

Management Course to Be Offered Here

An evening seminar on convertible subordinated De-small business management ventures and 150,000 shares for owners and key personnel of Common Stock in units of smaller enterprises will be conducted by the division of business administration at Long Beach State College beginning Sept. 24.

The course is co-sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration. A similar seminar last spring brought an enthusiastic response, according to Dr. Robert Holmes, Long Beach State faculty member and moderator of the seminar.

"Figures show that nearly 7 out of 10 new businesses started in the last five years have failed or withdrawn from operation," Dr. Holmes said. "A study of these failures reveals that the largest single cause by far was poor management."

The seminar, he said, is designed for the owners, managers and key personnel of retailing, wholesaling, small manufacturing, service organizations and financial institutions.

The course consists of eight meetings, each held on a Tuesday evening from 7 to 9:30, beginning Sept. 24 and ending Nov. 12. Tuition cost is $50. Further information may be secured by writing the coordinator, Small Business Management Seminar, Long Beach State College, Long Beach 4, Calif.—or by telephoning GE 3-9051, ext. 328.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that the outstanding units recently issued by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons will be separated beginning next October 1st.

On May 24, 1963, public offering was made of $1,500,000 of the Company's 6 1/2% convertible subordinated De-small business management ventures and 150,000 shares for owners and key personnel of Common Stock in units of smaller enterprises will be conducted by the division of business administration at Long Beach State College beginning Sept. 24.

The units were not transferable separately until December 1, 1963, or such earlier date as might be designated by the company with the consent of the Underwriters.

The October 1, 1963 separation date has now been set by action of the S. V. Hunsaker & Sons Directors.

AI Terrence Carpet Co. has opened its 6th store at 8706 E. Imperial, Downey.

The new unit makes the company the largest volume independently owned and operated chain of carpet specialty stores in the nation, said Jerry Terrence, executive vice president. He announced that a total of 12 stores are planned before the end of 1963.

TWO PROMOTIONS have been announced at Bank of America's Long Beach District Trust Office.

Albert J. Kuhn has been promoted to assistant trust officer and Michael K. Jones has been advanced to assistant cashier and operations officer.

Retires

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sara Greenspan, who served the Theater Guild for 38 of its 44 years, retired in July. She started as a secretary and eventually served for almost 20 years as business manager of the producing organization as well as handling the business of the national affiliate, The Theater Guild-American Theater Society.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN

Meredith Village, Eddy Meredith's $6 million community of 155 fine residences composed of split-level and two-story four, five and six-bedroom homes with two and three-car garages, reports steady traffic and increased interest not only in their "street of furnished models" but their brand new furnished model, the "Stonybrook," now on display. Meredith Village is located on Prospect Avenue just south of Chapman Avenue and is located between Santa Ana, Orange and Tustin.

L.B. Teamsters Win Award

Recipients of the Catholic Labor Institute's 1963 Father Coogan Award, given annually to the labor-management team that has made an outstanding contribution to industrial peace, have been announced.

They are: Douglas Aircraft for management, and Local 148 United Auto Workers; Industrial District Lodges 1578 (Santa Monica) and 720 (El Segundo) International Association of Machinists; Local 578 (Los Angeles) and 692 (Long Beach) Teamsters; Painters District Council No. 36; Culinary Workers and Bartenders Local 814 (Santa Monica); International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 11, and International Union of Stationary Engineers Local 501, for labor.

John Geagan, institute president, said this labor-management team has achieved over a long period of time a constructive, stable and peaceful relationship, culminating in a significant because of the absence of any government re-pressure.

New School in Sol Vista Home Area

Construction is ahead of the $493,900 Bolsa Chica Elementary School being built by the Westminster School District on a 10-acre site at 13552 University, in the heart of the new Sol Vista International Home Fair community.

Approximately 700 students, the majority residents of this Alco-Pacific Construction Co. development, will be enrolled when school doors open in February.

Bolsa Chica Elementary will contain 16 classrooms, a kindergarten, and multi-purpose room. The building, which has a brick exterior, contains 33,674 square feet.

The 565-balanced power residences being built at the Sol Vista International Home Fair contain three, four and five bedrooms, family rooms, two and two and one-half baths. There are one as well as two-story floor plans available.

HOME PRICES range from $27,450 to $28,300. FHA, Cal-Vet and conventional terms may be utilized.

A park site is included in the master plan for this 160-acre project. It is also adjacent to churches, a complex shopping center, the $80,000,000 Douglas Aircraft Missile Space Center, and the Pacific Ocean.

The sales pavilion and five furnished models are on display daily to 8 p.m. at the corner of Westminster Blvd. and Bolsa Chica in Westminster.

through the availability of 10 exterior elevations, including a two-story model—offered at Tiara Estates Fountain Valley is a key factor in the success of the community and the response by buyers," he said.

The bonuses are a 500-square-foot Premium Room in Plan 2, which in turn provides the second bonus: a two-story home in a price range where such elevations are not ordinarily found.

THE BONUS area, over the garage, has gained much favor among those who want a play or hobby room, luxurious private bedroom suite or two extra guest rooms. The model is one of ten exterior elevations at the community which contains 79 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes.

All the homes include carpets, drapes, fenced rear yards and front lawns in the purchase price. Exteriors of the homes are embellished with wood and stone siding and screens, plus shutters.

They have laundry and hobby rooms and den or sewing rooms. Features are central entry halls, large kitchens with built-in range, oven and dishwasher; stone and brick fireplaces with log lighters; hand finished cabinets; sliding glass doors; luminous ceilings; forced air heat; marble pullmans; insulated ceilings, tile showers and wallpaper.

PRICED FROM $17,990 to $21,300, the homes may be purchased by veterans for nothing down. Also available are low FHA terms and conventional financing.

In the heart of growing Fountain Valley, Tiara Estates are close to the new La Quinta High School at Verano and Edinger; and an elementary and junior high school near Ward and Hazard. Nearby is the Broadway-Hale shopping center, under construction, in addition to major employment complexes and recreational facilities, including major beaches five minutes drive from the home.

Model homes are open daily on the southeast corner of Bushard and Heil.

Northgate Homes Open Today In Costa Mesa

An inspiring location, hand-some exteriors, superb construction and meticulous attention to details are the unbeatable combinations that will make Northgate Homes in Costa Mesa one of the fastest-selling developments in Orange County, predicted Charles W. Hester, developer. In preparing for this weekend's grand opening of the new subdivision.

The one and two-story dwellings, complete to draperies and carpeting, need only the families in them to make the community an integral part of Orange County's tremendous growth.

Available in either one-story or two-story plans, Northgate Homes offer features planned for the future. These include Westinghouse built-in range and oven with range hood and fan, dishwasher and disposal in kitchen equipped with ash cabinets topped with genuine Formica.

LIVING ROOMS with sliding glass doors are enhanced by used brick veneer fireplaces with mantles against a paneled wall, as decorative as it is useful. Nylon carpeting in halls, living rooms and master bedrooms and draperies.

Forced air heating ducts in baths as well as in all rooms are serviced by the 30,000 BTU Payne forced air furnace.

Both front and rear yards are landscaped with shrubbery and trees and full coverage underground sprinkler systems. Lawns are seeded and block walls of a uniform 5' 4" are installed.

EARNING the Medallion Award for electrical excellence, Northgate Homes are wired with 220 voltage for range and oven as well as for washer and dryer.

Exteriors are varied with heavy shake shingle roofs on all two-story plans, heavy shake on the front and regular shingle on the rear of the single story dwellings.

The two-story homes feature 500 square feet of room complete with bath and shower, which can adapt itself to the versatility and needs of the owner. A rumpus room, two extra bedrooms, a studio apartment, storage or sewing room are some of the suggestions.

To reach furnished models, drive Pacific Coast Hwy. to Newport Ave. Go north on Newport Ave. to Paularine and turn right to Northgate.

Homes. Available for as little as $595 down, the homes are priced from $23,900, being shown by Walker & Lee.

Sun City to Offer Medical Aid Plans

SUN CITY, Calif.—A comprehensive medical benefits program for Sun City residents has been formulated and will be explained in detail at a series of meetings scheduled in the Town Hall August 26 and 27.

The program, formulated through combined efforts of the Sun City (Arizona) Home Owners Association and the Del E. Webb Corporation, is sponsored by the association. Work on the program has been under way early this year.

Louis R. Inwood, president of the Sun City (Arizona) Home Owners Association, will be in Sun City, Calif. Aug. 26 and 27.

Sun City, Calif., residents may join the plan under the Arizona sponsorship, since that community has already enrolled more than the 1,000 persons required by the underwriters.

The plan is completely voluntary with no adult-age limitations, has in-hospital and out-of-hospital coverage, a choice of three options from which the Sun City residents can make up their own programs. No medical examination is required under the plan.

OFFERED IN COSTA MESA
This is one of the models of Northgate Homes in Costa Mesa which will be seen at the grand opening today. The homes are priced from $23,900.

PRIZE PAINTINGS

Howard Ahmanson (right), chairman of the board of Home Savings & Loan Association, gives Los Angeles Mayor Yorty a preview tour of the firm's traveling art exhibit which will be shown at Home Savings Long Beach branch, 201 E. When the speedboats tee up for the big race Labor Day at Long Beach Marine Stadium, charity profits in a big way.

All money, minus expenses, goes to the sponsoring Pilot Club for contribution to local charities such as Crippled Children's Society.

This year's 18th Annual Inboard Sweepstakes Regatta, 11 a.m., Sept. 2, will be conducted by the Southern California Speedboat Club, the "Club of Champions," under sanction of the American Power Boat Association.

The gate will open at 8 a.m. with children under 14 admitted free.

First, second and third place winners will be awarded trophies donated by the Pilot Club. A cash prize also will be given.

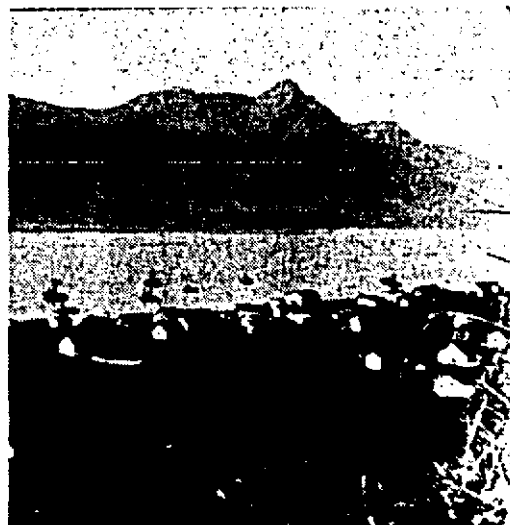

"WE'RE LOOKING forward to a big crowd," says Pilot member Raydon Smith, whose son Lance, 10, is competing in the 1000 cc. class. Lorene Yetz, wife of a pilot, says she expects to see a lot of people.

Kristine Finds Her Frontier In Alaska

OLD HARBOR, fishing village where Kristine teaches, has no streets, no stores, is accessible only by boat or seaplane.

KRISTINE'S STUDENTS, native Aleuts, are pictured on school grounds. As their clothing indicates, climate on Kodiak Island, fed by warm currents, is mild but damp, temperatures seldom drop below zero.

PIONEER-SPIRITED school marm Kristine Madsen models Alaskan fur parka, flashes warm smile before departing for north country.

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Rangy, red-haired and a rugged individualist, Kristine Madsen has only one gripe with life.

Her words: "Trouble is, I was born 100 years too late."

For 22 years she's taken crowded cities, clogged freeways and push-button living in her wide stride, all the while devouring history books and dreaming nostalgically of wide open spaces, covered wagons, log cabins and streams to ford.

But now, just one year out of college, she's made her peace with Father Time. She's found her new frontier—complete with wide open spaces, Indians, even a few wild bears thrown in.

The outpost: Kodiak Island in the Aleutian chain right off the coast of Alaska.

AFTER A YEAR of teaching first and second grade at Old Harbor, the island's largest native village (population 200), she's on her way back for a second-year stand.

She's been in Long Beach this summer visiting old school chums and her school teacher mother, Mrs. Bernice Michelson (first grade, Starr King School), soaking up sunshine, buying supplies and working part-time on Pierpoint Landing's deep-sea fishing boats.

"I plan to make a career of Alaska," she said Saturday, hurriedly packing parka and other supplies in a king-sized bag for the plane trip north.

TO SOMEONE like myself, who digs Paris originals, store-bought hairdos, electric dishwashers and transportation to the corner supermarket, that sounds like quite a sacrifice.

Especially after listening to Kristine's experiences of last year.

"I guess I'm the only teacher afoot who literally slept in her classroom," she quipped with a toss of the head that jangled her sharp-looking earrings (made of bear's teeth).

She not only slept there, her classroom was also her laundry room, sewing room, guest house, conference room, studio and dressing room (clothes hung above the bed, other supplies were stored underneath).

"The bed, separated from the classroom with a confiscated bookcase, made sort of a hallway," she explained. "My 24 students could check every morning to see if I'd made my bed."

KRISTINE'S giant step to the rugged north country came on the heels of her graduation a year ago from the University of California at Santa Barbara.

An elementary education major, she was called in for interviews. "Where would you like to teach?" she was asked.

She couldn't think of anyplace in California. Besides, Lady Fate and Kristine's subconscious seemed to be playing the sound track.

From out of the blue came, "Alaska!" Then the deep freeze: "You're out of your mind," said her counselor. "We've NEVER placed anyone in Alaska."

Said remark only made Kristine more determined. She held out for Alaska. Arrangements were made and to Alaska she went.

KRISTINE'S trip to the land of the unknown was, in itself, quite an experience.

A native of Long Beach and an avid boat-fishing enthusiast, she'd never flown before.

Traveling by one jet to Seattle, another to Anchorage, she deplaned to view her promised land.

About Anchorage, she mused: "My this is a nice little town!" (It's Alaska's largest; population, 44,237.)

Arriving in Fairbanks via prop plane, she sized up the situation with: "How quaint!" A still smaller plane landed her in Kodiak, major city of Kodiak Island. This is downright rustic," she thought.

As the planes got smaller, so did the towns—very MUCH smaller, she recalls.

It's Regatta Time for ABYC

FAVORITE SPOT of sailors in Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's annual Labor Day Regatta next Saturday, Sunday and Monday, is sure to be the galley, manned here by (left to right) Mmes. Barbara Schofield, chairman; Eldon C. Campbell, Theodore C. Matson, Miss Margaret Schofield and Mrs. Arthur F. Glasier.

Individual informal buffets and cocktail parties within the fleets will replace the traditional dinner when Alamitos Bay Yacht Club hosts its annual Labor Day Regatta next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Pacific Cats and the Columbia Challenge will hold their Pacific Coast championships under ABYC in conjunction with the regatta, which is invitational. Bay and ocean races will be held at 12:50 p.m., Saturday and 12:20 and 2:20 p.m. Sunday and Monday.

Albert Vignolo Jr. will be officer of the day on Saturday; C. Roy Conn, Sunday; and Commodore Charles Kober, Monday. Staff Commodore Thomas F. Knight Jr. and Mrs. Knight will be in charge of the ocean races and Larry Hunt of the bay events.

With hundreds of boats participating in the highly competitive regatta the focal point of the skippers and skipperettes will be the galley which will be open all three days. Mrs. Barbara Schofield, chairman, will be assisted by Miss Margaret Schofield, co-chairman, and Mmes. S. E. Thomas, Francis O. Merchant, Eldon E. Campbell, Theodore C. Matson and Arthur F. Glasier Jr.

Peninsula Plans Horse Show

Give 'em love and feed 'em lots of oats is philosophy exercised by (from left) Darcy, Chapin and Hale Field, youngsters of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Field of Portuguese Bend, on a visit to Portuguese Bend Riding Club which will be scene of a national horse show Sept. 21 and 22. Sponsored by Palos Verdes Peninsula Committee of the Children's Hospital, the show will swell the hospital's building fund according to Mrs. Thomas Murphy, show chairman, and Mmes. Robert L. Pruyn and Stephen H. Hinchliffe, co-chairmen. Social high point of the two-day event comes Sunday evening when exhibitors are honored at a supper dance on the riding club courtyard.

Wayfarers' Is Setting for Nuptials

Wayfarers' Chapel, Portuguese Bend, was scene Saturday evening of a nuptial service uniting Beverly A. Farmer, daughter of Mrs. Lee H. Farmer, 3224 Rutgers Ave., and the late Mr. Farmer, and Charles A. LaGrone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. LaGrone, 6220 Myrtle Ave.
The bride chose for her double ring vows, a street length gown of peau de sole and Chantilly lace fashioned by her mother. A jeweled crown of lilies of the valley held her veil and she carried white carnations with a white orchid.
Included in the entourage

were Mrs. Elden Clement, matron of honor; Charles Barnes, best man; and Russell Miller and James D. Johnson, ushers.
A RECEPTION followed in the Miraleste home of the matron of honor. The newlyweds will be at home in Long Beach following a Lake Tahoe honeymoon trip. Both young persons were graduated from Jordan High School. The bride also is an alumna of Long Beach City College.

Summer Fun--Tootenannies, Teas and Trips

Surely if you listened attentively Saturday afternoon you heard from the hills over yonder the strum of guitars, the twang of ukies, the pinkpink of banjos.
Thought it was the Hatfields and the McCoy's making up didn't you?
Nay, 'twas none other than the Junior Leaguers plus spouses whooping it up at Portuguese Bend Beach Club at a "Tootehanny."
You read right. That's what they called it. "Tootehanny"—hootenanny spelled sideways or upside down for reasons only the Leaguers know.
The toot began in early afternoon and the hours were whiled away with swimming, volleyball, bar-becuing and singing. Just a few in on all this bizz were Paula and Ralph Irwing, Jill and Bob Roberts, Bettye and Carl Spath, Veda and Don Wells, Mary and Jim Wil-lingham, Dianne and Terry Barkis and Jean and Jim Steller (banjo player par excellence).
LOU HOSKING left this week to spend a month visiting her friend of many years Atala Hanbery at her Lake Tahoe home.
TEA TIME on the peninsula of recent days found 60 gathering at Mil Cameron's home to honor Judy Johnson who will become the bride Friday of Mil's son, Alex Woodard. Contemporaries of Judy's were there as well as her mother, Ann Palmer and grandmother, Clara Mitchell, and a throng of other best-wishers.
Assisting in seeing that everyone knew everyone were Caye Elliott, Pat Woodward, Bonnie Ridder, Lucille Crosby, Anne Tankersley, Julie Lawson and Betty Bixby.
Miscellaneous shower gifts, big, small, practical and delightfully "im" were presented Judy on Monday when Caye entertained 30 friends in her Los Cerritos home.

ADMIRING ATTRACTIVE fall ensembles to be shown during "Fashion Forecast" Sept. 10 are Mrs. Robert Albright, president of 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated, and Mrs. Gustaf H. Erickson, chairman and commentator of anticipated event at Lafayette Hotel. Among members of the GOP group modeling that day will be (from left on stage) Mmes. Charles Bartell, Hugh H. Prichard, Sue Prichard. Tickets may be obtained from any member.

High Time for High Fashion!

One of the earliest fall showings in Long Beach of high fashion designs is scheduled for Sept. 10 when the 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated salutes autumn with a fashion luncheon in International Ballroom of Lafayette Hotel. Trim members of the group will model exciting attire from The Parisienne during the affair which the sponsoring group calls "Fashion Forecast." Represented will be such well known designers as Marjorie Michaels, Edward Abbott, Abe Schrader, Harvey Berlin and Charles Cooper.

Complementing the street ensembles and evening wear will be furs from Lockwood's.

TALENTS OF a skilled decorator will be utilized in carrying out the decorations which will blend with the ballroom's new gold and green theme. Autumnal flowers and foliage will set the mood for the warm color selection in the show.

A special guest of honor will be Mrs. Ivy Baker Stevens, former treasurer of the United States and now a resident of Beverly Hills. Also invited to attend is Hedda Hopper, Hollywood columnist.

GUESTS will begin arriving at 11 a.m. that day for a reception. Luncheon is scheduled at noon, with the fashion show to follow at 1 p.m. The Paul King Trio will provide background music during the event.

Mrs. Gustaf H. Erickson is chairman and commentator of the show. Her vice-chairmen are Mmes. Raymond Grobaty, Jerry Sims, J. T. Spivey and Annette Brewer.

Serving on various committees as chairmen are Mmes. D. W. Dotson, William R. Atkinson, Walter Dean, Fred Looney, R. L. Schmidt and Gerald Secord, and Miss Ann Cole.

Mrs. Robert Albright, club president, will welcome the large throng expected.

MEMBERS modeling that day will be Mmes. Hugh Prichard, Lloyd P. Mallin, James Brennan, Marvin Garvin, Glenn B. Scott, Charles Bartell, William R. Atkinson and Nann Holsapple, and Misses Sue Prichard, Sharon Ballagh and Pamela Kildebeck.

Reservations for the fashion event may be made with Mrs. Henry Bloem, 1904 E. 1st St.; Mrs. Ola Dowdy, 2117 E. 6th St.; Ann Cole, 3727 Orange Ave., or any member of the committee.

To Honor Youth

For some 100 Long Beach and Orange County teenagers, summer vacation hasn't been one round of surfing and lazing on the beach with one ear on a transistor radio.

These youngsters have spent part of the vacation since June 17 as volunteers at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, supplementing the adult volunteers.

In recognition of the excellent work of these young people, the hospital staff and adult sponsors of the youth program will give a recognition party Thursday afternoon in the area of the hospital's outdoor swimming pool.

AFTER A SWIM and a picnic, the group will be presented with certificates of recognition for their services during these summer months. Many of the youths have accumulated more than 100 hours of volunteer work during the summers of 1962 and '63, and will receive 100-hour certificates from the hospital staff.

The youth volunteer group has proved so effective that the program will resume Sept. 23 for the winter months. Young people will provide escort service in the large hospital after school hours.

Typical of the young volunteer groups is the "Stripettes" who report for duty each Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to assist with escort service, office work, lab work, therapy and X-ray filing.

SPONSORED BY the Rossmore Woman's Club, the "Stripettes" consist of 24 regularly hospital-scheduled volunteers representing five high schools — Poly and Millikan in Long Beach, Lakewood High, Western of Anaheim and Huntington High in Huntington Beach.

They work under leadership of Mrs. W. L. Dimmett, veterans affairs chairman of the club, who herself devotes much of her time to the VA Hospital. In addition to escort service with the Rossmore club's "Stripes" (adult volunteer service office). In April she received her 1,000 hour award for devotion of duty.

Other organizations providing the bright-eyed, cheerful teen-agers to assist in otherwise routine duties about the hospital are the Red Cross, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

Pioneer Families Joined at Rites

Five hundred guests attended the candlelight ceremony uniting in marriage Linda Sully, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charles Sully, and William Davis McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hugh McCullough, at California Heights Methodist Church Saturday evening.

The bride wore a formal gown of silk linen with guipure lace detail and a chapel length train. Her floor length veil fell from a silk blossom head piece.

Louise Sully attended her sister as maid of honor. Tony Sparks served the bridegroom as best man. The bridesmaids, all attired in long willow green gowns and carrying yellow bougainvilleas, included Helen Sully, Sandra Hubbell, Mmes. Tony Sparks and Robert Banks.

Ushers were Michael Driscoll, Frederick Griggs, Charles Durnin and Derek McWhinney.

A champagne reception followed the ceremony at Virginia Country Club.

THE NEW Mrs. McCullough is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and attended Long Beach City College, University of Southern California and Long Beach State College. She affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Her husband is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo and USC.

The couple will make their home in Long Beach on their return from a Hawaiian honeymoon.

Ebell Brunch Series Ends

Under the direction of Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, members of Group Y of Ebell of Long Beach will serve the last in a series of summer brunches at the Ebell Clubhouse Wednesday.

Group chairman, Mrs. U. B. Killingsworth, will be assisted by Mmes. Will H. Winston, Gustav Kretschmer, A. George Downing, R. E. Dunlavey, G. A. Lackey and King C. Light.

Reservations for the 11 a.m. or 11:30 a.m. serving may be made by calling Mrs. Killingsworth or Mrs. Guy Hodson.

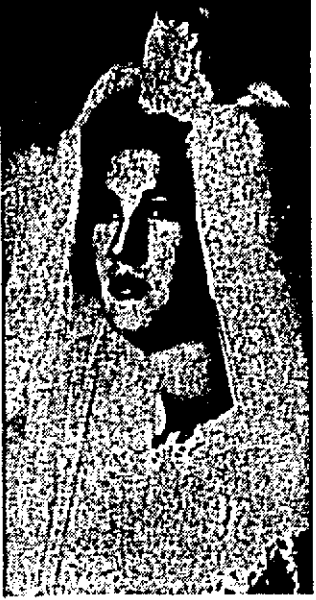

Door prizes will be awarded and card games played following the brunch.

Moland-Glover

Patricia Dean Glover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Glover, 1631 Linden Ave., became the bride of Gerhard Michael Moland of this city in an Aug. 20 ceremony at Atlantic Ave. Methodist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza trimmed with lace. A seed pearl crown held her veil and she carried stephanotis with rosebuds.

Miss Oweda Greer was maid of honor and Miss Janice Shugart was bridesmaid.

Son of Dr. and Mrs. O. G. Moland, Augusta, Wis., the bridegroom was served by David Rucks, best man, and Lt. Stanley Long and Joseph Gathright, ushers.

The newlyweds will return today from a honeymoon trip to Laguna and will reside at 1952 Pine Ave.

Mrs. Moland was graduated from Polytechnic High School and will complete studies at Long Beach State College in January. Her husband attended Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., and Officers Candidate School in Newport, R.I. He served as a lieutenant (j.g.) with the Navy for three years.

Education Department at Marshall Junior High School, became the bride of Lt. (j.g.) Philip Roland Garr, USCGR, in an Aug. 18 ceremony in University Presbyterian Church, Seattle, Wash.

The newlyweds, both graduates of University of Washington where she was a member of Sigma Kappa, W Key, Totem, Phi Epsilon Chi and Chi Phi Sigma, and he of Delta Chi, will reside in Long Beach while the bridegroom serves as operations officer at the Coast Guard Base, Terminal Island.

Daughter of Earl Stanford of Seattle and the late Mrs. Stanford, the bride was gown in silk and reem-broidered Alencon lace with a matching crown holding her veil. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis with stephanotis and showers of ivy.

Sapphire blue sheath dresses with matching overskirts were worn by Mrs. Edward Garneau, matron of honor, and Mrs. Richard Strand, Mrs. Ronald Tracy and Janice Rottler.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland B. Garr, Vancouver, Wash., was served by B. Dale Kuhnhausen, best man, and Hubert R. Swanson, Errol Garr and Frederick P. Smith, ushers.

Ronald Schroeder exchanged wedding vows before 250 guests on Aug. 16. Setting was California Heights Methodist Church.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mrs. Hazel S. Schroeder, 2831 Tigertail Drive, and Mrs. Eugene L. Rukes, 3244 Lewis Ave.

The bride selected a full length sheath gown of swiss-embroidered lace with a matching crown. She carried spider mums.

Cheryl Rukes, maid of honor, and Becky Gates, Lynne McClure, Susie Strong, and Diane Eldred, bridesmaids, and Nancy Rukes, junior bridesmaid, attended the bride.

Butch Van Holt was best man and ushering duties were performed by Bill Crawford, Jack Miller, Warren James, Marty Duserre and George Tingom.

The newlyweds are at home in Long Beach after a Las Vegas honeymoon trip.

The bride is a member of Delta Delta Delta and Daughters of Diana at State; her husband is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Elmore-

Ekhoff

Now on a honeymoon trip to Levelland, Tex., are Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Dwain Elmore (nee Susan Lynn Ekhoff) who were married Aug. 17 in First Methodist Church.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ekhoff, 105 Roswell Ave., the bride chose for her vows a bouffant tilly lace and illusion net.

Her bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis surrounding an orchid on a floor length gown of Chantilly.

Irene Baker was maid of honor and Mary Baker and Mrs. Charles William Ekhoff Jr., were bridesmaids. Completing the wedding party were R. Thomas Ing, best man; Charles W. Ekhoff Jr. and Johnnie F. Koval, ushers; Elizabeth Ann Eisler, flower girl; and Bobby Baker, ring bearer.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Elmore, Fontana, received early schooling there and now is a student at Chaffey Junior College. The pair will reside in Ontario.

He Says He's Retired--Is He?

George Wallace is retired. Or so he says. All he does is chauffeur the disabled, pick up supplies, work the addressograph, organize campaign material and do about 50 other jobs as a volunteer worker for the Community Volunteer Office.

He's extra busy now, because he has inherited many of the jobs of S. M. Young, another "retired" volunteer worker, who has moved to another city.

When he and Young worked together, they not only handled a good deal of the driving jobs for the office, but when they came to work brought the sweet rolls for the employee coffee break as well.

HEMMEED IN by campaign material, Community Volunteer Office workers (from left) Mary Eidy, George Wallace and Sue McKee give their time to preparation for the United Way fund drive. Every week 87 Long Beach area people serve a need in a volunteer job, placed by CVO.

EVERY WEEK 870 Long Beach area people serve a need in a volunteer job, placed by the Community Volunteer Office. Eighty-six local agencies and clinics call on CVO when they need volunteers.

Any person with extra time is welcome as a volunteer. There is such a variety of jobs to be filled, that no matter what talent or experience the volunteer has, something will be found for him, according to Clara Andrews, executive director.

CVO has a weekly article which appears in the I, P-T which has had a wonderfully generous response to appeals for everything from chess players to French speaking readers.

In March of this year, the Community Volunteer Office moved into new quarters in the handsome, modern Fairfield Community Services Building at 3515 Linden Ave. Formerly a Community Chest agency, it is now an agency of United Way.

Among other services given by CVO, is the Long Beach Calendar of Events.

VOLUNTEERS of any age, creed, race or ability are welcome at CVO. This summer, many young people have worked an enormous number of hours. They have given their time to the Junior Friendly Visitors, a group that visits the aged and ill in nursing homes. They have helped at the Braille Institute Blind Camp, at the City Health Department and the Escort Service at the Veterans' Hospital.

A young group of musicians of junior and high school age have organized an orchestra, Don's Twilights, "we play like Lawrence Welk," that plays for the Sunset Club and other groups.

The CVO office bustles with activity and reports from busy volunteers.

One volunteer has been driving a little boy to a clinic for treatment while his mother was in the hospital having a new baby.

"You know what he told me today," he chuckled.

"He said, 'Today mother is coming home and we are going to take the new baby on a picnic!'"

Oswald Jacoby Club to Hear Think to Add Tricks of Pageant

Good defense is far tougher than good dummy play. Somehow or other it is much harder to visualize the division of cards between your partner and the declarer than for declarer to visualize the division between his opponents.

West opened the six of hearts and East's king lost to declarer's ace. South led a diamond to dummy's jack, then tried the club finesse.

At this point most defenders would simply lead the jack of hearts in order to establish some heart tricks. West was not the ordinary defender. He took time out to think. What did declarer hold for his opening bid? The ace and queen of hearts made 6 points. The king of diamonds made nine and the ace of clubs 13.

COULD East hold either the king of diamonds or the ace of clubs? No! If he had High lights from the recently concluded International Beauty Congress will be discussed by James H. Crooker, president, and Samuel C. Cameron, IBC executive board member, when Alamitos Bay Garden Club meets at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in the H. LeRoy Wagner home, 6910 E. Ocean Blvd.

Mrs. Cameron, club vice president and program chairman, will present the guests of honor. Also to be honored are Mrs. Crooker and club members who were pageant hostesses, Mmes. Leroy A. Jensen, Albert C. S. Ramsey and Donald B. Truitt.

Mrs. Don Gillespie will preside. Mrs. Robert M. Mills, chairman, will be assisted by Mmes. Donald L. Adams, William W. Barrick, Scott Gillespie, George B. Knorr, Mary M. Lyon and John A. Vance.

To Live in San Diego

Helen Therese Gibbons, daughter of Mrs. Francis C. Gibbons, Long Beach, repeated wedding vows Aug. 24 in St. Cyprian Catholic Church to become the bride of John Philip Baumgarten, son of Dr. and Mrs. O. Charles Baumgarten of San Diego.

She was attired in an ivory silk taffeta and Alencon lace gown with chapel train. The soft folds of her veil were attached to a crown of lilies of the valley. She carried a cascade of white Jassett orchids and stephanotis.

FOR HER matron of honor the bride chose her sister, Mrs. Carl S. Morabito Jr. Bridesmaids were Patricia Lowry and Karen Weitzul.

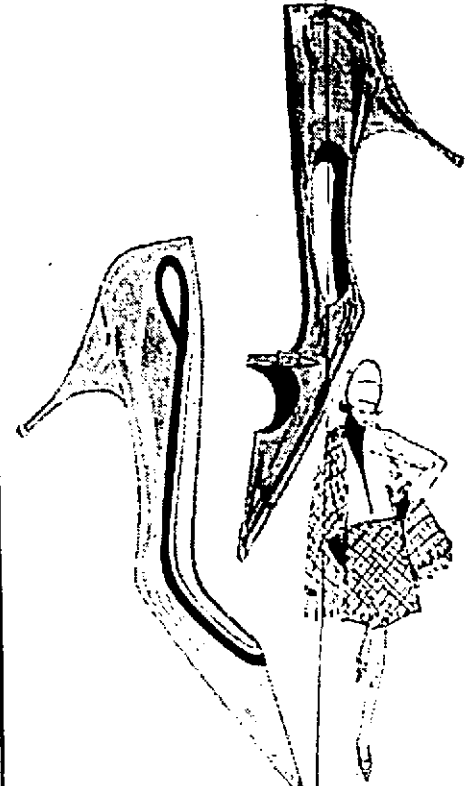

Richard Serrano attended the bridegroom as best man. The 200 wedding guests were seated by Wayne Ferris and Jim Baumgarten.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel and San Francisco, the young couple will establish their home in San Diego.

The new Mrs. Baumgarten was graduated from St. Anthony's High School and from Immaculate Heart College where she was a Delta Chi Phi. The bridegroom is attending the University of San Diego and is a member of Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity.

Kristine Finds Her Frontier in Alaska

After boarding the tiny seaplane for Old Harbor (only way to get there, except by boat), she held her breath.

Twenty minutes later she landed, viewed her domain through the window and gasped: "THIS is a town?"

TOWN IT ISN'T; native village it is. On a mile-wide ledge bordered on one side by mountains, on the other by water, Old Harbor is dotted by some 20 houses, abodes of native fishermen who, Kristine found, abound in large families.

There are no streets, only gravel paths; no eating places, no doctors, no hospital. The only other edifices, besides houses, are a church, a mission, a schoolhouse and a small general store ("supplies are flown in once a week, are swooped up the first day").

There are no native trees; there ARE many native bears, however, who lurk in the barren volcanic mountains behind the village.

The island is home of the Kodiak brown bear, largest carnivorous animal in the world.

"You don't dare stray from the village without a gun or without an escort WITH a gun," Kristine warned me (not that I'll ever be there to heed her warning).

KRISTINE'S resounding welcome when she landed helped ease her into frontier life and fortified her for surprises to come. Surprises like these:

The new schoolhouse (two classrooms and living quarters) due to open in September, was not completed. She had to set up home and classroom in a storeroom behind the old school building.

Only other white people on the island were two teachers (a man and his wife, who occupied living quarters in the school) and a Baptist missionary.

All her students were native Aleuts, a flavorful mixture of Russian, Indian, Eskimo and Scandinavian, who speak Aleut and slaughtered English. Seven out of 13 had failed first grade the year before.

But Kristine Madsen seemed as different to the natives as they did to her. Five-foot-ten (in her stocking feet) with flaming red hair, Kristine became a pillar of strength to youngsters in the community. She played the role of teacher 24 hours a day.

"None of the children had ever seen red hair before," said Kristine. "Often they'd ask to touch it."

MAKING HER own history, Kristine looks back with nostalgia on the year she learned to know all the villagers, explored new ways of teaching, sampled native foods (wild celery, sea lion liver, sea gull eggs, roast beaver), ate Thanksgiving dinner with the school construction gang in their tent during a torrential downpour ("the tent leaked, so we used a shower curtain for the tablecloth") and learned to live with hardships as diversified as Canada's terrain. Last year, only three of her students failed. Because of progress made, she asked for the assignment a second year.

What after that? "I hope to be assigned to a one-teacher school somewhere in Alaska!"

SHE'S FOUND her challenge in the 49th state—the largest in area, smallest in population (entire state has 100,000 LESS people than Long Beach).

"There's great opportunity in Alaska for enterprising people," Kristine believes. "It's currently in the same stage of development as California was 75 years ago. Finding is tremendous, vast natural resources are virtually untapped, construction is a great demand."

"True, prices are exorbitant (a foods are flown in; eggs are often $1 a dozen; fresh fruits and vegetables are almost prohibitive). But wages are on a high scale, too (Canada's wages are 20 per cent higher than other states.)"

Kristine's starting pay last year was $6,350; this year it will go up to $7,220 (that, with living quarters furnished).

NOW THAT the new school building is completed, she'll occupy living quarters in the vacated school, sharing them with a new lady teacher from San Jose.

Kristine reflects the determination of a construction worker in Alaska who remarked: "You can do anything you're big enough to do here."

And with pioneering spirits like Kristine's, anything can happen in Alaska.

All Signs Point to A Love on the Wane

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

I'm a very troubled teenager. You'll probably think I'm making a mountain out of a molehill, but I'm really not. You see, I've been going steady with this boy for about three months. He swears he loves me and I think he does.

BUT he is so terribly careless about dates. He'll ask me to go to the movies with him, then maybe a half hour before he is to pick me up he'll call with some excuse and break the date. He has done this four times recently.

Last night he was to take me on a picnic with a bunch of kids. I waited for him for an hour, then called his house and his mother said he was out but she didn't know where. He never did pick me up and I had to go on the picnic by myself.

I haven't heard from him today and I'm simply sick at heart—LONELY LAURA.

DEAR LONELY:

Phooey on this lad. The facts simply scream that he takes you very lightly indeed, and don't go on kidding yourself about this love stuff.

Next time you make a

Dear Molly Mayfield

date, YOU be the one to break it, and see how he likes those apples. You've nothing to lose—and you might teach him a lesson.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Recently I read a letter in your column from a woman who grieved over her son's indifference and naturally blamed the daughter-in-law.

I understand her position perfectly. I, too, had an only son, was widowed when he was eight. We were very close. When he got married his wife proceeded to entertain HER mother and father at least twice a week; sisters, brothers and cousins, too.

In 20 years I have never been invited to their home for a meal.

I thought it over carefully and decided if my son was so lacking in love and will power, then I shouldn't blame the wife. HE is to blame. If and when he asserts himself, I will be glad to see him. Not until.

Believe me, Molly, a brain-washed husband is not worthy of being a son.—ABOVE IT ALL.

DEAR ABOVE:

Bravo! It's about time that some mothers-in-law who always choose to blame the son's wife were advised to think it over and point the finger of blame at the weak one, their darling, precious, son.—M.M.

THE HOWARDS have lived in Long Beach since their marriage here Aug. 28, 1938, at the Church of Christ.

She is the daughter of Alpheus H. Austin, Long Beach. Her husband, originally from Springfield, Mo., is a member of Long Beach 327, Free and Accepted Masons and has been employed by an oil company here since 1941.

Mrs. Howard is second vice president of Mother's Club of Pepperdine College and a member of the executive board of Associated Women for the same institution. She is a charter and life member of the latter organization.

Island Honeymoon for Pair

When Martha Lou Hunsaker became the bride Aug. 24 of Dan Norman Baker, 400 guests assembled for the evening ceremony in First Baptist Church.

The wedding vows united the families of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hunsaker of the Belmont Heights area and Mrs. Ann Baker of Downey.

For their honeymoon destination, the young people chose Hawaii and will be at home in Downey upon their return.

FOR HER WEDDING the bride chose a gown of peau de soie with bell shaped skirt handed in Alencon lace reembodyered with pearls. A rose at the waistline held a detachable chapel train. A crown of lace and pearls caught the soft folds of her three-tiered veil of silk illusion, and the bridal bouquet was of spider chrysanthemums and gardenias.

Jane Newcomb and Richard Scott were maid of honor and best man respectively. Others in the entourage were Mmes. Richard Scott, Harold Tiegs, David Shindler and Miss Krenwinkel, attendants; Sherwood Morf, Michael Goodman, Donald Hunt, Rev. Doyle Edson, Larry Ezzell and Robert Ezzell, ushers, and Kelly Ezzell, flower girl.

BOTH WERE GRADUATED from Wilson High School. The new Mrs. Baker attended the University of Redlands and is now a senior at Long Beach State College. She is a member of Delta Gamma and of Chapter DP of PEO.

The bridegroom was graduated from Baylor University, Waco, Tex., where he was senior class president, and was a member of the Baylor Chamber of Commerce before returning to Southern California.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

George Directs --Gourmet Feast

By MILDRED K. KLANARY
L. P. T. Food Editor

He "directs" all day and writes notes to himself most of the night. Such is the quick-minded, creative nature of today's Chef of the Week, Duane George, associate director of Long Beach Recreation Department. He succeeded "Chef" "Doc" Harnett.

There's a note pad beside his bed at all times for his spontaneous thoughts.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, George spent most of his early life on a farm in Michigan. He went to Canyon City, Colo., for high school, but came to Long Beach in 1928 because of our Junior College. He especially liked its curriculum.

Following graduation, he enrolled at UCLA and earned his BA degree in psychology and education, then switched to USC for his MA and General secondary teaching credentials. He has 25 additional credits in supervision and administration.

GEORGE joined Long Beach Recreation Department in 1930, after serving as play director, supervisor, administrative assistant and assistant director. He was appointed to his present position in 1962. In fact, George had simultaneously received an assignment from the State Department to serve for three months as a American Specialist in Youth Work for South Africa. He declined it to take the Long Beach appointment.

His accomplishments have been many. He received the 1963 Layman of the Year Award from the Long Beach Ministerial Association and the Fellowship Award given by California Park & Recreation Society. In 1960 he was presented a 30-year Service Pin by the City of Long Beach.

George was a lecturer at the Administrators' Institute National Recreation Association Society, 1961-63. Chairman personnel standards committee, American Recreation Society in 1960, he also served as chairman, California Board of Recreation Personnel.

HE WAS a member of the National Recreation Association in-service-training committee, 1959, and the Pacific Southwest personnel committee, 1960. George also served on the National Board of Registration for American Society in 1961 through '63.

A past president, Pi Sigma Epsilon, national recreation fraternity, George is also a past president, California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Southern Section. He formerly served on the Board of Management, Long Beach Community Welfare Council. Active in the First Congregational Church, he's vice chairman of the Board of Trustees.

George writes well, too. Among his many published articles, he's best known for "Public Recreation in Long Beach" which appeared in the Recreation Magazine, September '57, and "An Adventure Play Project" in "American City" in September 1958.

There is usually a "prelude to dinner" in the George home. Anything of importance which he wishes to share with his family, Eve (Mrs. G), Mike, 25, and Steve, 22, is placed in front of their plate. Then he won't forget.

An excellent listener and a wonderful counselor, George always has a way of removing obstacles. He never mislays his enthusiasm for helping people with their problems. His psychology major has stood him well.

Our "Chef" has an aptitude for finding interesting tree and bush formations, then basing them. He has a collection second to none. He loves to putter, but he's especially well-trained and handy in the kitchen cleanup crew. Today he's barbecuing Rock Cornish Hens.

Teel-Sutton

Engagement of Millikan High School graduates Pamela Teel and Larry Allan Sutton is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Teel. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Sutton, also of Long Beach.

The wedding will take place Oct. 25.

Terney-Muhlenberg

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Terney of Honolulu, Hawaii, announce betrothal of their daughter, Jackie, to Brent J.

Set Card Party

A card party is planned for Wednesday at Machinist's Hall by Long Beach Claretian Guild. Canasta, 500, contract and pinochle will be played. Refreshments will be served at noon, with the party to follow, according to Mrs. Margaret Musick and her committee.

1 tsp. celery salt
Stir and heat without boiling. After soaking quarter slices of bread in the heated mixture, place one piece in each open end of each bird. Close with small skewer pins.

After washing and drying exterior of hens, brush with oil of your choice, or butter, and sprinkle lightly with seasoning salt.

Place hens on barbecue over a thin bed of charcoal that is already hot. After the spit has turned for 1/2 hour, brush the meat with oil a second time. Each 15 minutes thereafter until hens are cooked (about 1 1/2 hours) brush with barbecue sauce prepared by mixing TWO portions of tomato catsup, and ONE portion each of Worcestershire sauce and orange juice.

One-half hour before taking birds from broiler, scatter hickory chips that have been pre-soaked in water, over the coals. This gives smoke flavor.

One game bird makes an ample individual serving. Delicious hot or cold.

Bernstein to Appear at Bowl

One of the foremost singers of Israel, Netania Davrath, will make her debut at Hollywood Bowl Tuesday night as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Walter Hendl will conduct.

Following the Davrath concert, the New York Philharmonic conducted by Leonard Bernstein will appear Thursday, Friday and Sunday nights.

The Saturday night "Pops" will be "Encores of the American Musical Theater," conducted by Frank De Vol, with Earl Wrightson, baritone; Lois Hunt, soprano; and the Jack Haloran singers.

All five concerts during the week will be at 8:30 p.m.

AS LEADING soprano of the Israeli Opera, Miss Davrath has sung Mimi in "La Boheme" and other principal roles, and has also won an international reputation for her folk songs.

On her Bowl program Tuesday night, she will sing several Hebrew songs, a group of folk songs; and in addition, Tatiana's Letter Scene from "Eugene Onegin" by Tchaikowsky.

BERNSTEIN will present the gifted young pianist, Andre Watts on the Thursday program. Anna Moffo, Metropolitan Opera coloratura, will be soloist Friday. For the final New York Philharmonic event Sunday night violinist Jascha Heifetz and cellist Gregor Piatigorsky will play the Brahms "Double Concerto."

EXPERT'S OPINION

Art is something you buy for your own enjoyment, says Vincent Price. Some 200 works which he collected in Europe will be shown for 10 days at Sears, Roebuck and Co., Long Beach, beginning Aug. 28. The collection includes old masters such as Rembrandt and Goya, outstanding contemporary artists and "masters of the future." Prices range from $25 to $1,000. The works to be displayed here have not been seen in any other exhibit in the Southland.

Date for Belafonte Is Changed

Harry Belafonte and Company continues a record-breaking pace at the Greek Theater, Los Angeles. The exponent of the calypso, folk song and popular ballad is making his sixth appearance at the outdoor playhouse through Sept. 7.

Patrons holding tickets for the Wednesday, Aug. 28, performance are notified that it has been canceled. Exchange will be made for other available performances or refunded either at the box office or by mail. An extra date, Sunday, Sept. 1, has been added to the remaining schedule.

On Stage---

In Choosing Art, Begin by Looking

(Editor's Note: What is an original work of art? How do you go about selecting art for the home or office? Vincent Price, whose collection of fine art will be shown here by Sears, Roebuck and Co., gives his guidelines to art selection in the following article.)

By VINCENT PRICE

First, let's get over the popular misconception that original art is an oil painting on canvas. Oil paint can be used on boards, cardboard paper, silk, or any material that will hold it. Many modern painters use composition boards.

Some of the greatest works of art are not oil paintings at all, but watercolors and gouaches, which are more opaque than watercolors, but use water as the medium.

The old masters often painted on wood panels covered with gesso, a superfine plaster, using eggwhite as the binder or medium, with finely ground natural minerals and earth for colors. This is tempera. Later, they glazed the tempera with oil paints or colored varnishes.

NO LESS important or valuable are the drawings in ink, pencil, crayon or charcoal which the artists did either as notes for future paintings or simply for their own pleasure.

The graphic arts—etching, drypoint, woodcut, engraving, aquatint, lithography and others—are the artists' solutions to turning out more than one example of their work. Usually, they limited the number of prints for a plate either by choice or because the plate wore out.

AN ORIGINAL work of art denotes the all-important fact that it comes directly from the artist's hand or was under his personal supervision. There are many reproductions today done to fool the purchaser. Mechanical processes are used to reproduce watercolors, and it's very difficult to tell the real from the false—but one has value, the other little or none.

In buying original art the first thing to do is go out and look. My sources of art include museums, galleries, bookstores, interior decorators, art schools and individual artists.

AFTER YOU'VE looked, decide on what you like. The name of the artist should be secondary in the consideration of his work. Keep in mind that everyone has different taste. Art is something you buy for your own enjoyment, and not even all the greatest masterpieces appeal to everyone.

Art buying should be a mutual thing. I would not buy a painting without first consulting my wife.

ART CLASSES offered through Orange Coast College and sponsored by Artists League of Seal Beach are still open to interested applicants. Classes are held at the Art Center, Ocean Boulevard and Main Street, Seal Beach.

Registration will take place Monday through Wednesday and Sept. 4 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Orange Coast College, 7501 Fairview Road, Costa Mesa.

Scheduled classes and instructors include: mosaics, Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., Jean Hudson; Intermediate

Variety in Film Fare

"Umbrella," one of the Long Beach Public Library's September circuit films comes highly recommended by the National Association of Mental Hygiene. According to Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian, it should be useful for groups concerned with youth problems. Through the eyes and imagination of a boy in revolt against parents and society, the events of a day unfold. The child's feelings of loneliness, rejection, humiliation, his unconscious distortion of facts—all of these are communicated to the viewer through sensitive photography and musical effects rather than through dialogue.

OTHER 16mm films which may be borrowed this month are: "City Out of Time," "Earth Satellites," Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra—Moscow Concert," "Nineteen Trees," "People of Alaska," "Philippines: Land and People," "Puss in Boots," "Settling the Great Plains," "Switzerland," "They Steamed to Glory," "Carnival in Quebec," "Fishing the Last Frontier" and "One Road."

Gobel in 'Birdie' at Poor Casting Ruins Opera

By RACHEL MORTON

I. P. T. MUSIC CRIME

I have a gripe to air in my column today. It concerns opera impresarios, and would-be opera impresarios. And it is about the very poor judgment many of them use in casting lead singers for their productions.

As I have noted many times, an opera or operetta is only as good as its principal singers. It does not matter if the staging, chorus and lighting are all excellent—if the singing is bad, the performance is lost. A vivid example of this was seen in the Laguna Beach Festival of Opera production of "Rigoletto" recently in the Irvine Bowl. Grand opera was being tested as to popularity in Laguna and its future was being dangerously risked (although last season's productions were excellent) by bad casting in some of the roles. Although there are very fine operatic tenors right here in our midst who have appeared successfully with the Los Angeles Opera Company and the San Francisco Opera, male leads who were most disappointing were imported for this opera.

George Gobel, one of the top laugh-getters in show business, opens Tuesday night in "Bye Bye Birdie" at Melodyland Theater in Anaheim, with dancing-singing star Elaine Dunn as his leading lady.

"Gypsy," starring Patrice Wymore, closes its two-week run tonight.

Stuart Damon, who scored in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," will play the part of Conrad Birdie. Lew Parker, a comedy star of the nightclub circuit and his wife, Betty Kean, are cast in important roles.

Gobel is cast as the manager of guitar-banging rock 'n' roll singer, the "birdie" of the title, who is drafted into the army. The farewell ceremonies for the darling of the teen-squealer set get hilariously fouled up in the course of one of Broadway's funniest musicals.

Elaine Dunn was a sensation in "Bye Bye Birdie" in its Las Vegas debut.

"Bye Bye Birdie" is the last of Melodyland Theater's current summer season series.

The fall season opens Sept. 10 with "Firefly," starring Anna Maria Alberghetti.

LOVE IN OLD VIENNA

"I'd like it better if you were single," says Little Miss (Pamela Dunlap) to a wandering husband (David Emmes) in Arthur Schnitzler's "La Ronde" playing Thursday through Sunday evenings at the Off-Broadway Theater, 211 Lime.

Nolde Retrospective Show Is Impressive

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The major retrospective of the paintings, drawings, and graphics of Emil Nolde continues for one more week (through Sept. 1) at the Pasadena Art Museum. The first impact is color, expressionistic color, fauvist (wild beast) color. Nolde painted for the last 50-odd of his 88 years, and this show reflects a fantastic productivity, an indelible originality, and a passionate spirit.

Rather than chronologically, the show is hung in groupings. The earlier works, from around the turn of the century, are in the first room. Here, the self-taught artist worked in a similar spirit to Van Gogh though detail is summarized and color is more brutal. The next gallery is full of flowers, elegant quick watercolor studies, rapturous full-color oils. The most vivid is "Great Poppies—Red, Red, Red" of 1942 though "Sunflowers in the Storm" of the following year vies with its orange yellows, purple, and blue-green.

THE NEXT salon reflects the North German mysticism of Nolde the peasant, close to the earth and to folklore. Here are a "Last Supper" and an "Entombment" as well as a shocking triptych, "Mary of Egypt," and a rather lovely "Christ with Children."

Nolde was sent out by the German government in 1912 to study its then island possessions in the South Seas. The next room contains portraits of the people he saw on this trip, bearded Russians in fur caps, plum-skinned New Guinea natives with flame-colored hair (achieved with the slaked lime of coral), as well as portrait studies. Sometimes these have purple faces, sometimes green, which do not seem at all out of place in his palette.

Always, between his travels, Nolde returned to his home on the North Sea and his oil seascapes reflect a wild power and agony alongside ink drawings of serene sailboats on water which seem to float on a non-specified horizon.

IRONICALLY, Nolde the super-patriot was classified by Hitler as one of the "degenerate artists." His works were seized from museums (Nolde's work became popular early in his painting career) and sold off abroad by the Nazi government. Finally, he was forbidden to paint altogether.

A final gallery, a black room, contains the works, the unpainted paintings, of this boycotted area. The works are small watercolors, of women, of landscape, in which the colors glow with an inexpressible fire.

singing voice is good—in opera there must be illusion and romantic conviction, as well as beautiful singing.

I HAVE A GRIPE, too, against the impresario of the San Francisco Opera who continues to relegate into inferior roles American singers who have proven themselves first-class artists.

The impresario of the opera company with which I sang in England had himself been a successful opera singer. Sir Frederick Austin knew singers and the theater and combined them adroitly. Such astute judgment as his is why opera is given the year-round in England.

The impresario of the Los Angeles Opera Company, although in possession of a "going concern" of opera, which has enjoyed five successful seasons, last year jeopardized the popularity of the company by engaging as a leading tenor for FOUR out of SIX performances, a man who looked like a Fatty Arbuckle! It is not enough that the

Why Should A Woman Want to Reduce?

Pat Walker Answers Your Personal Letters

Miss Pat Walker, the nationally known figure authority, spends one full day each week in her private office on Wilshire Blvd. in Los Angeles. Here she conducts the business affairs of her salons and personally replies to the many letters she receives. Printed here is a letter telling why many women want to reduce.

DESIRES NEW FIGURE BY NOVEMBER

DEAR MISS WALKER:

When my husband and I married in 1947, I was 25 and he was 31. I wore size 13 and could always see the love mirrored in his eyes.

Now I'm 46 and wear size 18½, and since I had an operation there has never been even a little spark of love showing.

My husband's family plans a trip out here in November and it would be wonderful to be able to look nice when they are here.

I'm enclosing a photo, but as you can see I hide if I can. At least I try to hide my figure as much as I can as I am ashamed. Can you help me?

Hopefully,
MRS. D.R., Downey

DEAR MRS. D.R.:

Thanks for your letter. There is no question that you have your share of problems, but let me assure you that you are not alone. Figure problems are our business and we are used to them and know how to handle them. What you want to regain is only natural, but let me give you the best advice I know how—you have already taken one step and that is you have recognized you have a figure problem. The next step is to do something about it! Come in to see us and we'll analyze your figure problems, tell you what we'll do for you, how much it will cost you and how long it will take. It's that simple. If your decision is to let us help you, you will probably find much happiness will be in store for you. Newly gained confidence in yourself brings about much in the way of personal attention, new found happiness and who knows, with the holiday season, just around the corner, your husband will again be an attentive, proud, and happy man who will shower much affection and flowers in your direction.

Sincerely yours,
PAT WALKER
National Figure Authority

HUSBAND SHOWS NO AFFECTION

DEAR MISS WALKER:

Perhaps you may understand this letter when I say that socially I am a coward.

For one thing I've had a whopping big weight problem all my life but held my own until 5 years ago, except I always had large upper arms which meant watch the sleeves so I took up sewing.

Then the big joke came. I broke my ankle and the weight came on from lack of daily activity.

Hopeless despair set in. I couldn't lose weight and no one seemed to care and here I am at 200 pounds.

My skin is clear but that's not my problem. It's large arms and hips and a limpy ankle which would be better if there was not so much weight on it.

I am 53 years old, 5 ft. 4 in. tall, and have to wear oxfords. I hate the fact I don't fit anything that comes in the stores. I have tried drastic reducing programs, even sane ones, but no one cares. Not even my husband.

I have become the sounding board of everyone else's troubles as if I didn't have enough of my own.

Once I got flowers from my husband and was gay; today I burst inside and hate myself.

To me it's important to look right as I belong to a service club. I don't go to meetings anymore because I look like you know what.

Also to wake a little romance in a so-called dead husband. I just can't be that old yet.

I think I got a book full of reasons why I need a remodeling job.

Maybe I try attacking the wrong end of this but whatever it is I continue to go backwards.

Oh, yes, I am nice and people like me but they don't invite me anywhere either.

What can I do?

MRS. W. M., Bellflower

DEAR MRS. W. M.:

Maybe the lack of interest your husband has shown is the indirect result of your own negligence. After all he once was the devoted husband you wanted and he can be again. If you have a complex about your appearance, it reflects in everything you do. There really is no reason for a woman to feel the way you do because today you can seek professional help with your figure problems. We have revamped over 5 million figures throughout the years and many of them with the same problems you have and women in your own community. It is just as simple as picking up the phone and asking for a personal figure consultation and free trial treatment.

Sincerely yours,
PAT WALKER
National Figure Authority

Norwalk Woman Loses 21½ Pounds in Six Weeks

Here you see Mrs. Harvey, with her husband in their Norwalk home. She is reducing to be more active with her children and to be more presentable at P-T A meetings.

as told by Virginia Harvey, Norwalk

"I want to lose weight. The most important reason is because of my health. Since I've gained all my weight, I'm tired all the time, get exhausted very easily, and I'm very short of breath."

"I have a wonderful husband and four lovely children. When we go out and do a lot of walking, my legs get sore, and I have to stop and rest. This ruins their fun because they have to wait for me."

"When I go out to buy a nice dress for a party, or special occasion, it's very hard to find something in a size 18½ or 20 that doesn't make me feel and look like an old lady. Rather than wear them, I stay home, or I'm thrilled and happy with her husband married. Mrs. Harvey's family is very weight and inch loss. She looks so wonderful, and is beginning to resemble again the girl her husband married. Mrs. Harvey's has completed her program."

Here you see Virginia Harvey with Pat Walker, the national figure authority. After only 6 weeks she has reduced 21½ pounds, 4½ inches from her waist, 5 inches from her abdomen, 4½ inches from her hips, 4 inches off each thigh, and still going down.

Questions and Answers by Pat Walker

QUESTION: How much does it cost to reduce? Mrs. H. H.

Treatments are $2 per treatment and from a figure analysis we can determine exactly the number of treatments you need to regain your figure.

QUESTION: Every time I try to reduce I look haggard, old and get so nervous, D.G.

With our program you not only lose where you need to lose but you look younger and more vibrant and it does not age you in any sense of the word.

QUESTION: How long does it take to reduce? I get so discouraged when I try on my own, Mrs. P.M.

Every woman is an individual with her own special problems, so therefore one woman needs less than another woman.

QUESTION: Your ads sound too good to be true? Mrs. B.F.

The people that you read about in our ads are real people who have used our system and are women many of whom you know personally.

"Honolulu Woman Was Ashamed of Her Figure"

Here you see Mrs. Thompson with Pat Walker, the national figure authority. Mrs. Thompson is wearing a size 20 dress and weighs 169 pounds. For years she had all kinds of figure problems and was convinced it was glandular or hereditary.

As told by Jessie Thompson, Honolulu, Hawaii.

My name is Jessie Thompson. I live at 3838 Paho Avenue, Honolulu. I am married and I have 2 fine sons; ages 20 & 23. For years I have been plagued with all kinds of frustrations and I did not realize until recently that most of them were the direct result of being frustrated and unhappy because of how I looked in a mirror. For years I read in magazines about Stauffer System and wished that there was one here in Honolulu. I can't explain the joy I felt when I read about Pat Walker arriving from the Mainland and saw her picture where she was photographed getting off a plane and read that she was here because of the opening of her new Salon. Then when I saw Miss Walker on T.V. and read about the wonderful things that were happening to the ladies in the Salon, I called and made an appointment and went into the Salon to see them. Until going in I really did not believe that there was professional help for people like me. For years I had listened to my friends, who like myself had all kinds of weight problems, and I had convinced myself that it was either my glands or it ran in my family, and that I was destined to always live with myself the way that I was. My sons appreciate a pretty figure and I can't tell you what it means when they look at me now and rave over what's happening to "their mom." It feels so good to get up in the morning and look at the scales in the bathroom and not be afraid to get on them. It's a lot of fun.

Here you see Mrs. Thompson, after only 9½ weeks, she has gone from a size 20 down to a size 16 and still going down. She has reduced 28½ pounds, a total of 49 inches. And her sons rave over what is happening to their mom.

to think about walking on the beach here at Waikiki and not wear the loose muu-muus that I have pretended to enjoy wearing for all these years. I am going to wait until I am a size 14 before I get a bathing suit and I will tell the world I'll love wearing it. Miss Walker was photographed with me in the salon and I felt like a real celebrity with all the people watching us. It is really the only time in many years that I did not cringe when they pointed a camera at me. Probably what has happened to me is the same as any other woman who has found happiness and a new way of thinking, and a new outlook on life as a result of finding her figure again. I only wish that it had happened to me many years ago, because I feel that I have missed so much in life as a result of dreading to go to parties because I felt ashamed of the way I looked, and dreading to stand up before a club group to speak because I felt that they were looking at my figure faults and not listening to what I was saying, and I feel that my mental outlook did not make my life with my husband and sons as happy as it could have been and will be in the future. In other words, I am glad that I mustered up enough courage to go and talk to Miss Walker at the Salon and find the solution to my many problems that I have had for years.

OUR COVER

Old Mission Santa Barbara is symbolic of Father Junipero Serra's work in California. Alone, it kept the sanctuary light-burning when the sun went down on the mission period. Father Serra admired the Channel Indians and foresaw great promise for a spiritual vineyard there. When the Presidio was built at Santa Barbara, he blessed the land and raised the Cross only to find that the mission must wait. Authorized a month before his death on Aug. 28, 1784, the actual founding fell to his successor. Today's cover picture of the mission includes, in the foreground, the fountain of Moorish design built in 1808 of native Santa Barbara sandstone as part of the water system there. More about Fr. Serra and the mission on Page 8.

NEXT WEEK

It is easy to see that with 40 per cent or more of the American Army stationed in some 73 countries of the world, the need for bilingual GIs is pressing. Hence the importance of the Army Language School, ranked as the world's finest linguistic training center, in California. Next week, Southland tells you about this interesting school and its functions.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on GLASSCOCK — P.G., Long Beach.

P.G.: GLASSCOCK is a surname alteration based on the English town-name "Glas-cote," in Warwickshire. The source syllables, "Glas-Cote" were achieved by shortening Nicholas to "Glas," and joining it with "Cote" for "cotage." John Glasecock, a remote forefather, is listed in the Close Rolls parchments of King Henry VI in 1454. The Glasscock shield, granted in 1571, is covered with ermine, emblazoned with three blue roosters placed below a black stripe lying along the top of the shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain KRUSE. — MRS. F.F., Lakewood.

F.F.: KRUSE, an ancient German surname, is a spelling variation of Krauss. This originated as a personal descriptive nickname, meaning "curly-haired one." No other data is accessible on Kruse.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze COURTNEY. — C.C., J.M., Long Beach.

C.C., J.M.: COURTNEY is English, but is based on a French town-name, Courtenay, meaning "little farmstead." Records of the late 1200s in England list Hugo de Courtenay of Devonshire and Henry de Curteneye of Somerset. The family shield is gold, emblazoned with three red coins or balls.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you information on POFF? — E.M., Seal Beach.

E.M., POFF when researched to its early German origin, is found to be re-spelled from the hero-warrior name Bodefrid meaning "peaceful messenger." Condensation of Bodefrid to Boffert was followed by alteration to Poff.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you the origin of VENNARD? — Mrs. I. S., Long Beach.

I. S.: VENNARD originated as Venard in Normandy, northwestern France. Venard is a Norman dialectical spelling of the eastern French surname Guenard, meaning "strong governor."

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you publish genealogy on RAMSEY? — D. G., Norwalk.

D. G.: RAMSEY had two English sources that were merged many centuries ago in the modern spelling of this name. "Ram's-eye" meaning "Ram-island," and "Hramn's-

ANTIQUES

Old Jewelry Does a Comeback

By Helen L. Gillum

Cameos, like this from Mrs. Thomas Waller's collection, are treasures from milady's jewel box of many years ago.

WITH the growing popularity of antique jewelry, many an old ring, bracelet, brooch or lavallere is being salvaged from great-grandma's jewel chest, dusted and polished, and put to delightful new use. Cleaned and repaired, in some cases redesigned, these items are being appreciated in a modern light, not only for their quaint, old-fashioned beauty, but for a certain mystic charm imparted by the traditions of their times.

styles. They are especially intriguing because a small beetle is embedded in each of the 3/4-inch ornaments of tear drop shape. Amber, a fossil resin, was a gummy exudation from the trees of the pine family thousands of years ago. Insects of all kinds (many that are now extinct) were caught in and covered by the sticky substance. Highly prized in itself, amber is even more desirable today when it contains these preserved fossil insects.

An "obituary ring" in Mrs. Waller's collection illustrates the "mourning" jewelry particularly fashionable in the second half of the 18th century. These were frames of various sizes used for pendants, lockets, rings, bracelets or other, which were designed to contain small appropriate items of departed loved ones.

THE OVAL gold frame of Mrs. Waller's ring, 3/4-inch across, is set with a rock-crystal carving of an 18th century lady mounted on a tiny background mat woven from the lady's own gray hair. The standing figure of the deceased woman was carved from the back of the crystal and filled in with a white substance, so that her fingers, facial features, flowing gown and cross she carries stand out clearly in almost "ghostly white" detail. The ring was made at the time of her death, according to the custom of those days. Her initials, "BSOD", and "OB-May 30, 1800" appear on the back with her age, 76.

A pair of intricately carved jet pendant earrings is a fine sample of jewelry made from this black mineral, described by one authority to be "the blackest brown one may ever see!" Actually, jet is a velvet-black variety of lignite or brown coal, which lends itself to carvings and a high polish. It is one of the four "organic" gems which trace their ancestry to living things, the other three being amber, pearls, and coral.

CAMEOS, all-time favorites through the ages, are also favored by Mrs. Waller. Two of her cameos came from Pompeii, and feature delicately carved women's heads. A larger one which profiles the figure of a woman against a background of the Colosseum in Rome, came from a shop near the Colosseum. The largest cameo, 2 1/2 inches across, bears a head in distinct relief, and is from Italy. Glowing in rich, purple tones is a cameo carved from a pure sparkling amethyst. A beautiful cameo ring, created from a red sardonyx, dates to pre-Civil War days.

A brooch and pair of matching earrings fashioned of "bog oak" are fascinating because of their origin. They were carved from the black, ebony-like wood of oak which had been immersed in peat bogs as a seasoning process.

Treasured for their sentimental value are an old ring and an old medal. The medal, inscribed "Best Bull, 1859," against a rural background in raised design, was awarded to Mr. Waller's grandfather, a gentleman farmer of Mellor, England, in that year. The heavy gold "keeper" ring with chased decorations, which Mrs. Waller enjoys wearing occasionally, is her grandmother's wedding ring.

Father Junipero Serra is pictured in many ways by many artists. Above, one version of the famous mission padre.

By Jan Heminway

FATHER JUNIPERO SERRA first limped into California in July 1769. He was 56, crippled with an ulcerated leg, suffering from asthma—and eager to gather wild grapes for the altar.

Majorca, his birthplace, is a Spanish province in the Mediterranean. Its people know Christianity as a happy thing. Then, as now, they danced and sang for the greater glory of God, and Fr. Serra brought this exaltation to California. The missionaries sang around the camp fires and the curious Indians were drawn from the shadows. Later, they led them in work and play, as well as formal devotions, through song. Almost 50 years after the mission system was destroyed, Robert Lewis Stevenson wrote at length on the remnants of the Indian choir at San Carlos, their aged faces "vividly lit up with joy."

Except that he was small and dark, no one knows what the great Franciscan looked like. His numerous portraits were painted by artists who never saw him. Some show him as hollow-cheeked and ascetic, others round-faced and bland. In late years, many statues have been erected in his honor. Some show a strong, bronze man holding aloft a heavy mission model; others a stern, stone man surveying the world from a pedestal. More to his nature are those in which one arm is about an Indian boy. For Serra was a man motivated by love. His frail body was leashed to it.

HE HAD SPENT 20 years among the half-titled tribes of Mexico when rumors from Madrid reached the New World. News had come from the ambassador to St. Petersburg that Russia claimed North America. Had not the Indians' ancestors crossed by way of Siberia? From their launching base in Alaska, the countdown had begun. By the time Serra heard it, the story had grown dramatically. The Russians were declared to have landed somewhere in California and lost 300 men in a terrible battle with the natives. Everyone knew they had enslaved the Aleuts without any effort at Christianizing them so he was jubilant at the chance to lead a crusade northward. He traveled through hundreds of Jagan villages above San Diego—without meeting any Russians—but he knew here was the work for which he'd left home and country. Here were uncounted thousands of wild grapes to bring to the altar.

Ripening in the security of the missions, the adults continued to visit their barbaric relatives. How much they really comprehended of the new faith was uncertain. It was the children on whom the harvest depended, for their tendrils fastened to all the concepts of mission life. Even so, they were a primitive people and the vines would take generations to cultivate.

THIRTEEN YEARS passed in getting the necessary cooperation for founding the first mission along the Santa Barbara Channel. There had been a 200-mile gap between the five in the north and the three in the south. Yet, the Channel Indians were the most promising of the wild grapes. They had a higher civilization and were more industrious than most. Serra had met them many times on his trips up and down the coast.

On one occasion, he was returning to Carmel during a winter storm. El Camino Real ran along the coast at the channel, and during high tide was under water. Now, the breakers roared over the path to crash against the mountains jutting into the sea. As the small party halted, a band of local Indians offered help. They carried the frail old man up the craggy path to high land while the soldiers scrambled behind, dragging at their unwilling mules. Amably, they escorted the Spaniards along the unfamiliar trail, learning the hymns the old Father sang and joining in the harmony with joy, even though the words were strange, music being universal.

BEFORE HIS DEATH in 1784, Fr. Serra had established nine missions and built the foundations for more. From the roots he planted came the great establishments in which modern California agriculture was born. On land that had known no crops, wheat fields rippled in the breeze like inland oceans as far as the eye could see. With irrigating systems that channeled river water for miles, all the fruits and vegetables native to Spain were grown. Sheep were sheared for their wool to clothe the naked neophytes, and vast herds of cattle furnished hides and tallow as well as meat—all from a handful of domestic animals brought in by Serra.

With a scattering of skilled workmen and the puzzled Indians, the friars made the missions self-sufficient. They fashioned looms for weaving, tannery tanks for turning hides into leather, and water-powered mills for grinding grain. They made their own soap and candles, adobe bricks and roof tiles. The women learned to cook, spin, weave and sew. Everything was done on the wings of a song, and the song lasted long after the buildings were shattered.

THE CARMEL mission, where Serra lies buried, was first to be hit by secularization in 1833. The priest moved to the Presidio chapel in Monterey, the nearby capital. Yet, the Indians waited in the forsaken compound. They raised ramparts of music and dreamed of the return of happier days. Incredulously, they watched as greedy colonists stripped the roof of tiles and carried away everything of value. The ceiling caved in and for almost a century the church lay exposed to wind and rain.

But so long as they lived, the old neophytes kept the ruined shell clean, with bright flowers at the phantom altar. Warmed by the afterglow of Father Serra's love, they were sure that he returned every night, at midnight, to sing High Mass. The wild grapes had become sacramental wine.

Rich beauty is still to be found in the missions of California which Fr. Serra brought to pass. Above, at Capistrano.

Protecting 70 miles
of waterfront:
that's job of
L.B.-L.A. Harbor's

Fireboat Fleet

By Lou Jobst

THE FIREBOAT fleet which must protect the 70 miles of Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor waterfront from disaster may be small, but it packs a lot of firefighting punch.

The six boats which comprise the fleet—Los Angeles has four and Long Beach two—can pour an astounding 32,500 gallons of water per minute on a harbor blaze.

This torrent would fill an average-sized backyard swimming pool in less than 30 seconds and would require 26 land-based fire engines to duplicate.

Besides its deluge-producing potential, the fireboat fleet is one of the most modern and versatile in the world. It is manned by hand-picked and specially trained crews and is equipped with the latest devices, including radar.

One fireboat, City of L. A. No. 4, is one of the largest and newest fireboats in service anywhere.

Built in Portland, Ore., at a cost of more than $739,000, the 76-foot "No. 4" is a seagoing firefighter's dreamboat.

"We thought of everything a fireboat should be and we put it all into No. 4," says a Los Angeles fire officer.

Fifteen years in the planning, No. 4 is a floating power plant with six 400-horsepower diesels, two to propel her and four to operate her pumps which can hit a blaze with 9,000 gallons of water per minute.

She is also equipped with controllable pitch propellers which give instant reverse speed, a comforting innovation when working close to boiling, explosive flames.

FIREBOAT 4 also has maneuvering jets at the waterline which permit sidling up to a conflagration, providing the craft with mobility to hit a fire from any direction.

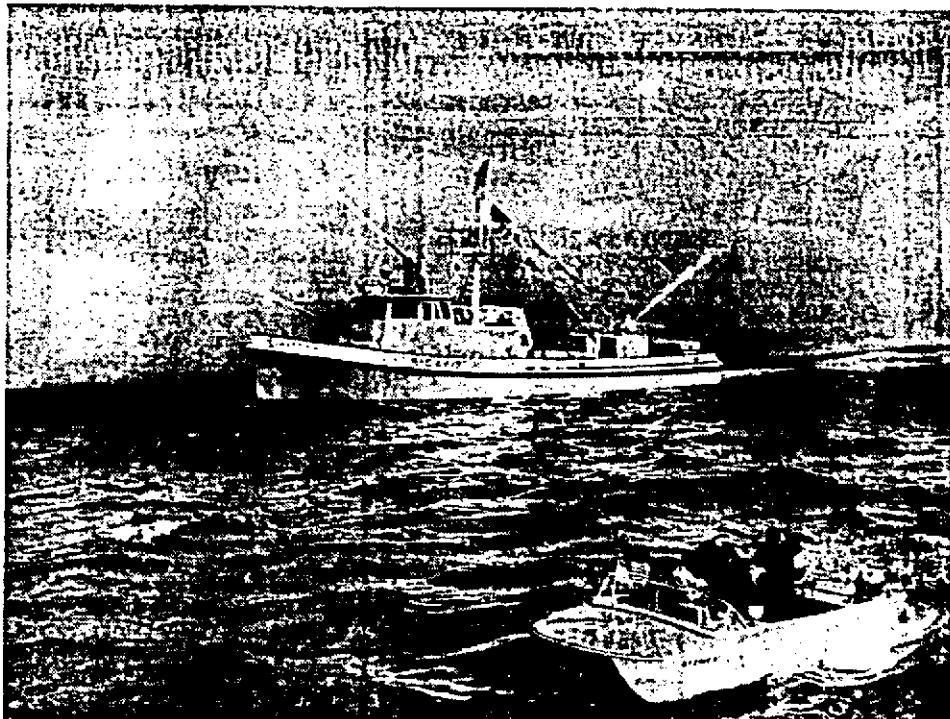

And since Los Angeles Harbor is one of the world's largest petroleum ports, No. 4 carries tanks containing nearly 600 gallons of foam for gasoline flame suppression.

Day-to-day life aboard the fireboats is largely routine—a continuing series of drills and inspection patrols, broken occasionally by the ceremonial task of greeting a new ocean liner or leading a nautical parade.

The patrols serve a dual purpose. They keep the crews in fighting trim and ferret out potential fire dangers.

Oil slicks and gasoline spills are among the most frequent dangers spotted. Often these are dissipated by turning waterguns on the spots, but when the oil slick is large, boom crews are called in. The slick is corralled inside log booms and then covered with straw which soaks up the petroleum. The straw is then picked up and taken away.

It is a tribute to the efficiency of this work that the two ports have had only three major fires since World War II: the $10 million Markay ship and Shell Oil pier fire on Mormon Island in June 1947; the $2½ million Matson dock conflagration at Wilmington in March 1960, and the Long Beach Pier 2 fire in 1945, a blaze that burned for more than 30 hours and caused damage estimated at $775,000.

Newest and most up-to-date fireboat in the United States, L. A. City No. 4, shoots plumes of water from three of her deck guns on arrival at home port earlier this year. She's one of six L. A.-Long Beach Harbor fireboats.

A big asset to the fireboat fleet is the newness of the two ports which—from a fire standpoint—are among the safest in the world.

While Los Angeles Harbor still has a large number of wooden docks and wharves, Long Beach is virtually all built of fire-resistant steel and concrete.

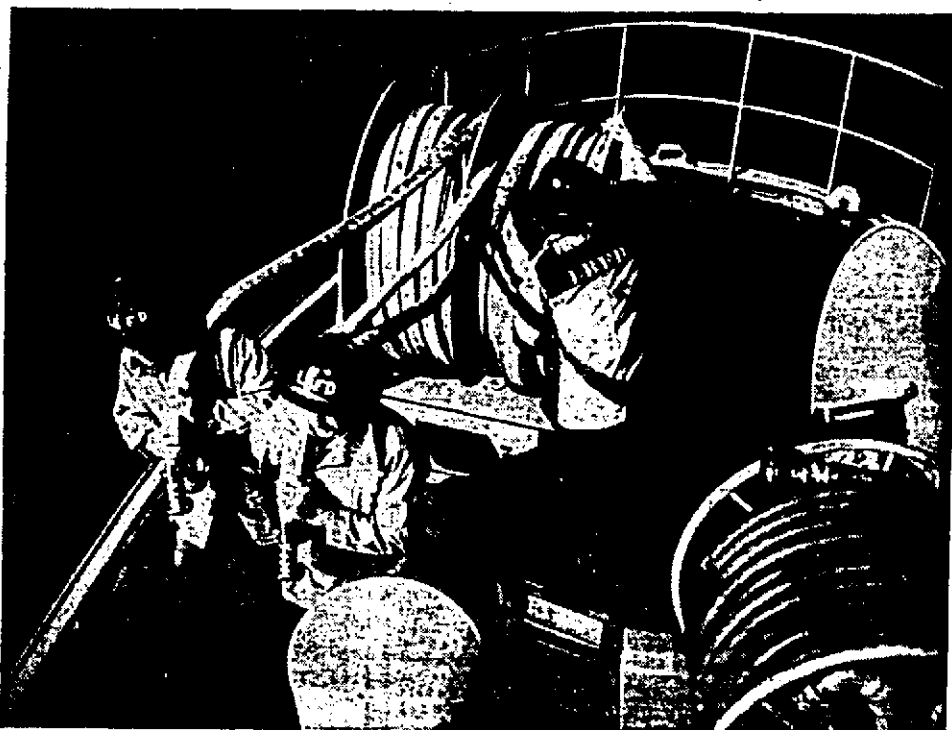

The new warehouses at both ports are built of metal and contain fire alarm and water sprinkling systems.

FOR THESE and other reasons Long Beach maintains only two fireboats with a total water pumping capacity of 9,000 gallons per minute, while Los Angeles has two boats—No. 2 and No. 4—which can deliver blaze-squelching deluges of 10,000 and 9,000 gallons respectively.

And while life aboard the fireboats is much different than shore duty in the firehouse, the Long Beach fireboaters, at least, still have to cope with the cigarette butt blaze. They have made a number of runs to the Pacific Electric Railway trestle and Rainbow Pier where a carelessly discarded rag has started a blaze.

Spray is blasted from water gun aboard one of Long Beach's powerful fireboats.

In addition to deck-mounted water guns, fireboats also carry standard hose units to back up their activities. Above, crew of Long Beach Fireboat 2 unreefs hose on stern in practice. Men train hard and keep equipment fit.

Outside House Painting Now Eliminated

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the homeowner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglas FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residence until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking, or peeling.

FLEXON the miracle exterior wall coating is so indestructible and durable that it is absolutely guaranteed to eliminate the necessity for painting the outside walls of your home, apartment building or commercial property for 10 full years. This outstanding product when applied is approximately 20 times the thickness of ordinary paint and makes a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather, and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

The United States Government and many large corporations such as U.S. Steel Corporation, Aluminum Corporation of America, Pacific Telephone, and Shell Oil Company, are included on the honor roll of FLEXON users.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with special heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall surface and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

They Haunt Graveyards for Art

By Mary Neth

HAUNTING graveyards has proven a far-from-gloomy occupation for Avon Neal of Artesia.

It has resulted in appearances on TV and radio, travel abroad (from Africa to England) and best of all, a storm of real excitement in the art world.

For, in the half-forgotten old burying grounds of New England, Neal and his partner, Ann Parker, have discovered an incomparable storehouse of native American art.

They've brought this archaic art to life in a series of delicate, meticulously executed rubbings: creating a new art form from one of old.

To make the rubbings, Neal works with a non-woven fabric paper, a mixture of full-bodied inks and a cloth-covered dauber.

THE PRINCIPLE is simple: place a thin piece of paper over a coin, rub with a soft lead pencil and you have the idea.

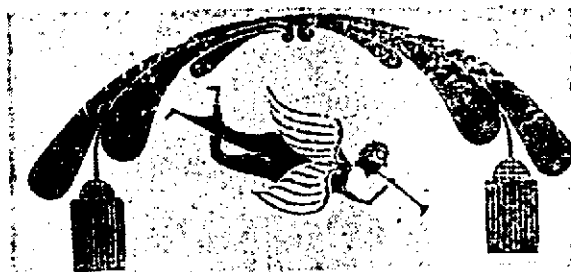

But, producing a rubbing that is esthetically pleasing in itself—not just a literal record of the original design—involves artistic workmanship and lots of back-breaking work.

By dint of just that, Neal, a writer-sculptor, and Miss Parker, a photographer, have carried the technique to perfection.

Result: their work has caught the eyes of collectors around the world.

Aided by a Ford Foundation grant, they now have more than 2,000 gravestone rubbings: 150 ready for exhibit in London and Paris later this summer.

Already the work has been shown widely in the U.S. Time and Look magazines devoted feature articles to their accomplishments, "Art in America" has sponsored a limited edition of their portfolios as part of its 50th anniversary program.

This rubbing from a New Hampshire headstone is part of a traveling exhibit compiled by Avon Neal, Ann Parker.

THE VENTURE of reproducing stone pictures with paper and ink began in Mexico. The idea was hit upon after viewing crumbling Mayan ruins.

The first rubbings (pre-Columbian reliefs) were made to be sold in art galleries here and in Mexico.

However, the Mexican government seemingly took a dim view of the project. Officials limited the output to two rubbings of each major relief—one for the foreigners, one for Mexico.

Neal later circumvented this regulation. Upon return to California, he transferred the rubbings to blocks of plaster of Paris and cement, carved out replicas of the original bas-reliefs and then made additional rubbings from them.

But, the pre-Columbian work never created the impact the New England rubbings have.

UNTIL NOW, this graveyard art has lain nearly neglected in America's back yard. Though it caused some attention in the past, it was never studied in detail or as a related group.

And, as a rich source of early American design the headstones are a gold mine.

Generally speaking, the practical, puritanical colonists were sparing of unnecessary decoration. Their houses, tools, utensils and furniture were, first of all, utilitarian.

But, in that rigid society, when it came to commemorating the dead, the living came up with some very lively pictorial images.

According to Neal, "Stone-cutting was not necessarily a full-time occupation. Many of the gravestone makers were farmers, blacksmiths, cobblers."

PERHAPS THIS explains the originality in design many of the markers display.

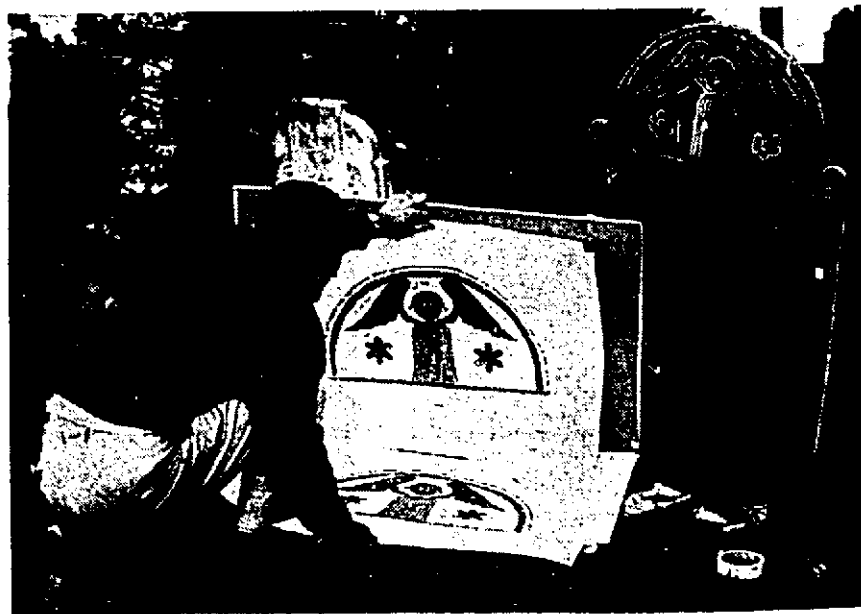

As Neal points out, "They managed to convey an astonishing variety of pictorial images, not only reflecting attitudes of their time, but reaching beyond them in vision and originality."

"Portraits abound, varying from young children to stout deacons, most are a deliberate, if primitive, attempt to portray the deceased."

All in all, the results are wonderful — sometimes poignantly humorous, always rich in stylistic decoration.

While in Europe this year, Neal and Parker will attempt to trace the carving techniques of the early American gravestones to English forebears. Then, upon return, they will continue the study of Americana—surveying next the tombstones of the Southern seaboard.

Seemingly, for Neal graveyards will remain happy hunting grounds for some time to come.

Neal adds another New England gravestone rubbing to the growing portfolio he and Miss Parker are assembling. Work has resulted in travel and radio, TV appearances.

HINTS ON CARPET SHADING

An apparent change of color-tone that sometimes appears on a rug or carpet, shading is the result of pressure of scuffing, which causes the tufts or pile to fall at various angles. It is characteristic of all pile fabrics, especially good quality, high pile carpets. The better you keep the pile falling in one direction, the less shading there will be on your carpet. Run your carpet sweeper or vacuum cleaner in the direction of the pile for uniform color effect. This is not a defect.

WHEN HE isn't traveling around the United States or exploring a new and interesting spot in Europe, Clive Greenlee lives a happy bachelor life in his unique home located at 60 60th Place on the peninsula. The background of the home is worthy of mention. At one time there were two garages on the rear of the empty lot. When the new home was being built, these were converted into what are now the kitchen and bedroom areas. The living room was built in front.

The home is still set far back on the large lot, and the front door is reached through a shaded, louvre-beamed patio. The entire patio flooring is of brick and greenery abounds. In the evening, hidden lights lend their warm glow to the area which is designed for entertaining or lone, every-day enjoyment.

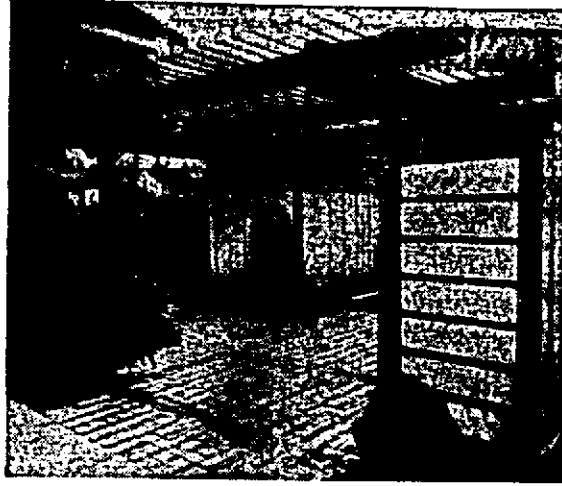

Although he is now blind, Greenlee has had his home decorated in tastes befitting his own ideas on the subject. He has a keen and sensitive awareness of accessories, accents and colors. Paintings were chosen with great care. Charles Glass, who is associated with interior designer Floyd McMains, worked with Greenlee in the planning.

THE LIVING ROOM faces one side of the patio. An absence of drapes provides a full view of the inviting, tropical setting with a shell waterfall in one corner trickling a musical melody in the background.

A warm and welcoming atmosphere prevails in this home. The brick fireplace at one end of the living room usually has a fire even on sultry summer days, a glowing invitation to guests who cross the threshold. A bam-

Entrance to the home is far back in the picture, near and to the right of a shell waterfall. Brick-floored patio can be contemplative or merry, as occasion may be.

From the carport of the Greenlee home, a winding way to the left through a patio leads to the front door.

boo "plant" in one corner is artificial; however, it complements a real plant across the room so that both achieve interest as live and decorative pieces.

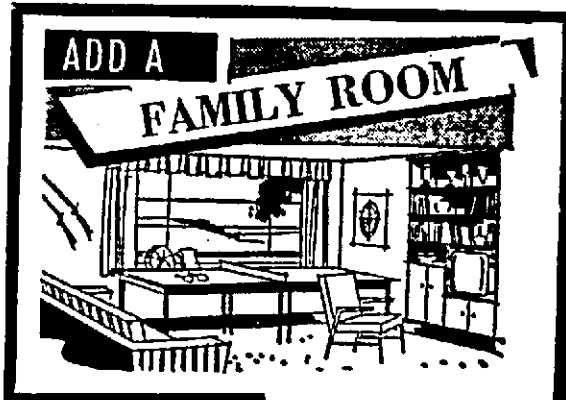

At one end of the living room Greenlee has installed an antique pump organ which is used for the pleasure of guests, and the owner himself. Two old, handsome, antique chairs done in needlepoint are nearby. Among other pieces in the room is a floor lamp, set in the corner near the organ, that once was of the kerosene type, but now has been converted into electricity. The heavy wrought iron base is artistic in the setting. A painting above the organ is an original by the widely known artist, Fran Solini.

THE KITCHEN is large and well-organized for the owner's special needs. There is a dining alcove in one corner where his chair, at the head of the table, is conveniently near the wall phone. Since his profession is that of a highly trained clinical psychologist, the phone rings often, and must, of necessity, be easy to locate. Indirect lighting is placed above the high beams in the room. Work areas are uncluttered, easy to maintain. An old-fashioned china cupboard is a distinctive decoration, as are the many treasures within.

There are two compact bedrooms, and two baths in the home. Furnishings are simple and well planned. Guests who tour the home admire heirloom pieces kept for sentiment as well as decoration. An antique clock with wooden parts which has a place of honor on the dresser is an example.

Although Greenlee has traveled extensively, he feels that his home on the bay offers much which might be found in a castle in Spain or a shop in Rome, both for him and the many, many friends who come to call.

Barbecued Ribs: A Family Treat

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

IF YOU are at an impasse about what to serve for a Labor Day weekend supper, here's a unique recipe for barbecued spareribs. It's quick and easy and delicious, besides. The trick is to simmer the ribs in the kitchen first, while preparing the sauce and readying the outdoor fire. Then, move it all outside in a jiffy and grill just till the ribs are crisp and brown, basting generously.

The savory sauce is truly Western, with just the right zest. The reason is prepared tomato sauce with the special tangy touch. This just-right combination of tomato and herb flavors is a perfect ingredient for all barbecue sauces.

Try these unusual spareribs — they're just likely to be the best you've ever tasted!

BBQ Spareribs

Layer 2 medium onions, sliced, and 4 pounds fresh spareribs, cut in large sections in 5 quart saucepan; add ½ teaspoon sage, 1 bay leaf and enough water to cover. Cover tightly, bring to boil and simmer till fork tender, about 1 hour. As ribs cook, make sauce:

- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1 tsp. each, salt and paprika
- ½ tsp. each, garlic salt and ginger
- 2 tbsp. brown sugar
- 3 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tbsp. oil

Combine all ingredients and simmer 20 minutes. Strain. Arrange ribs on grill over slow charcoal fire about 8 inches from heat. Brush ribs with sauce, turning several times. Grill till ribs are crisp and brown (30 to 40 minutes). Serves 4 to 5.

Spareribs, barbecued and basted the while with savory western style sauce, are a prime Labor Day menu idea.

Recipe of the Week

EVER-WELCOME flavor of steak is enhanced by a specialty that wins $5 as best recipe of the week for Mrs. Edna Luehr, 425 E. Seaside Blvd., Long Beach 2. The recipe:

Swiss Cream Steak

- |                    |                        |
|--------------------|------------------------|
| 2 lbs. round steak | 2 med. onions diced    |
| 1 tsp. salt        | 1 tsp. paprika         |
| ¼ tsp. pepper      | ½ cup sour cream       |
| ½ cup flour        | 2 tblsp. grated cheese |
| ¼ cup butter       |                        |

Cut meat into serving pieces. Dust with salt, pepper, flour. Melt butter, add onion, cook until golden brown and remove onions. Add meat and brown on both sides. Add cooked onions, water, sour cream, grated cheese and paprika. Place all in a casserole, cover and bake about one hour in 375 degree oven or until done. Serves 4 to 6.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Their ancestor, Simon de Ramseye, migrated to Scotland about 1125. The clan shield from 1380 is black, emblazoned with an ermine chevron between three silver ram heads. The Ramsey tartan is red, overlaid with wide black cross stripes accented with white pin-stripping. Thomas, James and John Ramsey were south Pennsylvania land owners in 1781.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze DE LEON.

—R. D., Stanton.

R. D.: DE LEON in Spanish, with three different sources. "De Leon" denoted "lion" in Spain in the Middle Ages, pertaining to the lion-like courage of an ancestor, but also designated a place of business that was trademarked by a picture of a lion. A third origin was an ancestor who once lived in the Spanish province of Leon. The ancient family shield has a red, gold-crowned lion centered on a silver background.

The most celebrated ancestor was Ponce de Leon, born in 1610, Spanish discoverer of Florida, searcher for the legendary "Fountain of Youth."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on EUSTACE from Kildare, Ireland.

—M. F., San Francisco.

M. F.: EUSTACE and EUSTICE, Irish surnames, trace back to a Norman-French ancestor called Fitz-ustace who migrated to Erin in the 1100s. Eustace was a baptismal name expressing "abundance." Eustace family estates included large areas of the Irish counties of Kildare and Carlow. The Eustaces had the title of Viscounts Balinglass. Their coat-of-arms has a red "X"-shaped cross centered on a gold shield. The family motto "Cur me persequeris" translates from Latin as "Wherefore my perseverance."

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. What is the world's oldest business company? K.A.
A. This may be a concern with headquarters in Falun, Sweden. Stora Kopparbergs Bergslags, AB ("great copper mountain mine"), is the direct descendant of a business which has been in continuous operation for at least 674 years. Its earliest existing record, now in Sweden's National Archives and dated June 16, 1288, disposes of a one-eighth share in its copper mining concerns. After copper mining ceased, about a century ago, the company became active in the fields of iron and steel, paper, and chemicals.

Q. Was novelist Jules Verne trained in science? C.R.

A. No. Jules Verne (1828-1905) went to Paris to study law after completing his studies at the lycee in Nantes, his birthplace. In Paris, he started to write for the theater when about 20, and later became interested in literature. His first success was the novel "Five Weeks in a Balloon" (1862). In writing his scientific romances he made use of all the scientific knowledge of his time, as well as his tremendous imagination and inventive powers. Eventually he built up a personal reference library of thousands of volumes.

Q. What was the "Wedding of the Waters" in connection with the Erie Canal? R.F.

A. The "Wedding of the Waters" ceremony marked the completion of the Erie Canal. It took place in New York Harbor on Nov. 4, 1825. Gov. DeWitt Clinton and other state officials left Buffalo, the canal's western terminus, on Oct. 26 in the "Seneca Chief," first boat to make the entire canal trip. They carried with them a barrel of water from Lake Erie, and when they arrived in New York they poured this water into New York Harbor to symbolize the joining of the waters of east and west.

Q. Is the coelacanth still considered the world's rarest fish? D.Y.

A. No. It was so considered beginning in 1938, at the time the first live specimen was caught off the east coast of Africa. However, after a second one turned up in 1952, a third in 1953, and at least five additional specimens were caught in 1954, the coelacanth lost its title to rarity.

Q. Is the St. Johns River

the only U. S. river that flows northward? E.W.

A. No. The St. Johns River in Florida is remarkable because it flows northward throughout its entire course, until it turns abruptly eastward, near Jacksonville, to empty into the Atlantic. There are a number of U.S. rivers which flow northward for part of their course, some of them for long distances. Among these are the Willamette, Monongahela, Niagara, Tennessee, Red River of the North, Big Horn, Powder, Deschutes, and Genesee. In Alaska, the Colville and other rivers flow northward to empty into the Beaufort Sea.

(As a reader of Southland, you can get an answer, by mail, to any question of fact by writing to Southland Magazine Information Bureau, 635 F. St., N. W., Washington 4, D. C. Please enclose return postage or self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Budi Drop Cause

Tuberous begonias sometimes drop buds because they don't get enough air circulation. This is especially true with potted plants grown up next to a wall. Too much shade will cause the same problem. Begonias like high shade (and air circulation) rather than low, dense shade, according to the California Association of Nurserymen.

MEDICINE AND YOU

New Image in Heart Study

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

A NEW community study of deaths from coronary heart disease in persons 50 years old and younger has turned up an image of the coronary-prone individual that differs from the popular conception.

The popular view: A tense, driving, ambitious person.

The new finding: The coronary-prone individual is more likely to be an inactive person.

Other findings, reported in New England Journal of Medicine:

Fewer victims than expected were found in professional or managerial posts.

A considerable number of victims were either alcoholics or heavy drinkers.

A NEW BATH OIL rich in fatty substances called phospholipids is highly effective in relieving itching and dryness in skin disorders.

The oil, called Inthol, contains no mineral oil or lanolin. But the phospholipids in it closely simulate the fats of the skin, to facilitate passage of the oil into the skin, according to Dr. Bertram Meister of Yonkers, N. Y.

Dr. Meister, in a report in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society, says Inthol gave "good to excellent" results in 92 per cent of 71 patients.

Inthol, at last report, is not yet available for general use.

KLEENEX tissue can be helpful in the treatment of painful cracks and fissures in the soles of the feet, a doctor reports in Archives of Dermatology.

Here's how the new technique works: One or two layers of ordinary Kleenex tissue are applied to the affected area. Over the tissue the doctor paints

Friars balsam (tincture benzoin compound).

The tissue adheres to the affected area in a surprising manner, forming a protective and artificial skin. It won't even come off in a hot bath.

The protective layer allows healing to occur.

A NOTED nutrition expert says vitamin supplements aren't needed by the individual who pursues the sport of mountain climbing.

Dr. Fredrick J. Stare of Harvard says sufficient vitamins can be obtained in a balanced diet. His report is in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

ANOTHER negative report on the efficacy of an antifatigue drug has been published in the medical literature.

The latest report, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, is that of four doctors affiliated with the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

They gave the drug—a combination of the potassium and magnesium salts of aspartic acid—to 26 inmates of the Maryland State Penitentiary, all experienced weight-lifters.

Tests failed to show any beneficial effect of the aspartates on the muscular performance or well-being of the prisoners.

TROUBLED with leg cramps at night? Then try sleeping with your legs flexed.

The suggestion is that of a medical consultant reporting in the journal GP. Nocturnal leg cramps, says the doctor, usually occur in a leg that is fully extended.

MENTAL depressions aren't limited to the city dweller, American farmers are highly susceptible to depression as a result of the hard work and frustrations of farm life, doctors reported at a recent rural safety conference.

COLORS step out after dark

By Mary Ellis Carlton

Southland Magazine Fashion Editor

SAY GOOD-BY to the cocktail dress in both title and traditionally full skirt.

Bid farewell to the little black crepe dress, once the standby of every fashion-conscious woman's wardrobe.

And say adieu, also, to the sweeping, full-skirted ball gown.

All these were so rare in fall-winter fashion collections shown recently in New York and Paris that their appearances could be counted on your fingers.

In their place, new names, bold and pastel shades to replace the black, also slithering evening gowns reaching to the floor.

THE LONG DINNER dress will be worn where last year a woman would have worn a short dress, according to Larry Aldrich, manufacturer of high fashion garments and president of the New York Couture Group.

During recent showings, the "cocktail dress" was mentioned no more than horse and buggy. More often, it's a late day dress in the parlance of the fashion commentator.

Designer-manufacturer Adele Simpson renamed the cocktail dress the "day's end social dress."

THESE DRESSES have changed in line from bell-shaped skirts and scooped necklines in warp silks to the sheerest of wools or crinkly and carved silks in colors ranging from palest pink and lime to bright reds and greens.

The line of the late day dress: slim.

For more formal occasions, the look is also lean for the upcoming season. There are a few dresses shaped closely to the figure with empire waistlines. But most depend on fabric draping, through seaming and bias cut, to outline the figure—skimming tightly over it.

DESIGNERS USE both black and pastel-colored wools of sheerest weight for many of the dinner dresses.

By contrast, almost every collection has a group of formals in handsome, costly brocades, metallics and jewel embroidery.

To go with the long, slinky evening dress: the floor-length evening coat.

Here, several designers let the coat have more fullness at the back to give a sweep as the woman walks. Others cut it straight, narrow and as tailored as a man's chesterfield.

Numerous short and long dress-up coats are copies of the casual trench coat. And for a further touch of the casual, often a matching scarf is worn as a head covering, babushka-fashion, for both day and evening.

TO DISAPPOINT after 5 girl-watchers, most collections have more cover-up than bareness in evening clothes. Sleeves, for instance, on short and long formals, often drop to the wrist, are usually covered with beading.

But dapper Oleg Cassini, with the male interest at heart, bucked the tide. Mrs. John F.

Glittering exposure—a wool dinner costume in wild grape-pink, the long jacket showing a jeweled silk satin overblouse, is from Paul Parnes Fall 1963 collection by Karen Stark. Bold colors, pastel shades are prominent.

Kennedy's favorite designer shows daring necklines for evening. A group of black crepe dresses came with the back exposed to the waist, in front sinking daringly low.

ANOTHER FORECAST: fur flurries for evening.

Every designer in the nation's garment jungle (that's what they call New York's Seventh Avenue garment district) must have gone on safari this year.

It's the most fur-bearing, fur-ocious fashion season in history.

New furbishings range from seal to civet, tiger to lamb, even natural sheared buffalo. And, of course, there's mink, fox, lynx, leopard, opossum, lamb, chinchilla and broadtail.

Frederica, fur designer extraordinary, has a sinuous evening sheath, floor-length, of Somali leopard.

Jean Louis, California couturier and designer for movies and movie stars, produced a sleek white mink dress, floor length.

Also in the collections: a leopard trench coat that changed its spots by reversing to a waterproof green velvet evening coat.

ALSO FOR EVENING: jewels that shimmer and shine, also weeping bead embroideries and shiny fabrics everywhere.

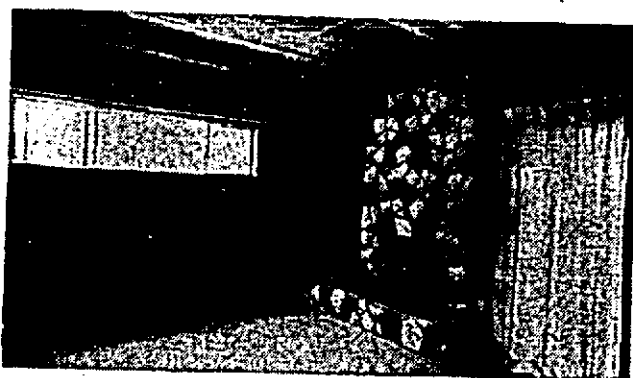

Samuel Winston's designer, Roxanne, introduced sundown gowns emblazoned with shimmering sequins, tinkling with dark crystals and gleaming with huge stones. Even notched collars and cuffs of otherwise simply-styled dinner gowns were embroidered with gems.

When the sun is up, apparently, Winston fans put their jeweled dresses in safes in favor of pure little two-piece suits made of fur.

Popular, too, are teardrop gems that cover evening dress and swing like chandeliers in a hurricane.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

What of Shockers

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Are horror films harmful to children?
ANSWER: This frequently-asked question hasn't been and probably won't ever be answered conclusively.

There are strong authoritative arguments on both sides of the issue.

Dr. Frederic Wertham, a psychiatrist, contends that film violence tends to make children indifferent to the suffering of other human beings and contribute to juvenile crime.

Herman Cohen, author and producer, thinks that horror films help release a child's fears and tensions and leave him in a calmer state of mind.

The ancient Greeks said that their tragic dramas cleansed the emotions and left the viewer in an elevated state of mind. Many persons who have received a unique feeling of satisfaction from watching a good stage play understand what the Greeks meant.

Whether modern horror films, designed purely to shock, can be classed with classic drama in this regard is debatable.

Certainly it's hard sometimes to find the morals that are served by modern horror tales that are being released in theaters and over TV in such profusion.

QUESTION: Is non-conformity always bad in a child?

ANSWER: Certainly not. It depends on the issue.
If it's a question of established rules, conformity is, of course, expected and desired. A child must learn respect for law and order.

But when it comes to the world of ideas, nonconformity may indicate rare moral courage and creativity.

According to Norman R. F. Maier, professor of psychology, University of Michigan, the best problem solvers are those persons who are not afraid to oppose group opinions.

Happy adjunct to any garden is this wishing well that a home handyman can make easily from detailed pattern.

By Bill Meyerriecks

A WISHING well's inviting rustic warmth and feeling of tranquility can add much to make your house more attractive and valuable. The Sketchbook design this week incorporates all the wishing well's charm—and makes it as easy as possible for you to build.

Besides its decorative appeal, the well does serve as a useful garden center. It can store the garden hose as well as other gardening tools. Or it can be the centerpiece for an informal outdoor party with the refreshments right at hand in and around the well. You can use it for any number of things besides its basic decorative purpose.

BUILDING the well from the Sketchbook plan is a pleasant late summer or early autumn pastime that the entire family can enjoy. The structure above the well is made from standard-size lumber only. You may well have enough scrap wood around the house to hold down the modest cost of these materials. The plan gives all details, sizes and steps of the entire project even to the concrete and stone work necessary for the well itself.

TO OBTAIN the plan, send name and address and 50 cents for Sketchbook Plan S-122 to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Chaise for Outdoor Living

FOR RELAXATION in patio or garden, any handyman can have a chaise like this, occupied for the purposes of photography by Eileen O'Neill of NBC television. The chaise is mobile, comfortable, adjustable and equipped with a standard outdoor furniture pad. To make the chaise, all you do is to trace a full-sized pattern on wood, cut out the parts and assemble them. The pattern lists required materials and gives illustrated directions. To obtain Outdoor Chaise Pattern No. 125, send 75 cents in coin, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. Be sure to include your name and address.

Fast, seaworthy, streamlined—the Jericho was once the dreamboat of a rum runner and the bane of revenue men in the days of prohibition off the Long Beach coast.

By Eleanor Avery Price

MANY ARE the salty tales told by members of the Corsair Yacht Club and one concerns the Jericho, one of the speediest and snappiest little boats ever to ply the waters of the Pacific. The account is given by her builder, Fred Ashbridge.

Business was going along as usual at his Wilmington Boat Works when in walked two nicely dressed men with a request for a high speed fishing boat, something seaworthy, under-slung, painted a neutral color.

Building proceeded, and after a time the finished product brought admiring glances. She was 52 feet long, had a 10-foot beam and had a concave section forward and a long run aft to give her a speed of 35 knots. Indeed appearance-wise she was long, lean, racy. Under her deck pulsed two 250 horsepower Liberty motors. Under her seats along the sides were tanks that would hold 1,200 gallons of gasoline.

AT THE TIME of her creation, the boat-builder did not know that government men had their eye on her. But he learned shortly when the boat's new captain took the craft, named Jericho, on her shakedown cruise to Catalina and a Coast Guard cutter made the first of many attempts to capture her. The premise for search was "irregular registration," which really didn't hold water (no pun intended), for the boat had been registered as a high speed fish boat and the $10 fee paid.

The captain eluded the cutter by racing his boat into port and putting her on the ways. The Jericho was grounded, anyway, for six months.

After her release she was taken back to the Wilmington shop to conform with registration requirements. There the captain had a hinged stern installed so a load of "fish" could be disposed of quickly. A watertight cockpit was also installed.

Again the Jericho sallied forth, and for three years she made like an ocean wolf dodging the big grey wolf-hounds, for the most part Coast Guard cutters. They couldn't corner her. Not that the Coast Guardsmen weren't trying. No sooner did they get on the heels of the elusive B-girl (she was carrying Scotch) than apparently her owner disposed of her cargo through the self-bailing hinged stern and took her merrily on her way between the infamous Cortes Banks off the coast of Baja California to off Point Conception.

THE MERCHANDISE on the Jericho was in sacks tied with pieces of half-inch, four-strand rope on the ends of which were small submerged buoys. When the skipper wanted to lighten the load to make a quick getaway, he simply cut a string that held a weight near the pilot house. The sack then sank out of sight. If the weight still slowed the boat, the skipper cut another line. And still another, if need be. With good luck, the boys on the Jericho could later retrieve the merchandise.

The Case of the Shady Lady

With the repeal of the 18th amendment, the shady life of the Jericho came to a temporary end. Ernie Judd, veteran operator of Pacific Coast Water Taxi Company, bought her in 1934. She was reconditioned and seats running fore and aft for 82 passengers were added. The boat, now a queen of water taxis, went on regular runs between Long Beach and Santa Catalina Island. Sometimes she was chartered by glamorous film stars and others for parties.

Such a conventional life was not to be the turbulent lady's lot for long, however. In 1936 Judd assigned her to runs to the gambling ship, Monte Carlo. But one night, in thick fog alongside a fuel-dock in the harbor, the Jericho suddenly blew up, and most of her disappeared, burning, in 40 feet of water. Only her stern was visible.

JUDD HAD her carcass towed seaward with the intentions of punching holes in her gas tanks and sinking her to a watery grave. Then he recalled that he could use her reverse motor gears, so he took her about and beached her. He bored a hole in her sides to let the water out, then he left until such time as he could salvage her.

When he returned in two months, the Jericho was bobbing merrily on top of the water, the hole in her tank filled with kelp.

Since she refused to die, Judd decided to rebuild the Jericho. He found her keel good, her stern undamaged, and there were 200 gallons of salvageable gas in her tanks. By bending in some new ribs and adding a few top planks, he had practically a new boat to work with. He set about streamlining her, adding tubular furniture for 60 passengers, and installed new Liberty motors. So once again the Jericho made nightly runs from Long Beach to Avalon. She maintained a 25-knot speed, and the trip was only one hour and 15 minutes from shore to shore.

Another of her latter day occupations was playing in movies. Ridiculous though it may sound, the Jericho even played the part of a Coast Guard patrol boat for one film. In it the first two letters of her name were temporarily grayed off, and on celluloid she was called Richo.

Possibly no one knows where the bones of the rum runner, water taxi, and glamorous queen are today. In 1940 she was loaded aboard the British freighter, Silver Bay, at San Pedro, and taken to England to serve His Majesty in the Battle of Britain. But sometimes at night, when lights blink off Baja or Point Conception, her ghost may ply the ocean swells or slink into coves to hide. They say it may even make a run between Long Beach and Catalina Island.

Sights and Sounds of the Woods

By Vera Williams

Independent Press-Telegram Book Editor

THE LIFE STORY of an intelligent animal—the beloved horse Black Beauty; the adopted fawn, the Yearling; Elsa, the affectionate lion or the playful otters in Ring of Bright Water — allows the reader to escape from complex problems and project himself into a world at once more primitive and more understandable.

That is why Sterling North's "RASCAL," ($3.95), first winner of the Dutton animal book award given for the best work of fiction or non-fiction relating to animals may furnish the best escape reading of the season.

In May 1918, Sterling North and his St. Bernard, Wowser, found a den of small raccoons in a hollow stump in the woods near Edgerton, Wis. Sterling took one of the four unweaned, defenseless kits and raised him on warm milk—plus the milk of human kindness. Rascal repaid this kindness by becoming the best companion a motherless boy could have—sleeping, eating, swimming, fishing and canoeing with his young master—and only occasionally raiding chicken coops and sweet corn patches to arouse the wrath of neighbors.

The book is filled with the sights and sounds, songs and memories of a different world, nearly a half-century ago, when the birthright of every rural boy was the woods and waters of an unspoiled continent. That probably is why the subtitle of Rascal is "A Memoir of a Better Era."

SEVENTEENTH Century Europe was an area of intrigue. France, England and the Austrian Empire lusted for power. In the center were Spain and Carlos II—Carlos, the "Bewitched," sixth generation Hapsburg king of the Spanish Empire.

Born with the Hapsburg jaw, teeth pointing inward, blunted by a retarded intellect, subject to the weaknesses and diseases of generations of in-breeding (he was descended from Juana la Loca, the "Mad" through seven of his eight great-grandparents!) he lived on in blundering fashion for 39 years, unable to rule, unable to produce an heir to the throne. His death plunged Europe in the great War of the Spanish Succession.

"CARLOS: The King Who Would Not Die" by John Langdon-Davies (Prentice-Hall, $4.95).

"THE TIME has come—indeed it has already passed—when the American nations must unite in one of history's rare adventures in unity and unselfishness," writes Milton S. Eisenhower, who was special ambassador for eight years to Latin America for his brother, the former President.

"THE WINE IS BITTER: The United States and Latin America" (Doubleday, $4.95) is his appraisal of the events and developments during that period, which add up to his appeal, and warning, that the Alliance for Progress must succeed.

He reviews the three events leading to the Alliance: President Eisenhower's 1960 proposal to Congress; the Act of Bogota, and the Punte del Este Conference which laid down the principle of 10-year development plans.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN was no weakling or coward when he let Hitler take over the Sudetenland in 1938 in return for "peace in our time . . . with honor." Chamberlain's failure, which opened the hell gates of World War II, lay, rather, in his naive faith that Nazis were men of their word.

Keith Eubank, professor of history at North Texas State University, examines the tragedy of "MUNICH" (University of Oklahoma Press, $5) and assigns equal blame to Edouard Daladier and Georges Bonnet of France and even more guilt to double-dealing Russia.

Powerful military, diplomatic and psychological pressures, rather than Hitler's bluff, forced Chamberlain to his fateful decision. Eubank finds in his comprehensive and penetrating text.

RUSS LEADABRAND

LAND of emphatic contrasts: desert views and tall timber, lakes, campgrounds, fishing streams and ski resorts—that's the San Gabriel Mountains of Southern California.

And because it is a favorite stomping ground for Southlanders who like the tangy scent of pine with their hiking or camping—and still not wander too far from home—an important new handbook to the area, "A GUIDEBOOK TO THE SAN GABRIEL MOUNTAINS OF CALIFORNIA" (Ward Ritchie Press, $1.50 paperback) already is a best seller.

The author, Russ Leadabrand, a Pasadena newspaperman and magazine writer, has driven the roads of the San Gabriels, hiked its dim trails and seen its varied wildlife. And yet, before putting his book together, he turned to dozens of men also intimate with this range that separates the Mojave Desert from the sea-bounded coastlands.

Leadabrand's text— terse, vivid and ably written—is truly a gold mine for the outdoorsman. Maps and excellent photographs give it added impact.

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

ements and postage stamp gardens behind wrought-iron fences.

THIS LONDON changes slowly or not at all. It has survived the Plague, the Great Fire, and the Blitz to an astounding degree. There are few new buildings. Most seem to be of a monstrous Victorian vintage: mammoth and cavernous suburban railway stations of ugly red brick, heavy with Gothic arches, dark windows, and lacy towers; abandoned public markets under vaulted steel and glass roofs; and sagging, half-timbered Tudor facades.

Here, too, survive the last of an all but forgotten London tradition, the elaborate "public convenience." Some still have Edwardian brass gas lamps and fittings, marble stalls, stained glass windows, and fish bowl flush boxes, not to mention scrawlings on the walls that—in the words of an attendant—"would make yer blood run cold, it would." A few still are privately operated.

Scattered throughout these sections—most are to the east and north of the West End—are the true pubs of London. They invariably strike the visitor as the best-kept buildings of London, as they serve a dignified function as the working man's "club."

LITTLE KNOWN curiosities abound throughout this untouristed London, most dating to that wondrous and proud time of Victoria. Just beyond the jammed streets of "the City," London's Wall Street, where gents in silk topers still may be seen, lies Whitechapel. Jack the Ripper prowled near here, and on Jubilee Street, where the gas lamps have just lately been removed, Leon Biron and his notorious anarchists conspired. From Whitechapel also came Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army. Once the Yiddish theater thrived here, but today there are mostly delicatessens, cheap stores, and "turf accountants" (legal bookmakers).

Elizabeth I vacationed in Islington. It has since become urban, then decayed, and once more is becoming fashionable.

FEW CHINESE remain in once-sinister Limehouse, and its Victorian music halls and even old churches are falling under the redeveloper's bulldozer.

Best known of suburban London areas is Hampstead, a charming village set on a height among the rolling parklands of Hampstead Heath. It is a last determined effort to prevent incursion of the city.

But the ancient stage stops are scheduled for demolition here too, and together with the east-iron street clocks, pavilion-like drinking fountains, gas lamps and horse troughs, old London is slowly but inevitably giving way to the new.

TRAVELER'S GUIDE
YOUTH AND TRAVELER

Mexico's Famous 'Soup Seller'

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

MEXICO CITY — Gringos like to refer to Mexico as "Mananaland" because they have a notion — often conceived through an actual experience — that Mexicans never do today what they can put off until tomorrow.

Not Cesar Balsa.

Sr. Balsa in a few short years has parlayed a small cafe here to a chain of 10 beautiful hostleries stretching from midtown Manhattan (St. Regis) to Mexico City and Acapulco, six exciting nightclub-restaurants, and an ultra-swank motel.

"He's probably one Mexican who demands that today's tasks be done today," I commented to a close associate.

"No, senor," came back the quick rejoinder, "today's jobs — Senor Balsa, he gets these jobs done yesterday!"

BUT, ACTUALLY, he's a Mexican only by choice.

He was born in Spain, got his first job as a bellhop in Barcelona. A few years later — in 1948 — he and his bride came to Mexico on their honeymoon. Balsa was captivated by the Mexican people and saw in their country a sleeping giant about to awaken to tremendous growth. Instead of returning to Spain, he took a job as manager of a chain of restaurants.

Then, one day, he came upon a little restaurant here whose doors were closed by bankruptcy, and he was on his way to realizing his first dream — that of becoming a restaurant proprietor.

Within six months he had doubled the size of the restaurant, redesigned the setting with a garden and sweeping staircase, treated his patrons to music from a romantic violin ensemble.

MEXICANS REFERRED to him as the "soup seller."

Today his first restaurant — the famous Focolare — is a

CESAR Balsa
He's Mexico's Hotel King

mecca for gourmets who enjoy dining at its best to the music of a dozen beautifully costumed violinists playing from the broad steps of the rococo staircase.

Nearby is Balsa's famous night club-restaurant, the Jacaranda, overflowing with happy crowds. And a block away is his new nightclub, the CanCan. For this one it is said from good authority that reservations must be made six months in advance.

"You just can't knock superlative service, fine food and entertainment," explained a long-time observer. "Balsa dishes up all three."

BUT TODAY, at the tender age of 40, Balsa is better known as the Mexican hotel king.

American associates like to call him "the Conrad Hilton of Mexico."

Balsa, however, did not realize his second dream (conceived when he was a bellhop) of having his own hotel until 1957 when his El Presidente — declared by many to be the finest in Mexico City — was opened.

El Presidente, with the famous Balsa formula at work, was a success from the start. One hotel whetted his appetite for two, then three, then four...

The chain is still growing. Last month, he broke ground for his 11th, on the island of Cozumel, off Yucatan, and already is planning his 12th, in Merida.

A close associate estimates his fortune at $5 million (American).

You'd think that this man, with a restaurant-hotel empire on his shoulders, might be cold and businesslike. On the contrary, he is warm and friendly, almost adored by his associates.

He is also a sentimental little man. On his lapel is a pin with the letter "F." It stands for Focolare, his first enterprise.

"After all," he explains, "I'm still a soup seller."

Little Taj Mahal

By Reffa E. Ewers

CALIFORNIA'S Little Taj Mahal stands in an isolated area of the San Bernardino mountains, near Crestline. Conceived and erected by a man born in India, "Prince"

Akhoy Mozumdar, a religious leader of the 1930s, this majestic edifice was dedicated to the Lord, but has never had a sermon preached inside its gray granite walls.

Still to be completed is California's Little Taj Mahal in San Bernardino Mountains. Los Angeles YMCA owns it.

While a theological student at the Redlands University, Mozumdar visited the San Bernardino mountains and fell in love with them, saying they reminded him of his native land. He bought 10 acres, and began to dream of the structure that stands today upon the property.

Later he acquired 87 additional acres of wooded hills, canyons and grassy meadows.

Here he proposed to build the temple of his dreams. William Lodge of La Jolla, a follower and friend of the "Prince," drew up plans for the temple. It was also decided to include an outdoor amphitheater for open air meetings. Nature provided an ideal spot a short distance from the temple.

TWELVE large pillars, 30 feet high, and built of the same granite that went into the temple, stand about the perimeter of the theater.

These represent the 12 Apostles.

Near the entrance to the Pillars of God Temple is a sign that reads, "If you are weary and heavy laden, and are afflicted with sorrow and suffer, rest here awhile. The Eternal Christ will give you peace and rest and health for your body and mind. Banish all fear and worry. Feel the protecting arms of the Eternal Father—Peace be with you."

Much of the property remained unfinished. It was purchased by the YMCA of Los Angeles and will be completed according to original plans. The large auditorium will be used for special meetings and lectures. Downstairs rooms are now used as classrooms for summer vacationers. Other recreational facilities include a large swimming pool, playground and cabins.

The temple is reached by taking Arrowhead Ave. out of San Bernardino, going to Crestline, thence to Cedar Pines Park, and along the main road.

Sherman Institute, located in Riverside, takes Indian youths from the reservation and orients them in life.

A Farewell to the Reservation

By Frank L. Remington

UNIQUE among educational institutions, Sherman Institute at Riverside helps young Indians to shift from old culture of a pastoral life on the reservation to the new existence of a wage economy in city ways.

"We are mighty proud of our graduates," says kindly appearing Myrthus W. Evans, superintendent of the institute for the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs. A dedicated educator, he has guided Sherman Institute for the bureau for 16 years and has helped many Indian youngsters mold a better lot for themselves.

"Considering the momentous educational handicaps they face, our graduates are compiling an exceptionally fine employment record," Evans said: "Of last year's 112 graduates, most are gainfully employed or going to higher-level schools."

A HIGHLY experienced guidance staff supervises the new arrivals in their adjustment to the white man's culture. The seven dormitories emphasize home living; a trained counselor supervises each.

In their brightly-colored, gaily-flowered sport shirts, blouses, and skirts, the students appear little different from other American young people. Perhaps some students, though, question the benefits of white man's civilization and abandon old customs with cautious reservation. About matters torsorial, young Navajo Dick Alcott explains: "I think the boys don't want to get their hair cut because they remember old stories that Indians should have long hair so there'll be lots of rain. But we aren't on our reservations and we look neat with a haircut. We should forget the old ways and think of our future life."

Like Dick, most students at Sherman are thinking about their future.

Early in their first year new students visit downtown Riverside with their teachers. They see their first stores and learn about traffic signals and the duties of policemen and firemen. Later, students are encouraged to visit shopping areas on their own and many secure weekend jobs through the Sherman placement service. Girls usually do housework and baby sit. The boys perform a variety of odd jobs.

Culinary skill learned at Sherman Institute helps this young Indian earn a living in complex modern economy.

FOR PART-TIME Saturday work last year, Sherman students earned $39,000. They are encouraged to save in the school bank which is run by effervescent Mrs. Vicki Benedict of Sherman's office staff. She has more than 300 individual student accounts, ranging from one cent to $400. "The one cent account," Mrs. Benedict says, "belongs to a determined Papago lad. He won't withdraw his penny because he says, 'I want money in the bank.'" Like Sherman's other employees, teachers, and instructors, Mrs. Benedict speaks glowingly of the students.

There are some 100 buildings on the 80-acre palm-studded campus. Established in 1900, the institute bears the name of James S. Sherman, then chairman of the Indian affairs congressional committee.

Of the 1,000 students, 700 are Navajos.

Ranging in age from 12 to 21, many of the students come from remote areas of

Arizona and New Mexico reservations. "Most students here are academically retarded four or five years simply because they've had no opportunity to attend school," says Principal Edgar L. Samons. "In their five years here we advance them as fast as their capabilities permit."

UPON graduation, in addition to a knowledge of American culture and customs, Sherman students have attained an academic level of from fourth to ninth grade and acquired a salable skill in a vocation to enable them to face the economic challenge of the off-reservation world. Students spend three years concentrating on general academic subjects like English, science, arithmetic, social studies, and modern American customs. New students who speak only tribal tongues concentrate on English during their initial year.

During their first three years the boys also devote an hour or two daily in general shop classes learning the fundamentals of various vocations, and ultimately choose one in which to specialize. They select from a wide variety of trades: printing, carpentry and mill cabinet, cooking and baking, machine shop and welding, and painting and furniture finishing.

The last two years at Sherman the students devote most of their time to developing skills in their chosen vocation. In Judson Bradley's print shop, preoccupied Indian youths operate linotype machines and printing presses. Bradley is part Cherokee Indian; in fact, half of the Sherman employes boast Indian descent.

IN BAKING classes, students prepare all the baked goods for the school dining room except loaf bread, which would be too time-consuming.

She's a Sophomore Majorette

Merrilyn Erskine, Poly High School sophomore, has gained recognition as a majorette.

By Frank Jewell

WHAT of the bare-limbed majorette who struts and tosses her baton in street parades? What sort of girl can she be? Must she be brash and vulgar?

Not at all! And Merrilyn Erskine, majorette for Poly High School's band is a case in point. Despite regular appearances at school games, baton contests, band concerts and parades, Merrilyn is gentle, unassuming and even shy. Her bathing suits and costumes are such customary garb that she is completely

Indian School

In the paint shop, tyro painters busily spray iron cots from the dormitories. Each shop contributes to school maintenance in every way possible.

The girls receive practical training in sewing, cooking, serving meals, shopping, child care, and other home economic subjects.

Graduates locate work through Sherman's Guidance and Placement Committee, which operates through the Los Angeles branch of the Indian Affairs' Relocation Office. "Only about 15 to 20 per cent of our graduates return to the reservation permanently or take employment in towns near the reservation," Superintendent Evans comments. "Many of our former students have assumed positions of responsibility in their communities, both on and off the reservation."

The young Indians' will to learn, their determination to support themselves in their chosen trades, and their willingness to adopt the white man's language and culture are paying rich dividends in raising their standard of living and in integrating them into mid-20th century American life. In this social revolution "Sherman Institute is playing a prominent role, natural in her unawareness of them.

The only sophomore at Poly to become a majorette, Merrilyn, at 15, merits this enviable position because of her top scholastic standing, dependable character and baton skill. She practices at least two hours daily perfecting new techniques learned from Bud Skrivan, her baton teacher since February 1962.

The lessons began with basic twirls of wrists and fingers, simple rolls and hand passes. Some stretching and limbering exercises now precede practice as well as run-throughs of contest routines which she uses also for concert appearances with Son's

Long Beach Junior Concert Band. Though music accompanies these difficult performances, Merrilyn insists that she does not hear it. She does keep time, though, when there are other girls in line working in unison.

Son's Junior Band Pompon Corps routines are planned by Merrilyn who is their leader. The 20 girls practice with their pompons weekly and often on Saturdays during band-marching exercises. Merrilyn's mother, Mrs. Merrill Erskine, chaperones these junior high to college-age girls at practice and on bus tours as she has done since her daughter joined the band at 12.

"The band activities keep us very busy and the teenagers out of trouble," says Merrilyn's father, "but we enjoy it and never miss a parade, concert, party or contest."

Dolls Recall Women of History

Dolls are the hobby of Mrs. Katherine Kimbrough, shown here with Lillian Russell doll in an elaborate costume. Photos by Joe Risner

By Vera Williams

SINCE she was a girl of six years, the Rev. Katherine Kimbrough, 724 Elm Ave., has enjoyed dressing dolls.

Now she has 225 dolls, exquisitely dressed, as women of history. Mrs. Kimbrough designed and made all of the costumes and furniture used in the doll settings.

She plans to display her dolls next year in New York, at the time of the World's Fair.

"There are 40 million doll collectors in the world," she says. "Doll collecting ranks third as a hobby — stamps first, then coins, then dolls . . . Fifty million dolls are sold every year in the United States."

DOMINATING the collection is a doll that belonged to Mrs. Kimbrough's great-grandmother. Mrs. Kimbrough has dressed the doll to represent Lillian Russell in a pink satin-blue panne velvet costume, trimmed with pearls and lace, with an ostrich plume hat. Materials, trimming and ostrich feathers all came from costumes worn by Mrs. Kimbrough's mother.

Standing side by side are the Emperor and Empress of China, the last of the Manchus, in authentic court costumes. The Emperor has a jeweled sword.

Nearby sits Mae Murray, between the scenes of "The Merry Widow."

Marie Antoinette is Mrs. Kimbrough's favorite historical character and she has several dolls to represent her. One depicts her dressed for a ball, seeing in a mirror a vision of the guillotine that was to behead her.

MRS. KIMBROUGH has two Marilyn Monroes. One is Marilyn in a black evening gown trimmed with sequins and shirred tulle, and one is Marilyn in a gold lame gown with cape.

She has dolls representing Lady Hamilton, the Empress Catherine of Russia, Pavlova in dancing pose, and a Park Avenue matron of the 1890s in broadtail-trimmed costume with a muff.

Mrs. Kimbrough still has dolls she dressed when she was six years old. One is in white silk and the other in green organdy. The stitches are childish but the costumes still are pretty.

This doll "impersonates" the late Marilyn Monroe. Collection has 225 dolls.

This slim guide is the reason
new Kotams tampon can give more protection, more comfort

At last there's a tampon that's really protective! For new Kotams is designed with a slim guide that places the tampon exactly where needed to give you the most complete protection possible.

Old-style ways of inserting a tampon can be very haphazard with bulky applicators—or no inserter at all. No wonder protection is so often incomplete!

But with new Kotams it's virtually impossible to position this tampon incorrectly. For the Kotams guide stem has a tapered grip that makes you hold it just the right way for perfect placement. There's no guesswork at all. The tampon is angled correctly, directed smoothly to the most comfortable and protective position. Then the stem releases immediately.

Positioning is so easy, so gentle and sure. The Kotams tampon is a small size, compressed so that it can expand 4 times its size for greater absorbency.

Try this new-style tampon in Regular or Super absorbency. They're attractively wrapped, individually, to carry discreetly in your purse.

Who-oo's Who-oo of Owls

Young North American horned owl has become a special pet of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Gras of Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum.

By Betty Hardesty

OWLS' WINGS have built-in mufflers of soft, velvety-surfaced feathers which allow them to pounce on their prey without making a sound. This unique ability makes owls indispensable in the control of rats, mice, gophers and rabbits.

Barn owls, most common in California, nest in palm trees and often roost on rafters of dairy barns. A pair of these owls will catch as many mice, gophers and other ground creatures as a dozen cats, according to Kenton C. Lint, curator of birds, San Diego Zoo.

"Please get the barn owls out of our roof trusses," was an appeal he received from an aircraft factory where the messy habit and steady gaze of numerous owls was hampering production. Lint had them caught and shipped with a conservation project to Honolulu where they were needed to aid Hawaiian owls in eradicating unwanted rodents.

Screech owls, with either grey or reddish coloring, are numerous in California. Smallest of North American owls with ear tufts, they are only eight inches in length and should be carefully protected because three-fourths of their food consists of insect pests and rodents. The tiny, five-inch elf owl eats insects exclusively and lives in South-eastern California where it nests in holes high up in giant cactus.

WESTERN burrowing owls have rather unowlish habits. They nest in deserted burrows of prairie dogs, squirrels, foxes and skunks, collect and store up supplies of food in good weather, greet people as they stand in the doors of their burrows by making several head-bending bows, and see perfectly in the sun's glare with eyes unlike other owls.

The staring wide eyes, probably more than the weird voices, nocturnal habits and silent flight of owls, influenced ancient Greeks to designate them as symbols of wisdom. Though not necessarily wise, owls are specialists in the capture of nocturnal prey for the pupils of their eyes are capable of extreme dilation to use the faintest ray of light. Unlike other birds, owls' eyes are directed forward and converge to a greater degree. They are not blind in daylight but have an internal eyelid to draw for extra shade.

Owls detect the softest mouse squeak through large ears hidden beneath plumage of the head while the two long tufts resembling erect ears worn by many of the 400 species, have no connection with hearing.

PET PARADE

One of a Kind

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE IS just one family of cockatiels, although breeders work for different colors. Some are difficult to sex. A male may mature earlier, and it is he who learns to talk well, not the hen. However, a hen is gentle, loving, often quiet, perhaps more venturesome. She also has a stronger instinct to live.

Cockatiels should be well-feathered and have some pin feathers before they leave their parents. They usually accept humans as substitute parents in a short time and can be hand fed with a canary feeder. Food can be pabulum mixed with other baby cereal and a very small amount of dry egg sheet, all to be thinned with boiled warm water. Food is gradually changed to hard-boiled egg yolk, seeds, grit, and later some bits of carrot and celery tops.

may become elongated, especially after and during moult. A tame bird will let you clip his nails. Hold him up to light so you can see the tiny blood vessel that runs partway down under each toenail. Do not cut this vessel, as it could prove dangerous to your bird.

Small sharp scissors and an emery board can be used to trim the beak. Do a little at a time, and do not cut back beyond normal outline.

Of course, the most interesting part of most bird-keeping is teaching the bird to talk. Cage him alone. Cuddle him often under your chin and walk with him on your shoulder. As you go about, call him by name. Slowly teach him other words. Make sentences short. Some people also teach their birds to whistle, but others say it is best to stay strictly to talking.

A BIRD'S CAGE should be placed out of drafts. At night, drape a clean white cloth over the cage. This not only helps keep night air from chilling the bird but serves as a check to see if red mites are present. Mites attack birds during the night, but in daylight they hide in the cage. They will get on the white cloth in the morning and can be detected. If any are present, use a commercial insecticide for birds. Follow directions exactly.

Another mite not so easily found is scaly leg mite. If the cere, facet, neck or legs of the bird appear to have a gray, spongy substance on them, suspect this mite. A veterinarian should be consulted.

A bird needs fresh drinking water. When a baby, he will drink from a canary feeder. Boil water at first and gradually mix in local water. Of course, offer it cool.

GRIT, cuttlebone, mineral blocks, and twigs from wood help a bird keep his beak and nails in good shape. However, there are times when both

Many Flowers Rolled Into One

By Joe Littlefield

LIKE the hostess-cook who adds a dash of "this," a sprinkling of "that," and a little of "something else," and creates a tasty dish of food, the gardener who grows Gloriosa daisies is reminded of the unusually interesting flower characteristics of rudbeckia, gaillardia, and helianthus, rolled into one.

The single to semi-double and double flowers come in shades of brown, yellow or orange. The showy flowers furnish garden color, yet some of them may be cut for table use.

The plants like lots of sun and water and are perennial in growth tendencies. Half a dozen planted in a sunny flower bed provide lots of flowers.

SOME HOME gardeners try growing strawberry plants for fruit but have little success.

Joe Aseltyn, home gardener and one of our readers, offers these suggestions.

Select a sunny area with enough room so plants may be spaced properly for expansion. Loosen the soil to a depth of at least 6 inches. If the soil is compact, mix with steer manure and peat moss.

Before planting, put in each planting hole about one heaping tablespoon of a mixture of 4 pounds of steer manure, 4 tablespoons of both bone meal and blood meal, and 2 tablespoons of cottonseed meal (tablespoons should be heaping, not level). Mix the materials thoroughly and place dry in each hole.

THIS SAME mixture should be used to fertilize your plants at least once every four months. Place the mixture close around plants, then loosen the soil around them.

Fix soil in heaps or piles and tamp closely around the plant roots. Cut off about one-third of the plant roots prior to planting. Arrange plants in rows approximately 6 to 8 inches apart, depending upon the number of plants and the space you have available.

Irrigate the plants until soil is wet about 1½ to 2 inches deep. Plants should be irrigated at least once a week or oftener in hot weather. To see if more water is needed, dig a furrow in the soil about an inch deep, if dry at that area, more water is needed.

After the plants have taken hold, spray with good insecticide and use a snail and slug bait as often as necessary. To prevent root destruction place a fumigation capsule approximately 2 yards apart in every other row.

After plants have borne their crop of berries and start sending out runners, and you want larger berries the second year, cut the runners off. In the third year allow runners to mature. In the spring of the fourth year remove the original plants and let younger ones take over. Berries on fourth year plants may be much smaller and inclined to be pithy.

Fuchsia Club

"Adding Color In the Shade Garden" will be the topic of Joe Littlefield, gardening specialist and writer, at a meeting of North Long Beach Fuchsia Club at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Houghton Park Clubhouse, 6301 Myrtle Ave., Long Beach. Members and visitors are invited to submit landscape or garden problems for discussion and advice.

Gloriosa daisies are garden brighteners and will supply plenty of flowers and to spare for arrangements.

By Dorothy Jonson

When the foliage on your roses and other plants lose their luster and become unsightly, it may be that there is a deficiency of mineral elements in the soil. In an over-alkaline soil this condition usually exists because the mineral elements are "locked up."

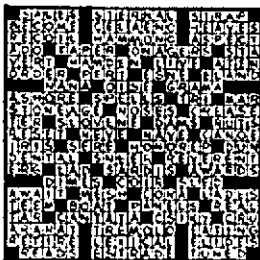

Human life cannot maintain its health without a proper proportion of food and minerals, and we try to offset any such lack by means of vitamins. We also safeguard our health by trying to improve our living conditions.

We should, therefore, fortify plant life by reinforcing the soil with necessary minerals. To get prompt and satisfactory results, I recommend the use of a trace element product containing iron and other minerals, which is also a soil penetrant. This will counteract the alkalinity in the soil and fortify it against additional alkalinity contributed by the chlorinated water used for irrigation.

Mums Due Soon

When September comes, the gardener knows that chrysanthemum bloom is close behind. Thus the care of recent months is about to pay off. Nurserymen warn against dropping the program of chrysanthemum care at this point, however, for the plants still need water and if the buds are not yet showing color you can feed them once again. Be sure the plants are staked enough to support the bloom when it comes.

Beware of the Animals

IF YOU visit the national parks this summer, do not "fraternize" with the wild animals, especially bears.

This warning has been issued by the Department of Interior's National Park Service which explains that the park areas are sanctuaries where wildlife is permitted to roam in complete freedom; and that the animals often resent being teased or not being fed "handouts."

Six basic safety rules:

Avoid and stay away from all wild animals, especially bears. Never feed them, molest them and never try to make friends with them. This applies when riding, walking, or hiking.

Never stop on highways to watch bears as this may lead to "bear jams." Bears may attack and serious traffic accidents may occur.

Keep windows and car doors closed when wild animals are suspected to be around. Close windows and doors when you park your car.

Keep all foods in locked car trunks or containers. Dispose of garbage promptly. Food and food odors will cause bears to make a damaging search for food.

If any bear, or other wild animal, continues to wander around your camp area or otherwise scares or annoys you, report the incident to a Ranger immediately.

Be especially alert in Yellowstone, Sequoia and Kings Canyon, Yosemite, Great Smoky Mountains, Glacier, Grand Teton, Olympic, Crater Lake, Lassen Volcanic, Mount Rainier, Mount McKinley, and Rocky Mountain National Parks, and Glacier Bay National Monument.

It's Recommended

ONE OF THE MOST enjoyable aspects of dining out is the art of discovering something so delightful that you can recommend it wholeheartedly to your friends.

But you must be cautious. You have to choose something you know your friends will enjoy as much as you did, because you wouldn't wish to suffer the embarrassment of having them be disappointed. And, of course, the price should be right.

Those requirements are met quite perfectly by the $2.65 top sirloin dinner at the beautifully redecorated (inside and out) Melody Cove restaurant, 1960 Santa Fe Ave. For years the owners and hosts, Jerry Reynolds and his wife Josephine, have offered their guests fine steaks at modest prices. They are particularly proud of their current steak feature, a 10-ounce sirloin of juicy Grade A quality, carefully broiled and served with a delectable soup or generous salad, steamy baked potato with cheese sauce and chopped onions, a basket of fresh hot garlic toast and beverage.

The Melody Cove, which is closed Sundays, serves its full menu the rest of the week from 11 a.m. to midnight. Among the other steak features, all of which are worth writing home about, are an unusual $2.25 teriyaki steak (served with a cup of exotic teriyaki sauce for dipping); a splendid big New York steak for $3.95 and a large top sirloin for $3.25. Also emphasized are excellent sea foods and chicken.

The Cove, victim of a fire earlier this year, now sports a new exterior of smart Palos Verdes stone, new mahogany doors and monkey pod wood paneling inside, plus an air conditioning system, new bar and elegant, wine-colored, wall-to-wall carpeting.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE SUNDAY NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

Television Mothers Never Wear Bikinis

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —
Ever since television began presenting family-type shows,
viewers have complained about video parents being unrealistic.

Mom never smokes a cigarette, they grouse. Or, Dad hardly ever tells his wife to go jump in the lake, as a brave husband is expected to do occasionally.

But television mothers have rules which they must abide

by. We took a survey of some popular video housewives to learn the taboos.

WHITNEY BLAKE, the mother on "Hazel," says, "I don't know if television knows what a housewife is. I'm not talking about this show specifically."

Citing specific complaints,
the pretty Whitney said, "You don't make love to your husband. You can't be too affectionate or too angry. If you're angry, it's tempered.

You can't wear trousers, although I will in one of the shows. Mothers don't wear
bikinis."

Television moms not only have to be circumspect in their own shows, they must not soil their image on other series. Such is the case with June Lockhart, the mother on "Lassie."

"ANY WORK that I do has to be within the image and concept of the mother on
'Lassie,'" she said. "The character is a very even-tempered woman."

Miss Lockhart doesn't wear slacks on her show. And she can't wear shoes with heels that are too high. Emotion is something else that is rationed.

In only one scene has she been allowed to indulge in a touch of good old female hysteria. That was when she was riding in a truck which was about to fall off a cliff.
Any mother would get excited
on the edge of a cliff.

DONNA REED, one of tele-
vision's most successful
mothers, said, "In the beginning I wasn't allowed to lose
my temper frequently enough,
but that was only the first few months."

Miss Reed said she doesn't think of herself as a television mother. She's playing the part.

Donna believes that television's moms should reflect some of the human errors of their real-life counterparts,
maybe even break a dish once in a while or burn the dinner.

"THE FUN comes when we stumble and stub our toes,"
she said. "That's what comedy is based on, the mistakes
you make."

As for disciplining television's children, that could take all night on television,
like it often does at home.

"If I had to stop on our show and give as many orders as I do at home with four children, we'd never get the show over," she said.

However, Donna is a firm believer in discipline, claiming, "I think we're the strictest parents on television."

A Preview of the New TV Season

By TERRY VERNON

Between Sept. 15 and mid-October some 32 new network programs will be unveiled on that little screen in your living room.

Yet looking at the line-up, it appears that the newest thing in television is the block-busting, single "premiere week" concept to be used by both CBS and ABC in shooting off all their big guns within one 7-day period.

Fortunately for both viewers and critics, the two chose different weeks to launch their new seasons.

DRS. KILDARE and Casey will remain the only physicians to care for TV's medical ills, but ABC will unveil "Breaking Point," its new psychiatry series, which incidentally was in the works before "The Eleventh Hour" hit the screens last year.

Westerns still are being de-emphasized, with only four old stalwarts returning. Even "Rawhide" finally bit the dust at the last minute. Only new western is NBC's "Temple Houston," in which Jeffrey Hunter plays a lawyer on horseback, son of Gen. Sam Houston.

Just one new lawyer, other than Houston, will hang up his TV shingle. And Chuck Connors, on the "trial" segment of ABC's new piggy-back 90-minute "Arrest and Trial," automatically will defend the suspect nabbed by Ben Gazzara during the earlier "arrest" portion.

CBS, which had the best year in its history with its long parade of comic strips, will launch three more. "Glynis" on Wednesday nights will star Glynis Johns as a kind of Pamela North-Mrs. Thin Man scatterbrain.

Bea Benaderet leaves her Cousin Pearl role of "The Beverly Hillbillies" to take off on her own as star of another INOGENE COCA stars as a spunky but consistently put-upon working girl who takes a different job each week in the new comedy series "Grindl" which premieres Sunday, Sept. 15, at 8:30 p.m. on channel 4.

brainchild of Paul Henning, "Petticoat Junction." And that old Bilko returns to head up a Saturday night "New Phil Silvers show."

Imogene Coca will be back on the home screens in "Grindl," which with "The Bill Dana Show" make up NBC's new Sunday comedy entries. Grindl is an itinerant domestic who finds a new job each week.

Both Perry Como and Andy Williams are cut down in the number of their outings next season, but devotees of the entertainment-variety-musical shows may tune in weekly hours starring Danny Kaye, Judy Garland and Jimmy Dean—or the two-hour Saturday night marathon by Jerry Lewis. And ABC's "Hootenanny" has been expanded to a full hour.

"Twilight Zone," which returns to its 30-minute format, will be joined by two others of the science-fiction format. CBS's "My Favorite Martian" will be played strictly for comedy, while ABC's "Outer Limits" will appeal more to those who like the chillers

SUNDAY

THE LOST MOMENT — 12:30 p.m., ch. 5. Robert Cummings, Susan Hayward, Agnes Moorehead (1947). Absorbing drama from Henry James' novel. Young American publisher finds that love letters he has been seeking in Venice cause near-tragedy and a girl's strange illusion.

FRIENDLY PERSUASION — 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 9. Gary Cooper, Dorothy McGuire, Anthony Perkins, Richard Eyer (1956). First run. Religious bigotry as it existed in the early days of our frontiers as Quakers are rejected by others in a community. William Wyler directed.

THAT FORSYTE WOMAN — 9:30 p.m., ch. 11. Greer Garson, Errol Flynn, Robert Young, Walter Pidgeon, Janet Leigh (1949). Based on Galsworthy classic of a woman and the three men she loved. Screened without commercial interruption.

BELLES ON THEIR TOES — 10:20 p.m., in color, ch. 9. Myrna Loy, Jeanne Crain, Debra Paget (1952). First run. Sequel to "Cheaper by the Dozen," continuing with the Gilbreth family of 12 children following the death of the father.

THURSDAY
FARMER'S DAUGHTER — 8:30 p.m., ch. 5. Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten, Ethel

Barrymore (1947). Oscar-winning film of fiery Swedish servant girl who fights against the man she loves for a Congressional seat. Basis for a new fall ABC series.

FRIDAY
THEY WERE EXPEND-

ABLE — 8 p.m., ch. 11. Robert Montgomery, John Wayne, Donna Reed, Ward Bond (1945). Top drawer war picture dedicated to the Navy men who fought the Japanese in small PT boats.

SATURDAY
FRAULEIN — 9 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Dana Wynter, Mel Ferrer, Theodore Bikel, Maggie Hayes (1958). Young German girl is caught in the chaos of the final weeks of World War II.

A Preview of the New Season

featuring monsters and creatures from other worlds.

BOTH ABC and NBC will be going back to school this fall. NBC's "Mr. Novak" is played against a high school background—from the faculty angle, not another "Dobie Gillis"—while ABC's "Channing" is set on the campus of a midwestern coeducational college.

Gene Barry will be television's newest, and richest, detective when ABC unveils its "Burke's Law," a kind of light-hearted murder-for-fun series produced by Aaron Spelling. Burke is driven to the crime scenes in his own Rolls Royce, and has more contact with live women than with corpses.

Richard Boone's new repertory theater will take over on NBC where Dick Powell left off in the drama department. Bob Hope will host another drama series for NBC in between his monthly variety specials. And CBS hands George C. Scott his first TV series in "East Side, West Side," a David Susskind production of social workers in a private welfare agency in Manhattan.

ABC, which didn't fare too well with its "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," will try another television of an Oscar-winning movie when it launches "Farmer's Daughter," also with a Washington setting. Inger Stevens, Emmy winner for her "Price of Tomatoes" role on Dick Powell's show, will play the Swedish farm girl who goes to work as a governess in the household of a Congressman.

THE FATALITIES among last season's programs amounted to nearly 40 per cent, yet the only major new stars to be introduced to television are George C. Scott, Glynis Johns and three new ones for ABC. Dan O'Herlihy will star in an adaption of the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel "The Travels of Jamie McPheeters," while Jack Palance will head a color hour set behind the canvas walls of the circus, and Oscar-winning Patty Duke will play a dual role as look-alike cousins.

But all the veterans of defunct series are back.

Chuck Connors sheds his "Rifleman" garb for that of the defense attorney on "Arrest and Trial."

"Naked City's" James Franciscus will star in "Mr. Novak," while one-time "Richard Diamond," David Janssen, stars as ABC's "The Fugitive."

THE PLUSH living of "Amos Burke" will be a pleasant change from "Bat Masterson" for Gene Barry, and that old "Man Against Crime" Ralph Bellamy will take over the senior psychiatrist role in "The Eleventh Hour."

Larry Blyden, who flopped in "Joe and Mabel" and won raves in the one-shot "What Makes Sammy Run?" will chase around Europe with three beauties in NBC's "Harvey's Girls."

But stars of "The Richard

Boone Show" and "Petticoat Junction" still lay claim to the most past series.

Boone is a veteran of two years of "Medic" and six of "Have Gun, Will Travel," while Bea Benaderet played Blanche Morton in the old Burns and Allen series, Mama in "Meet Millie," and, of course, Cousin Pearl.

SPECIAL

DAY OF TRIUMPH—The dramatic story of the life of Christ is told from a non-denominational view in a special color feature at 7 p.m., ch. 9. Lee J. Cobb, Joanne Dru, James Griffith, Lowell Gilmore and Michael Connors star, as Biblical scenes recreate the Sermon on the Mount, raising of Lazarus, conversion of Mary Magdalene, persecution of John the Baptist, the Crucifixion and Resurrection.

MISS BRONZE—Tapes of the "Miss Bronze California" beauty contest held July 27 at the Moulin Rouge will be seen from 11 p.m. to 2:30 a.m. on ch. 7. Girls are judged in swim suits and evening gowns, and may vie for an optional talent award if they wish. Mayor Sam Yorty presents the winner's trophy to the girl judged most beautiful in the American Negro tradition, with Eartha Kitt presenting the grand talent award.

Q. When President Kennedy was journeying around Europe a few weeks ago, did he take time out to visit his sister's grave in Derbyshire? —L. T., New Rochelle, N.Y.

A. He did.

Q. In 1948 a Negro girl, Edith Iby, was the first of her race to enroll in a southern medical school. I believe it was at the University of Arkansas. Can you tell me what's become of her? —O. Calderon, San Antonio, Tex.

A. She is now Dr. Edith Jones, chief of cardiology at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Houston, Tex. She is also a clinical instructor at Baylor University Hospital. She is married to Dr. J. B. Jones, a dean at Texas Southern College. They have two children.

Q. As a stockholder in CBS I would like to know if the network has built two $75,000 dressing rooms for Danny Kaye and Judy Garland. And if so, why? —F. T., White Plains, N.Y.

A. The TV network spent $75,000 on a penthouse for Kaye and $75,000 on a trailer dressing room setup for Judy Garland. Reason: to keep them happy.

Q. When did the great silent star Rudolph Valentino die? And wasn't there a rumor at the time that he was shot by a jealous husband? —R. C., New York, N.Y.

A. Valentino died in 1926 when he was on a visit to New York. There were plenty of rumors about the cause of his death. He died of Peritonitis.

Q. I understand that Roger Kahn, the sportswriter who wrote Calories Don't Count, is writing the autobiography of Mickey Rooney. When will it appear? —Ike Freund, Baltimore, Md.

A. Kahn was hired to ghost the Rooney autobiography, delivered 80 per cent of the book, then filed a $75,000 breach of contract suit against Rooney for calling off the deal. The actor counterclaims Kahn breached the contract because the manuscript "contained many grievous and serious misstatements of fact." Result: no book.

Q. A New York furrier named Lou Ritter was once married to actress Carroll Baker. Was he also married to Zsa Zsa Gabor? —F. Bloom, Hempstead, N.Y.

A. Gabor and Ritter, who is now deceased, were never married.

Q. I would like to find out where screen star Stella Stevens was born, what was her name at the time of her birth and who the man was who gave her a start in motion pictures. —E. P., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Stella Stevens was born in Hot Coffee, Miss. Her real name is Estelle Eggleston. Her original sponsor was a Philadelphia theater-owner named Marty Shapiro.

Q. Who said: "The husband who's always busy as a bee may some day find his honey missing"? —Vic Healy, New York, N.Y.

A. Bob Hope.

Q. What's happened to Juliet Frouce? Is she really returning to South Africa? —Helen Adams, Chicago, Ill.

A. She is starring in Irma La Douce in summer stock, plans to film in Europe, claims, "After my romance with Sinatra was over, 20th Century-Fox shoved me right into the ground with four triple C pictures. Now I have to start all over again."

Q. What is the setup between Dame Margot Fonteyn, the ballerina, and Rudolph Nureyev? They've been doing the ballet tour everywhere. Doesn't she ever see her Panamanian husband? —H. T., Dallas, Tex.

A. Dr. Roberto Arias, former Panamanian Ambassador to Great Britain, spends most of his time in Panama supervising his investments. Miss Fonteyn is accompanied by her 74-year-old mother on these ballet tours. She and Nureyev are colleagues.

Q. Recently Charles Wrightman rented the 680-ton yacht, Radiant, from Basil Matroleon, the Greek shipping king. He paid $10,000 a month rent for the yacht. I would like to know who is Charles Wrightman that he can afford such rates. —Ellen Charles, Indianapolis, Ind.

A. He is an oil millionaire, Palm Beach neighbor of the Kennedys, father of Charlene Wrightman Cassini, who earlier this year took her life.

Q. Is Jerry Lewis an egomaniac? —Bernard Roth, Passaic, N. J.

A. He is extremely confident.

Q. Who is Marie Cui, who recently named Marlon Brando as the father of her 4-month-old daughter? How much money does she want? —Carla O'Kane, Frankfort, Ky.

A. Marie Cui is a Philippine dancer who gave birth to a daughter, Maya Gabriella, on February 27, 1963. She charges Brando is the father of her child. She wanted $775 a month, but a few weeks ago a court announced that Brando was not the child's father.

Q. I read in PARADE that Gary Player, 28, is well on his way to becoming a millionaire. Is this really true? How come there is so much money in professional golf? The prizes don't seem that large. —Tom Winston, Raleigh, N.C.

A. It is true. The big money in golf for professionals like Player, Palmer and Nicklaus lies in endorsements and television, not prize purses.

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

You can fight either end!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

For flavor and enjoyment you just can't beat Pall Mall's natural mildness. It's so good to your taste. Never too strong. Never too weak. Always just right! Enjoy satisfying flavor...so friendly to your taste. Outstanding...and they are Mild!

COMPARE ALL THREE!

Smoke "traveled" through fine tobacco tastes best.

Pall Mall's famous length travels the smoke naturally...over, under, around and through the finest tobaccos money can buy. Makes it mild...but does not filter out that satisfying flavor!

Judge Santora examines defendant. He may order teenage jurors to question the culprit directly.

'HOW SHALL WE PUNISH THIS TEENAGER?'

Asking this question of a teenage jury, a Jacksonville judge is helped to reach a just verdict

by E. D. FALES, JR.

Into court here one day swaggered an arrogant young man, arrested for throwing rocks at a motorist. "Guilty?" asked the judge. "Or not guilty?"

The lad sneered. "That's my business. Maybe you're smart enough to find out?"

Jacksonville's two-fisted young municipal judge, John E. Santora, Jr., is a no-nonsense jurist. But the judge has three sons of his own and is noted for fairness—and patience.

"Son," he asked, "how old are you?"

"Seventeen."

"Then turn around and face the boys and girls behind you." The boy whirled around. He hadn't noticed the six teenage jurors sitting quietly behind the spectator rail, eyeing him with interest.

"I've got to talk to them?"

"You may if you like. They're going to help me decide what to do about you."

The arrogance drained from the boy's face. He could try to fool the judge but he knew he'd never bluff his keen-eyed contemporaries. "OK," he said. "I did it."

"You really stoned a man while he was driving?" one girl queried. The boy nodded. "You knew you could have caused him to crash?" asked a boy. Again a nod. The teenagers wanted to give the youth a break, but found only proof that he was a dangerous hoodlum. He had no remorse.

"I find you guilty," said Judge Santora. Then he asked the teenagers: "You've heard his story. What do you want me to do?"

The teenagers whispered together. Then a boy foreman stood up. "We recommend 10 days in jail and a $75 fine."

Judge Santora turned to the prisoner. "You've heard what these teenagers think of your act and attitude," he said. "I accept their recommendation, and when you get out of jail, don't ever let me see you in this court again."

There's little chance the boy will ever be back. Jacksonville's novel Youth Jury, in action only 13 months, has spread consternation among young delinquents here, who at last are beginning to mind their manners and respect the law.

A bold experiment, it has cut juvenile cases in Santora's court in half—while they're increasing astronomically in many other cities. New as it is, the idea already has spread to Annapolis, Md., Dayton, Ohio, and Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., may be tried soon in Cleveland, New York, Sacramento.

All this is paying off in a big way for Jacksonville youngsters. Acting as court advisors, they at last have a chance to crack down hard on young scoundrels whose actions hurt the reputations of all teenagers. And they crack down on boys and girls alike.

SURPRISE SENTENCE

The other day, for instance, a well-dressed girl of 18 was up for speeding. To her, court was a huge joke—until she saw the teenage jury. If she expected a fine, the usual punishment, she had a surprise coming. All teenagers know that fines, paid by parents, are quickly forgotten.

"We suggest you sentence her to traffic school," said the 19-year-old foreman, Ernest Evans.

"So ordered," said the judge.

The girl slumped in disgust. Leaving court, she turned and jeered, "You creeps!"

Instantly, young Evans was on his feet. "Sir, we ask you to sentence her also to sweep out the court after every session for a week."

A guard called the girl back. Her look of haughty scorn faded. Her mouth fell open. She'd be joining the hired crew with a pushbroom. "You see what other teenagers think of your conduct," the judge said. Her pride broken, the girl kept silent this time.

All this was started by Jacksonville's teenagers themselves—in self-defense. And it grew out of an even broader idea.

One day last year it suddenly dawned on young people here that teenagers, so often criticized, should have a say in the way their home towns are run. Led by young Evans, a very businesslike pre-college student, they formed the Youth Council on Civic Affairs, Inc. Prominent citizens are its advisors.

The Council's 500 members, aged 14 to 21, decided to seek ways of working for this beautiful and growing city. They plugged for a new library (now being built), for more art, good music, dances, plays, sports—and cleaner streets. They set up a teenage job bureau.

Then one day the boys and girls heard that Judge Santora, one of the best judges the city has ever had, was getting discouraged by soaring youth lawlessness. Here as in many communities delinquency—and worse—was going beyond all bounds. Young punks seemed to have no respect for courts at all.

The Youth Council discussed the problem. A group called on the surprised jurist. "What can we do?" they asked.

Santora pondered. "No matter how fair we try to be," he said, "a lot of these kids in trouble complain that adults are 'against' them. So suppose we made them face a teenage jury?"

It was a daring idea. The Council liked it. "I have no legal precedent," the judge confessed. "But we've got to do something, and if it works it may well set its own precedent." The jury would, of course, have to be merely advisory. And it was agreed that to avoid suspicion of unfairness, both white and Negro youngsters would sit.

A few mornings later, on July 12 last year, 6 boys and girls, all between 16 and 21, came quietly to court and took front spectator seats. They watched the usual depressing morning parade of drunks, prostitutes and degenerates—and thus began their special court education, for this is something few citizens ever see. Then at 10 A.M. a policeman walked to the bench with an 18-year-old college boy.

"Your Honor," said the officer, "this man was speeding 65 miles an hour through town."

The boy admitted it. He was honest, not arrogant. Yet his offense had been serious.

ESSAY ON SPEEDING

"What punishment do you recommend?" the judge asked the jurors.

Young jurymen Evans stood up. "That you sentence him, sir, to write an essay."

The judge was astonished. "An essay?"

"Yes, sir. On 'The Psychology of Speeding.' Give him a week."

"Very well," said the judge, doubtfully. Was this the best a Youth Jury could do?

One week later, to the day, the boy reappeared. His name was called. He stood up.

"Well, did you write it?" the judge asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Was it any good?" the judge demanded of the jurors.

"It was, sir. We all read it," said Evans.

"Did he say anything important?"

"He did, sir. He wrote: 'I speed because I am a show-off.'"

The judge smiled. "Well, he's honest. He'll remember it. We'll forget about a fine and let him go."

Nearly all speeders soon turn up in court again. But this one has never been back.

More poignant was the case of a glum young runaway girl from Syracuse, N.Y., arrested for street-walking. In many courts she would have gone to jail with hardened prostitutes, her life probably ruined.

But it was this girl's first escapade. She'd run away from an unhappy home. On the Youth Jury's recommendation, Judge Santora sentenced her to two days working at the Youth Council offices before being returned to Syracuse. Then he asked the young jurors to talk to her after court. "See if you can find ways to help her," he said. "Find out what her trouble really is."

The runaway glumly went to work handling the Council's mail, and several girl members tried to befriend her and made plans to get her home safely. But she felt embarrassed among these well-dressed boys and girls. "I'm so shabby," she said.

Jacksonville's civic-minded Roosevelt Hotel donates a room to the Council in emergencies, and there the girl had a good bath and her first good night's rest in a week. The big surprise came next day.

Before breakfast, a diminutive girl juror arrived early at the Roosevelt carrying a nice yellow dress.

"It's for you," she told the Syracuse girl. "It's just an old one I was going to throw out."

The girl put it on, feeling cheered, worked another day and was sent home in a happy mood. A week later the teenagers had a letter from her. She was happy again and had found a good job.

Later, Ernie Evans told me the true story of that dress. "It wasn't an old one at all," he said. "It was that juror's favorite dress."

To date 250 boys and girls have served on the jury, and Judge Santora now draws on 17 high schools and 2 colleges.

For six days recently, this reporter watched the jurors at work. They have an uncanny ability to see through deception and get to the truth.

They have no patience with ducktail-and-jeans types, often get them sentenced to be given haircuts. One boy refused a haircut, was given, instead, 30 days in jail. Any teenager who attacks a cop goes to jail. One common sentence is the unpopular traffic school, for traffic offenders caught speeding up to 45 miles an hour. Those who go over 45 are sentenced to help mop up blood and bathe horribly injured victims of bad driving at the hospital emergency room.

To their amazement, jurors have discovered that some disturbed boys today actually seek jail as a status symbol. They want to be martyrs or heroes. Some of these status-seekers have been thwarted by the jury. They've found themselves pushing brooms in a street cleanup detail.

On the last day I was at the court, a car sideswiped a truck. It looked like the same old story: wild kid, fast car. But Judge Santora wasn't so sure. "William," he said, "will you go over there and tell everything to the youth jury?"

The boy was nervous. He leaned on the rail, clapping and unclapping his hands and tried to explain.

NICE KID, NEW PUPPIES

Little by little the teenagers drew the story out as a lawyer might never have done. The boy was a nice kid, never drank, was a brand-new driver. But his pet dog had, that day, given birth to pups. Someone had said, "Get a carton for their home, quick." William got in the family car, started for the store, met the truck on a tight turn, hit it.

The jury understood. A boy excited over new puppies is hardly a willful law-breaker or road-menace.

"What do you want me to do?" demanded the judge.

"He should go free," said Foreman Larry Smith. Judge Santora smiled. "So be it!" he said.

BRINGING UP BABY,* HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF FIVE

and how does a baby flower and flourish?

A baby is truly a blossoming thing from the sweet sprouting of birth through the first several months. In the beginning but a sleeping bud, drawing strength from slumber. Then, almost imperceptibly, he opens up to the world around him . . . looking, listening, feeling, doing. Gradually vision sharpens and eyes light up at the sight of you. Hearing concentrates and ears rejoice at the sound of your voice. Fists unfold and petaled fingers flutter. A smile springs forth and lo and behold, your baby's personality is in bloom.

A baby flourishes through loving care and nourishing food. One of the earliest foods to offer good nourishment is specially prepared cereal. Good way to introduce your baby to this important basic food: Gerber Cereal Sixes. This handy sextette contains Rice Cereal, Barley, Mixed Cereal, High Protein Cereal and two Oatmeal . . . in small-size boxes for mite-size appetites. Like the regular-size cereals, the nutritional benefits of the Sixes include copper and iron to help build good red blood, plus calcium and important B-vitamins.

Feeding footnote. It's a good idea to start baby on the single-grain cereals, then proceed to the mixtures. Rotation of all varieties will teach baby the delights of different flavors . . . establish good eating habits.

Department of reassurance. Your baby's inner security grows when his needs are met promptly and tenderly. The mother who cares for her baby with love in her arms and a caress in her voice goes a long way toward helping him overcome babyhood anxieties. When occasional fears are stilled with loving care your baby learns to trust and that's a happy frame of mind for any baby.

Fruitful ideas. Happy acceptance of fruits comes naturally with Gerber Strained Fruits. That's because they're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to preserve true-to-nature colors and flavors . . . to say nothing of the utmost in precious vitamin values. Ten strained varieties, eight junior fruits.

For your baby's well-being: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business...
our only business!"

Parking motorist jumps curb, strikes meter...

Parking meters that bounce back

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

■ Parking meters that bounce back when hit by careless motorists are not only sparing drivers embarrassment but also saving the town money.

This sunny Florida city used to spend $6,000 a year fixing bent parking meters, until traffic boss Francis May heard about flexible meters and installed 40 as an experiment. Now the bouncy type is being adopted throughout the city. The idea is also being extended to street signs, another casualty of negligent drivers. May's chief worry is that the bouncy meter may take an unexpected rebound. "I sure hope people won't use them as targets," he says.

—SID ROSS

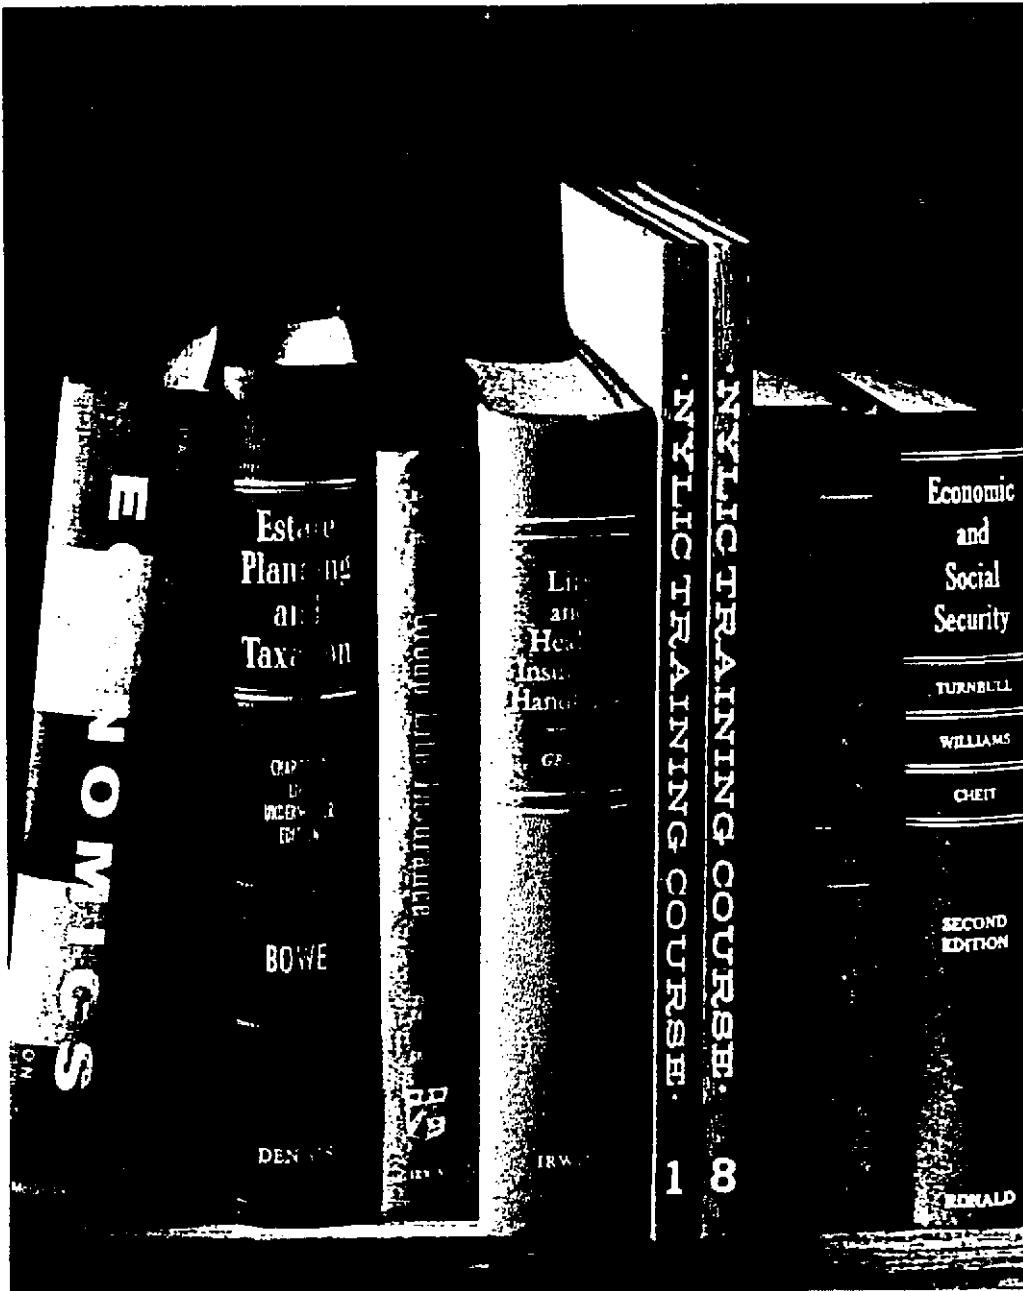

Woman explains to cop why she hit street sign. The damage is nil—but she gets ticket anyway.

"Did I do that? . . . Hmmm, worse than I thought. Wonder who gets the bill. Me, maybe?" . . . . . After car pulls away, meter magically rights itself.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bobby Pickett of Somerville, Mass., is a bright young comic who in 1960 earned his first big money in show business, $10, by winning a contest at the Irish-American Club in Boston. A few months later he migrated to Hollywood where, starring as an entertainer, he took a job as timekeeper with Lockheed. There he joined a group of singers also from Somerville, Mass., called "The Cordials." In 1962 Pickett got the idea of combining impersonations with a special song based on the teenage dance craze, The Mash. He cut a record called "The Monster Mash," and it became the number-one single record hit last year. Since then Bobby has encountered little difficulty in finding work. He's appeared on the Steve Allen and other TV variety programs where he's told such jokes as the following:

My Favorite Jokes

BY BOBBY PICKETT

A first-grade teacher asked her young pupils to draw pictures of John Glenn's space flight. The children worked hard on the project for about 15 minutes, then submitted their results to the teacher for her comments.

In the corner of one youngster's drawing was the outline of a woman. This puzzled the teacher and she asked: "Janie, who is this woman in your picture?"

"Oh," replied the first-grader, "that is Kate Canaveral."

"I see," commented the cynic, "by the number of divorces that this is still the land of the free."

"Yes," added the optimist, "but by the number of marriages, I would judge it is still the home of the brave."

Did you hear about the new Mafia car—two hoods up front?

A Texan went into a bar and said, "Give me the tallest glass you've got and one lemon." The bartender obliged.

The Texan squeezed the lemon and got almost a pint of juice. Tossing aside the lemon rind, he said, "I'd like to see anyone else get that much juice from just one lemon."

A little fellow standing near-by said, "Let me have a tall glass and the lemon rind you just threw away." He then took the lemon rind and squeezed another full glass of juice from the already used rind.

"Man!" exclaimed the Texan. "I never saw anything like that. How did you do it?"

"Well, you see," replied the man quietly, "I'm with the Internal Revenue Service."

Did you hear about the real estate man's girl friend who sued him for breach of promise? She expected a lot!

Definition of a hypocrite: A man who hands his pay check to his wife with a smile on his face.

My neighbor stays up every night, he says, to get the late news... that's when his wife comes home from work!

Mr. Jones was delighted with the way the painter had redecorated his house and said to him when the job was completed: "Here is your money for the work, Smith, and I'm going to give you a little something extra because you did such a good job. Here's $10. Take the missus to a show tonight."

That evening the doorbell rang, and when Mr. Jones went to the door, he found the painter—all dressed up.

"What is it?" asked Mr. Jones. "Did you forget something?"

"No," replied the painter. "I just came to take the missus to a show."

blueberries and peaches in a

FRUIT PIE

BY BETH MERRIMAN
Parade food editor

Two luscious fruits of late summer—peaches and cultivated blueberries—have true flavor affinities. Put them together in a two-in-one pie; cut small wedges from both halves for each person. Serve hot with peach or vanilla ice cream on top, or chilled, without topping. Your family will demand repeat performances as long as the season lasts.

Double Fruit Pie

- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups sliced fresh peaches
- 2 cups cultivated blueberries
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1-2-3 pastry

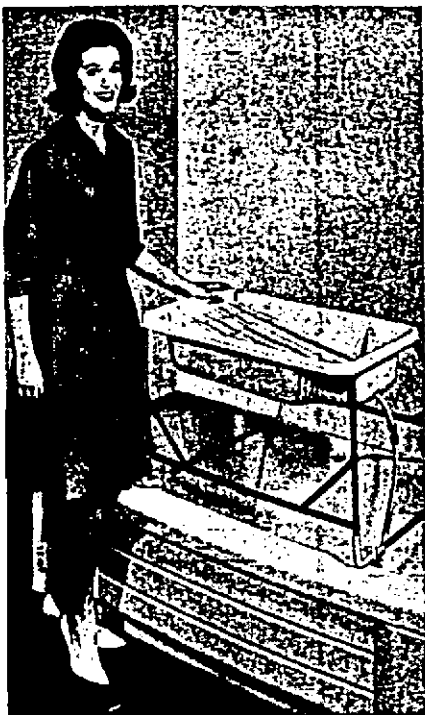

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Sprinkle half over peaches and half over blueberries. Toss each to mix well. Divide pastry in half. Flatten one portion slightly; roll out into 12-inch circle between 2 pieces of waxed paper. (Wipe table with damp cloth to keep paper from slipping.) Peel off top paper; place pastry circle in 9-inch pie pan, paper side up. Peel off paper. Fit pastry loosely into pan, extending about ½ inch beyond rim. Arrange blueberry mixture in half the pan. Dot with ½ tablespoon butter or margarine. Flip uncovered half of pastry lining over blueberry filling, leaving half the pie pan empty. Roll out remaining pastry to 12-inch circle as directed above. Fit into empty half of pie pan, with pastry around rim extending ½ inch and other half resting on top of blueberry pie. Fill half pan with peach mixture; dot with remaining ½ tablespoon butter or margarine. Flip uncovered half of pastry over peach filling. Trim pastry, if necessary. Seal; flute all around rim. Cut slits in top of pastry to permit steam to escape during baking. Brush with additional melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 425° until fruit is tender and crust is browned, about 35 minutes. Makes about 6 servings.

1-2-3 Pastry

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons cold water

Combine flour and salt in mixing bowl. Blend in oil, mixing thoroughly with fork. Sprinkle all water on top; mix well. Press firmly into ball with hands. (If slightly dry, mix an additional 1 to 2 tablespoons oil.)

Europeans know Elke as pin-up queen. Now Hollywood's giving her a "no cheesecake" build-up.

ELKE SOMMER

they're changing her image

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD. Now that Brigitte Bardot is passé—she suffers from acne, overexposure, and her last three films were flops—the number-one sex kitten in Europe is Elke (pronounced Ell-key) Sommer.

Elke (real surname—Schletz) is a blonde, saftig German Mädchen of 22 with a beautiful, green-eyed photogenic face and a curvaceous altogether which ranges from 120 to 135 pounds.

In the past 3 years Elke has starred in 16 motion pictures, 15 of which were made overseas. The Prize, her 16th, in which she plays a delectable Swedish guide showing Paul Newman the stimulating ins and outs of Stockholm, is her first Hollywood-made film. Last week she finished it for $50,000. After bleaching her hair, capping her teeth and viewing a rough cut, MGM signed Elke for three more films, ordered that she be given the Grace Kelly-type build-up: "No cheesecake, leg-art or bikini stills."

Since Europe has been flooded with thousands of Elke Sommer pin-up photos, this attempt to change the actress's public image is no easy job. The studio is convinced, however, that it can be done, at least on this side of the Atlantic, by placing the publicity emphasis on Elke's brain instead of her physique.

Fortunately, Elke is equipped with a good brain, a genteel background, a facility for languages—German, Spanish, French, English and Italian. Her father, before his death eight years ago, was pastor of the Lutheran Evangelical Church in the shadow of Spandau, the jail in which the last remaining three of the Nazi war criminals are still incarcerated.

His name was Friedrich Schletz, and according to Elke, "He always wanted a son, and since I was an only child, I had to do everything a son would have done. He sent me to school where I learned Greek and Latin to become a school-teacher. But then he died of a heart attack, and we had very little money to live on, a pension of 150 marks a month, about $40, because he was a war veteran. So I decided I would become an interpreter, and I changed to modern languages.

JOB IN ENGLAND

"To learn English," Elke goes on, "I hired myself out in England as a mother's helper, what they call an au pair girl. I worked for a very nice Jewish family called Nathan. Mr. Nathan worked in a fish market and had three kids, then a fourth. Joe Nathan was his name, and he paid me two pounds ten a week [$7].

"After seven months I managed to save some money. I got back home to Germany. With my mummy and a whole tourist group I went for a small vacation to Italy. I didn't speak any Italian then. I was almost 18 and then one night in Viareggio I was invited to go dancing by an Italian boy. My mummy went with me.

Today, demurely clothed, inseparable from her mother, Elke aims to be new Grace Kelly.

"We went dancing in the open air, but at the gate entrance they gave me a little card with a number. My number was 14. While we were dancing I noticed a table with about 40 elderly people looking at us through opera glasses. It was strange but I told myself, 'After all, this is Italy.'

"Anyway, after half an hour someone announced that Signorina Schletz was elected Miss Viareggio of 1958. They pulled me on the stage and gave me a blue sash and flowers and perfume and I smiled into the cameras."

The following day when Elke and her mother were lunching at their pension, a little Italian man ran up to their table, began to exclaim how wonderful it was that Elke was going into films.

Says Elke, "This man, his name is

"So we went, and I made a test at Cinecittà, and they said it was fine, and they offered me 5,000 marks, about $1,000, to make a picture. And I said to myself, 'Dear God, that is a lot of money. I will never have to be an au pair girl again.'"

After her first film, Elke was spotted by famed Italian director Vittorio De Sica, who offered her 4,000 marks a picture, plus a build-up. Two more films in Rome during which provocative pin-ups were distributed throughout the Continent, and Elke had had enough of Italiana.

"The men," she explains, "were too aggressive. That's why I left Rome. I like that city, but everywhere I went I was followed by men. I'd go out to the beach to be alone and in five minutes I'd be surrounded. If I was in a crowd, I would always get pinched. And the Italian men, when they talk, who can believe them? They exaggerate so much. I was glad to leave. I went to Germany and made six films, then four or five in France, then four in England, including The Victors.

"I saved my money and bought a house in Erlangen, that's a university town in Germany, and a villa in Spain, a very small one, and we have an apartment in Switzerland, but there is really no place in the world like Beverly Hills. I guess I will also buy a house here. Houses give me comfort and a feeling of security, especially when they are paid for."

SHREWD ABOUT MEN

Agented by Kurt Frings, a Machiavelian character who also represents Elizabeth Taylor and Audrey Hepburn, Elke Sommer—"I took the name Sommer because I like it"—is a sure bet for Hollywood stardom, largely because we don't seem to breed her type domestically. She is loaded with that rare combination of sex appeal and common sense, and more important, she's a shrewd judge of men.

During her Hollywood stay, she was given the "pitch" by half a dozen accomplished men-about-town, including Glenn Ford. Elke's stock but truthful answers: "I am not interested in going to Hollywood parties. I am mostly interested in making someone good of myself. There is always plenty of time for men."

A shrewd cookie, this Elke Sommer—one of the shrewdest, sharpest, smartest cookies to come down the Hollywood pike in a long, long time. In the apt words of her mother: "Her face gave Elke a start, but her brain will give her a future."

"Would you like to sign a petition complaining about my piano practicing?"

"Yes, mom, I took off my muddy shoes."

"I'd like the respect due a six-hundred-dollar exemption."

ANECDOTE OF THE WEEK

■ Recently a Hollywood cabdriver found his curiosity piqued by a charming white-haired customer who looked familiar to him. Finally he could not resist asking her, "Aren't you Miss Billie Burke?"

"Well, I'm what's left of her," quipped Miss Burke, cheerfully acknowledging her status as a Senior Citizen. ■

IN THE EXTREMELY DRY CLIMATE OF WESTERN DESERTS THE KANGAROO RAT MUST CONSERVE WATER IN ORDER TO SURVIVE

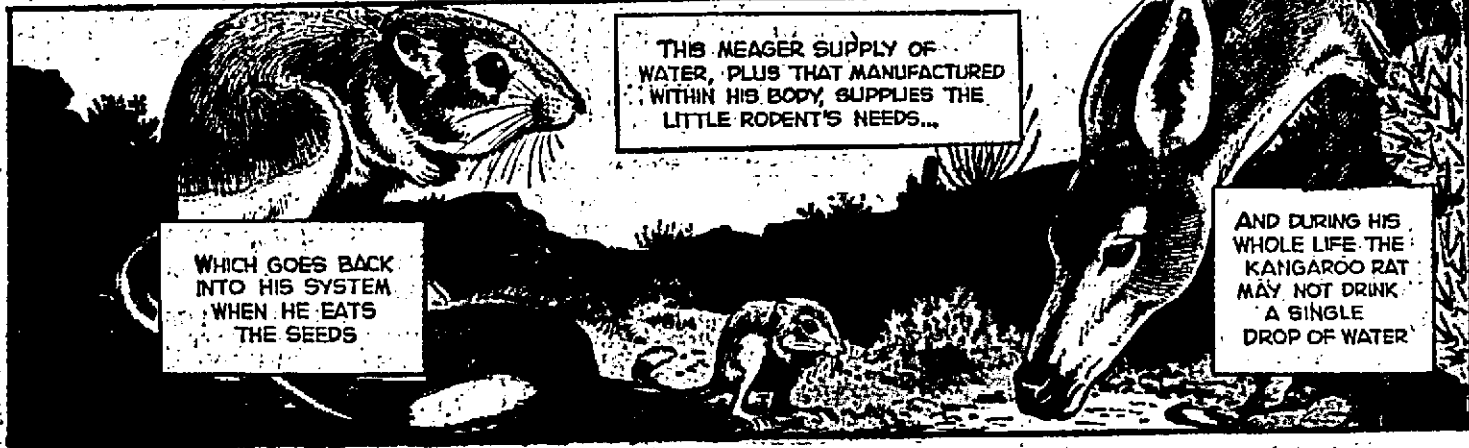

HE LOVES LITTLE MOISTURE THROUGH PERSPIRATION, FOR HE COMES OUT ONLY IN THE COOL OF THE NIGHT

WITH HAIR-LINED CHEEK POUCHES FILLED WITH FOOD HE RETURNS TO HIS BURROW BEFORE DAWN AND PLUGS THE ENTRANCE WITH EARTH

THE DRIED SEEDS HE BRINGS TO HIS UNDERGROUND HOME ABSORB MOISTURE FROM THE SURROUNDING SOIL AND FROM HIS BREATH...

THIS MEAGER SUPPLY OF WATER, PLUS THAT MANUFACTURED WITHIN HIS BODY, SUPPLIES THE LITTLE RODENT'S NEEDS...

WHICH GOES BACK INTO HIS SYSTEM WHEN HE EATS THE SEEDS

AND DURING HIS WHOLE LIFE THE KANGAROO RAT MAY NOT DRINK A SINGLE DROP OF WATER

EXCUSE ME, CINDY LOU HONEY. I'VE GOT SOMETHING MIGHTY IMPORTANT TO SPEAK TO HUMPHREY ABOUT.

8-25

SAY, HUMPH, HAVE YOU GOT A GOOD STOUT LADDER OUT AT YOUR PLACE I COULD BORROW?

WHY SHORE, CLAUDE. COME ON OUT AN' PICK IT UP!

IT'S SOLID ALL RIGHT. IT EVEN HOLDS ME!

JUST WHAT I NEED! I'M GRATEFUL TO YOU FOR LETTIN' ME BORROW IT, HUMPH!

DID CLAUDE SAY WHAT HE NEEDED THE LADDER FOR?

NOPE... AN' I DIDN'T ASK!

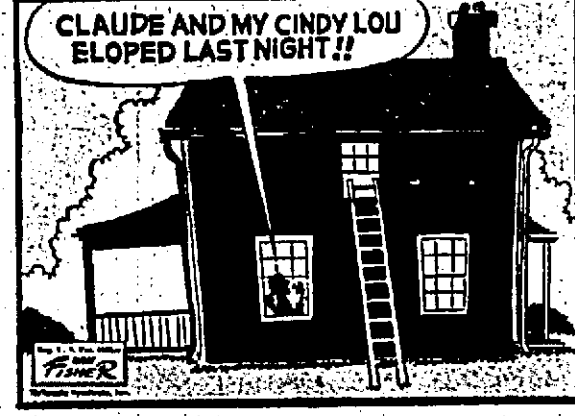

WHO'S CALLIN' SO EARLY IN TH' MORNIN'?

IT'S JOSH BAGLEY... HE SAYS HE'S GOT YOUR LADDER!

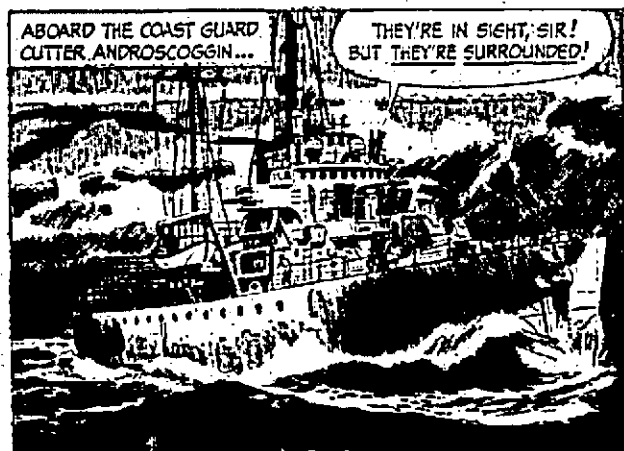

GAWSH SAKES, JOSH... WHAT'S MY LADDER DOIN' OVER AT YORE PLACE?

CLAUDE AND MY CINDY LOU ELOPED LAST NIGHT!!

ABOARD THE COAST GUARD CUTTER ANDROSCOGGIN...

THEY'RE IN SIGHT, SIR! BUT THEY'RE SURROUNDED!

SEÑOR DAN... LOOK! THE COAST GUARD IS JUST BEYOND.

STEADY, SWEETHEART... AS THEY SAY IN THE MARINE CORPS, WE'RE GOING TO HAVE TO ADVANCE TO THE REAR...

FLAGG AND MARGUERITA ARE BROUGHT ABOARD ONE OF THE MANY CASTRO-CONFISCATED U.S. YACHTS...

AH, THE GREAT MARGUERITA. I THINK DOCTOR CASTRO WILL PERSONALLY LIKE TO SEE YOU, SEÑORITA.

IT'S TIME NOW TO ADVANCE TO THE FRONT...

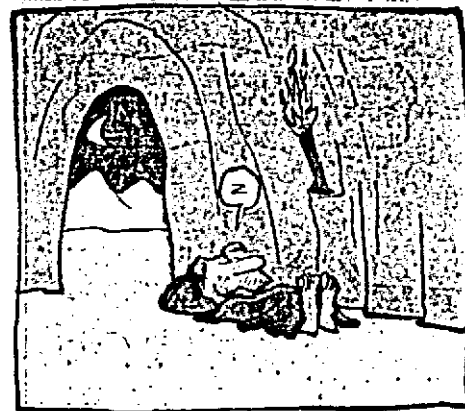

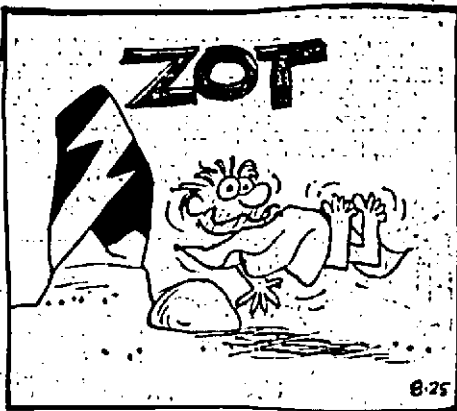

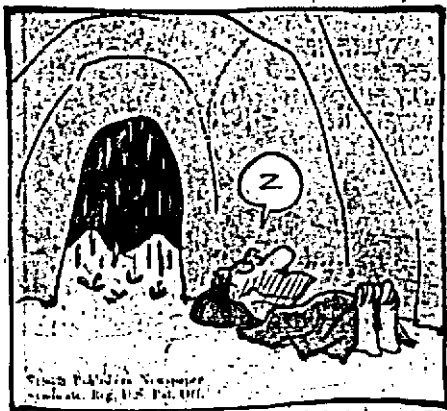

WHILE ON THE COAST GUARD CUTTER...

THEY'RE SO CLOSE AND YET SO FAR...

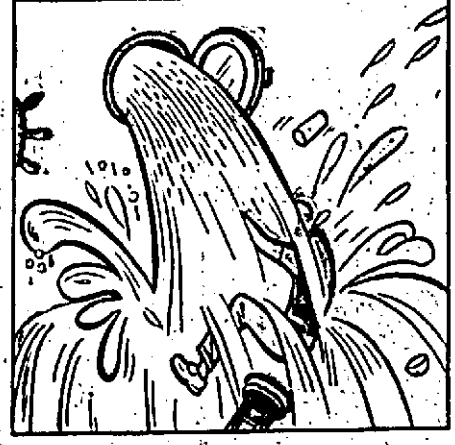

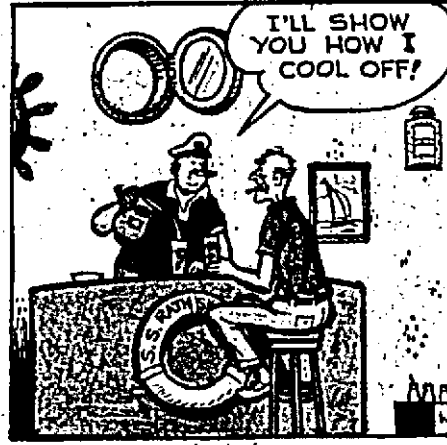

WE'RE HELPLESS TO DO ANYTHING BUT SIT TIGHT! WE'VE OUR ORDERS! HOWEVER, IF FLAGG IS THE BREED OF MARINE I KNOW, I DON'T THINK THAT BOAT WILL RETURN TO CUBA.
